PRESIDENT SEEKS PAN-AMERICAN AID FOR MEXICO MOVE

Calls A B C Ambassadors and Three Ministers to a Conference.

FIRST TO BE "INFORMAL"

But Support of Other Latin Republics for Peace Program Is Aimed At.

NEW PRESIDENT IN VIEW

As Well as Immediate Relief for Mexico City and Guard of Railways if Necessary.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Its patience exhausted, the United States Government has determined that the time has arrived when it must take action to restore order and constitutional authority in Mexico. A program to that end has been considered, but before putting this into effect the Government will consult with the Republics of South and Central America, which will be asked to adhere to its purposes.

The following announcement indicating that an important move in the Mexican situation is at hand was made by the State Department tonight:

> On Thursday afternoon there will be an informal conference at the State Department to consider the Mexican situation.
>
> Those taking part in the conference will be the Ambassadors from Brazil, Argentina, and Chile, and the three ranking Ministers of the American Republics, namely, those of Bolivia, Uruguay, and Guatemala.
> As for the details which will be considered nothing need be said at the present time, as the conference will be entirely confidential.

The destitution and starvation existing in Mexico City have brought matters to a head with respect to the United States Government's dealings with Mexican affairs. The first effort of this Government will be to relieve the distress prevailing there, and while there is no official authority for the assertion, it is believed that the Wilson Administration has reached the point of being willing to go to extremes to insure freedom of communication between the Port of Vera Cruz and the Mexican capital, so that food supplies can be transported to Mexico City for distribution by American agents. Consideration of a project to this end is expected to take place at the conference at the State Department on Thursday.

The consent and possible co-operation of Latin America toward the end desired will, it is believed, strengthen any movement taken and given assurance to the Governments and people of South and Central America that the United States has no intention of acquiring territory or taking any action that will in any way interfere with the political integrity of the Mexican republic.

Positive action, however, would be dependent on whether the Carranza, Villa and Zapata factions refuse to complay with the strong and urgent representations sent to them last week by Secretary Lansing with respect to keeping open the railroad from Vera Cruz and permitting relief supplies from the United States to pass freely to the stricken people in the capital. No disposition has yet been manifested by any of the factional leaders to concede what is desired by this Government. But beyond this important question, the conference of Thursday is expected to be devoted to a general consideration of the Mexican situation and particular consideration of the American plan of procedure, to which the assent of the Latin-American nations is to be sought.

Support for a President.

No formal statement as to the details of this plan has ever been made. It is well understood, however, that the plan which was outlined in THE NEW YORK TIMES of July 31, contemplates the selection of a provisional President of Mexico, preferably a member of the Cabinet of the last Constitutional President, Francisco I. Madero, who will set up a Government and will at once receive the recognition of the United States, Brazil, Argentina, and Chile. The United States Government will then give its active moral support to the new central authority of Mexico by issuing a proclamation placing an embargo on the shipment of arms and ammunition to any faction that opposes the Government so established. The plan is progressive, and it is understood that it contemplates that the Provisional President shall arrange for the appointment of a successor who will be acceptable to those Mexican leaders and their followers who become parties to the program of the United States.

To insure the success of this program the active support of a considerable body of Mexican troops will be necessary. Two months ago today President Wilson called on Carranza, Villa, and Zapata to compose their differences and agree on the personnel of a central government, to which the support of the United States was promised. Villa assented with apparent cordiality to the suggestion of the President, and sent a telegram to Carranza offering to confer with him on the subject. Carranza made no response, but redoubled his efforts to get possession of Mexico City, with the idea that if he established a government there he would receive the recognition of the United States.

Carranza Not in Favor.

The Carranza forces are now in control at the capital, but this has not made the Wilson Administration look with any kindlier eyes on Carranza's claims to preference. It was reported today that President Wilson had decided to recognize the Carranza Government. The report was untrue. It was denied positively by Secretary Lansing. From other sources connected with the Administration it was learned that Carranza's chances of recognition are decidedly on the wane and that they are

11 DEAD; 15 WOUNDED IN SUBMARINE ATTACK

U-Boat Shells British Steamer Clintonia Without Warning—Two Other Freighters Sunk.

BREST, France, Tuesday, Aug. 3.—The British steamship Clintonia of 3,838 tons was shelled and sunk on Sunday morning by a German submarine. Eleven men of the Clintonia lost their lives and fifteen were injured.

The Clintonia encountered the submarine twenty miles west of Ar-men, and, according to survivors, was attacked without warning. The submarine fired four shells, wrecking everything on deck.

The crew hastily got into the boats and lowered the wounded into them. The submarine then torpedoed the steamer, which sank within three minutes.

One of the boats containing ten persons was engulfed. In all fifty-four survivors reached here. The wounded were taken to the Naval Hospital. The Clintonia was bound from Marseilles for Newcastle.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The British steamship Clintonia has been sunk. Fifty-four of the persons aboard her were saved.

The British steamer Benvorlich, which left Manila May 1 for London by way of Marseilles, has been sunk. Sixteen members of the crew have been landed. The others are still in the boats.

The British steamer Fulgens, of 2,501 tons gross, has been sunk. The crew has been landed.

The Clintonia, owned by J. Robinson & Sons of North Shields, was last reported to have sailed from Tynemouth July 2 for Marseilles. She was built at Sunderland in 1907, was 350 feet long, with a beam of 50 feet.

The Benvorlich was built at Glasgow in 1896 and was owned by W. Thomson & Co., Limited, of Leith. The vessel was 957 feet long, 43 feet beam, and 24 feet deep. She was of 3,381 gross tons. The Fulgens was built at Newcastle in 1912 and was owned by the Gaslight and Coke Company of London. The vessel was 305 feet long, 42 feet beam, and 19 feet deep.

RUSSIAN DESTROYER IS REPORTED LOST

Said to Have Sunk in Black Sea—Athens Hears of Great Fire in Constantinople.

BERLIN, Aug. 2, (via Wireless to Sayville, L. I.)—A dispatch from Constantinople to the Overseas News Agency reports the sinking, for reasons unknown, of a large Russian torpedo boat destroyer off the island of Kerken, to the east of Chileh, in the Black Sea.

ATHENS, Aug. 2, (via London.)—Arrivals here from Constantinople report that 3,000 buildings, including the German Hospital, filled with wounded soldiers, were destroyed last week by fire.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 1, (via London, Aug. 2.)—There have been no important actions on either side in the last fortnight on the Gallipoli Peninsula. Even the British bombardment of the Turkish positions has lessened considerably in its intensity. This applies both to Avi Burnu and Sedd-el-Bahr. The Turkish artillery has been active, however. There have been no serious infantry engagements.

The military hospitals here and elsewhere, which a few days ago were well filled, now are in many cases half empty. The American hospital is included among this number.

FOR CLOSER ALLIANCE OF RUSSIA AND JAPAN

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The final section of the speech made by Foreign Minister Sazonoff at the opening of the Russian Duma yesterday was received in London tonight.

Referring to the relations between Russia and Japan, the Minister said that the press of both countries had been discussing the advantage of a close political union between them, and that the service rendered to the Entente Allies by Japan had "created an atmosphere in which solid political ties between nations are forged."

"Ten years have gone by," he added, "since the Treaty of Portsmouth proved that peaceful neighborliness between Russia and Japan was perfectly possible and reciprocally advantageous. Our relations of alliance with Japan today should be forerunners of a still closer alliance."

DIVER DIES TRAPPED IN BIG WATER MAIN

Heavy Door Drops Behind Him—Rescuers Reach Him Only a Few Minutes Too Late.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 2.—Thousands of persons crowded Highland Park today while policemen, firemen, and Water Bureau employes worked frantically but in vain to save Charles Carpenter, a diver, who was lost in a fifty-one-inch pipe connecting two reservoirs in the park.

Carpenter, who entered the main just before noon to remove an obstruction, was imprisoned when a cable snapped and a heavy iron door, deep in the water, dropped behind him. Nothing was thought of his absence for an hour, but as he did not respond to signals, another diver went down; he found the door closed.

The air hose seemed to be intact and the pumps were kept going, while other divers worked to open the door, and still others sought for the second entrance to the pier. Just before 5 o'clock the door was lifted, and Carpenter's body was found. He had been dead only a few minutes. His mother and sister were in the crowd which waited all afternoon for news from the main.

GERMANY FIRM IN FRYE CASE; BRITAIN DEFENDS BLOCKADE

COMBAT OUR ARGUMENTS

DEADLOCK OVER THE FRYE

British Communications to be Published Tomorrow—Berlin Note to be Given Out Later.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—One German and two British notes were received at the State Department today. The German note dealt with the sinking of the American sailing ship William P. Frye, and was a response to the American note of June 24, challenging the German contention that the destruction of the Frye was not a violation of the treaty of 1799, and asking Germany to settle this claim by direct diplomatic negotiations instead of by prize court proceedings. Germany does not yield to the American contention. The German note probably will be made public Thursday morning.

The two British notes were supplemental to the principal reply of the British Government, received last week, to the American note of March 30, on British interference with neutral commerce. The first of the supplemental communications received today is a resonse to the recent protest of the United States covering principles involved in the detention of the American steamer Neches. The second supplemental note is a reply to the American "caveat" of July 14, which asserted that the United States would recognize no Orders in Council or other municilal legislation that was in contravention of international law. The British notes will be given out tomorrow afternoon for publication on Wednesday morning.

The complete response of the British Government to the various representations of the United States with regard to interferences with neutral trade takes the form of three notes. The first was received on July 26, and the second and third were received today. All deal with the general question—though different phases—of the rights of neutral commerce under international law, as affected by the enforcement of the British Order in Council of March 15, restricting overseas commerce of Germany. At the request of Sir Edward Grey the publication of the main British reply, received by the State Department on July 26, was postponed until the receipt of the supplemental Neches and "caveat" replies.

The Neches Note.

The note dealing with the Neches case will be of unusual interest to American importers because it embraces the British claim of right to interfere with trade out of Germany. The British Government maintains that it has acted in accordance with accepted principles of international law, and that if there has been any departure it has not been from accepted principles, but from former ways of applying those principles in the enforcement of a blockade. The United States Government has been challenging England's right to blocade a neutral country and thus interfere with innocent shipments through neutral ports into and from Germany, in trade with neutrals.

The British Government insists that under the doctrine of continuous voyage it has a right to prevent trade with the enemy, but that the peculiarities of the present situation are such that the application of existing rules of international law must be somewhat different from application in the past. It is understood that the British Government takes the position that its interference with German trade, under its construction of international law, may cover trade coming out of Germany as well as goods for that country.

Involves Belgian Goods.

The Neches note deals with the enforcement of that portion of the Order in Council of March 15 which applies to goods leaving Germany and Austria. The Neches was seized while bound for the United States from a neutral port with a cargo of goods of Belgian and German origin. The owners of the ship insisted that goods originating in Belgium were entitled to proceed. The British Government took the position that since Belgium was under German control, goods from there must be considered as of German origin. The Neches was released but the cargo was held and is now before a British prize court.

The United States protested asserting that broad principles of international law regarded such goods, as well as innocent goods originating in a belligerent country passing through neutral ports to neutral countries, as exempt from molestation and could only be touched when passing through lines of blockade. The British note in the Neches case goes into the attitude of the British Government toward exportation of goods from Germany to neutral countries, through neutral ports. There are now between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000 worth of alleged American owned goods in Holland and Germany, all of German origin, which have been unable to move to this country on account of the British Government's attitude.

The British supplementary note in reply to the American caveat note of July 14 deals with the principles of international law under which the British Government insists it has a right to prevent shipments passing from neutral coun-

'FRAME-UP' CHARGED BY WARDEN OSBORNE

PRISON RUNAWAYS HELPED

Thomas Mott Osborne, Warden of Sing Sing, charged in a speech to Summer school students at Columbia University last night that politicians, who wanted to oust him from the Wardenship had tried to "frame him up," and that the station platform altercation he had with a confidential agent of the State Superintendent of Prisons in Ossining last Thursday was an outgrowth of an attempted "frame up." The politicians who wanted to oust him, he said, had "a peculiar reason" for wanting him "replaced by somebody more pliable and less honest."

The address was given under the auspices of the National ommittee on Prisons and Prison Labor, of which Mr. Osborne is Honorary President, and which has its headquarters at Columbia. He first described conditions as he found them at Auburn and Sing Sing Prisons, and then described the reforms he had instituted and their effect on some of the prisoners. Prisons as they had been, he said, were perhaps the greatest failures of civilization. He was trying to give the prisoners mental and spiritual freedom.

"But we have one great enemy to reckon with," the Warden said, "and that is the politician."

Mr. Osborne told of the visit last Thursday of Superintendent Riley's agent, Patrick H. McDonald. McDonald went to the prison that day, Mr. Osborne said, because it was understood that he, the Warden, would be absent on account of the double execution the next morning, when Becker and a mulatto were sent to the electric chair. McDonald made the visit to get certain prison records and papers, and Mr. Osborne said he waited until he had procured them covertly from a convict before he left Superintendent Riley's letter for the Warden at the office and disappeared. Mr. Osborne reached the station before McDonald had left and got the papers from McDonald's handbag after losing a couple of shirt buttons and being slightly rumpled up while "reasoning" with the confidential agent, as he put it last night. His assault charge against the agent will be heard before a Magistrate in Ossining next Friday.

Men Encouraged to Run Away.

"You don't know what they meant to frame up," the Warden said to his audience, and then added significantly, "but I think I do." He did not go into details on this point, but referred to mysterious influences at work in another connection.

"We have had three successful runaways, and one unsuccessful," he said. "I could tell you some interesting stories about these. There is not a bit of doubt that some of these men received encouragement from the outside. In other words, there is a powerful opposition exerting itself against the reform movement." The Warden asked his audience to remember his words if they ever heard of his committing "some frightful crime."

Mr. Osborne read copies of a letter he had sent to Governor Whitman in which he defended his reforms and replied to public attacks on his system, and a letter to Superintendent Riley regarding McDonald's method of "smuggling" the records out of the prison. In the second letter he explained his summary tactics in regaining the records by writing:

"Of course, I knew that this undignified and unofficial proceeding could not possibly be with your sanction."

Mr. Osborne said that he had sent Superintendent Riley copies of all the reports McDonald had procured, and that he would send the originals if they were ordered.

"But this time I'll have copies of them myself, and they'll all be numbered," he said. "And then they won't be able to arrange any frame-up."

The Warden declared he liked and respected Superintendent Riley, but he felt that the Superintendent had been misled.

"I wish he would come to Sing Sing himself and learn the truth about what is being done there," he remarked.

Complains of Politicians.

In an appeal to his auditors to support the prison reform movement Mr. Osborne said:

"I think it is up to the people of New York to see that politicians leave me alone in this work I am trying to accomplish for the good of the State and of society. I am doing this because I'm interested in it. I don't get any money out of Sing Sing. It costs me money to hold the job. The salary the State allows me I have used to employ an Assistant Warden."

Mr. Osborne asserted that his reforms were practicable and calculated to be of more benefit to society than to the prisoners personally. He cited the following case to prove that one prisoner, at least, had learned to control impulses sufficiently to be allowed to return to the world:

"When a man escaped fifteen of the prisoners were sent out to find him and stayed out all night. Every one of them returned, and one had twelve years more of his sentence to serve. That man was tempted not to come back, of course, and that very act proved him capable of taking his place in society again."

ROOSEVELT IS HOME; 1916 PROGRAM READY

MOOSE CONVENTION LATER

Colonel Has Only Kind Words for Robinson and Hamlin, Who Deserted Progressives Here.

Hiram Johnson, Governor of California, and nominee of the Progressive Party for Vice President in 1912, when Colonel Theodore Roosevelt headed tne ticket, will be used as the battering ram with which to break down the doors of conservatism, and force Progressive principles and a nominee who may be satisfactory to the majority of the members of the Progressive Party at the Republican National Convention in 1906. That, at least, is the present plan, and it will be carried out unless developments prior to the primary elections next Spring make the adoption of an entirely new program necessaray.

Colonel Roosevelt, who returned to his home at Oyster Bay yesterday after a visit to the Panama-Pacific Exposition, talked over the political situation at length with the Governor of California while in San Francisco, and it can be stated authoritatively that Johnson is not only willing, but anxious to make the fight.

According to the present tentative program, Governor Johnson will not only endeavor to capture the delegation to the Republican National Convention from California, but he may go into other Western States where the delegates are elected at the direct primaries and endeavor to add to his strength as a factor in naming the man who will head the Republican ticket next year.

Colonel Roosevelt, with Mrs. Roosevelt, who is in the best of health despite reports to the contrary, arrived at the Grand Central Station at 9:35 o'clock yesterday morning on the Twentieth Century Limited. The Colonel was as buoyant and aggressive as ever, and looked full of fight. He was met by half a dozen reporters, who asked him for an expression about the decision of Theodore Douglas Robinson, Jr., ex-State Chairman of the Progressive Party, and Chauncey J. Hamlin, its leader in Erie County, to enroll as Republicans and quit the Progressive ranks. At first he refused to make any comment, but after his arrival at Oyster Bay he issued this statement, which was taken by many as an indication that the Colonel was only too anxious to have Republicans and Progressives join in the next big fight for political honors:

"As regards the Progressives who have announced their intention of enrolling as Republicans in this State, I have nothing to say except that I think it has been fine of them to have made the great fight they have made during the past three years for Progressive principles, and I am sure they are acting conscientiously in the step they now take and with the purpose of doing what they regard as most useful to the community.

"Holding the convictions I do it would be an impossibility for me myself to take that step. I shall enroll as a Progressive, and if any man in this State asks my advice I shall advise him also to enroll as a Progressive."

This trip made by the Colonel to the coast, to which, in his words, no political significance was to be attached, has given him an excellent opportunity to study the situation and has left him none the less determined to bring about, if possible, a coalition of the Republican and Progressive parties if it is possible to nominate the right kind of a candidate on the right kind of a platform at the Republican convention.

The decision to have Governor Johnson run in the Republican primaries, and, by becoming the disturbing factor in 1916, disappoint those Republicans who believed they were to be allowed to hold their convention in peace after the disturbance of 1912, does not mean, it was said, that Roosevelt and his followers in the Progressive Party would demand the nomination by the Republicans of Johnson.

In fact, it can be said that very little hope, if any, is held by them that Johnson could carry the convention. But they realize to the full the importance of Johnson as a club held over the head of the Republican Party. And they hope that by injecting Johnson into the fray it will be possible at least to defeat the nomination of a reactionary, and to place at the head of the Republican ticket a man whom the Progressives, who are not determined to make a lone fight at all costs, could support without all loss of self-respect. They hope to have a very strong voice in framing the platform and purging it of some of the doctrines which they believe are fatal to the cause of advance, and, as the Colonel might express it, "righteousness."

Colonel Roosevelt returned from his tour of the West with one thing stamped indelibly in his mind, and that was that there would be a national convention of the Progressive Party, at which a straight Progressive ticket would be nominated. He found everywhere enough of the radical branch of the party demanding such a step to make it more than a possibility—in fact, to make it inevitable. He found also that in most sections, when it was learned that he would not run under any circumstances—or at least unless the most remarkable situation arose—that the Progressives were looking to Governor Johnson of California as their next candidate.

William H. Childs, leader of the Progressive Party in Kings County, issued a statement yesterday declaring his allegiance to the Progressive Party principles. He said in part:

"If this present National Administration and the incoming Congress do not place our country upon the proper economic basis for general prosperity, the Progressive Party should stand ready to unite under any banner for the election of such candidates as can command our confidence."

In the Middle West and even in California, Colonel Roosevelt, it was said, found many Progressives who were considering the advisability of throwing their support to President Wilson should he be renominated by the Democrats, in the event a reactionary, so called, was nominated by the Republicans in 1916, and it was evident that the Progressive Party nominee had no opportunity of victory.

Upon his arrival here yesterday Colonel Roosevelt spent a few hours in town and then motored to his home in Oyster Bay.

German Transport and Destroyer Sunk by British; Underwater Boat also Destroys Turkish Craft

PETROGRAD, Aug. 2.—An official communication, issued here, says that a British submarine has sunk a large German transport in the Baltic Sea.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The British Admiralty tonight announced that a British submarine had returned and reported the sinking of a German torpedo boat destroyer, believed to be of the G-196 class, on July 26, near the German coast.

The German destroyer G-196 displaced 689 tons and had a speed of 32 knots an hour. Her complement was seventy-three officers and men.

Another statement issued by the Admiralty gave this report of successes won by submarines in eastern waters:

> The Vice Admiral Commanding in the Eastern Mediterranean reports that one of the British submarines operating in the Sea of Marmora has torpedoed a large steamer of 3,000 tons off the Mudania pier, which had several vessels secured alongside. The explosion was very heavy. A small steamer close to Karabigha Bay was torpedoed.
> A report from Constantinople states that a gunboat was torpedoed in the Sea of Marmora about this time, and it possibly refers to this occasion.
>
> Torpedoes were fired at lighters alongside the arsenal at Constantinople. The result could not be seen, but the explosion was heavy.
>
> The Zeitunli powder mills were fired at, but owing to the darkness the result could not be ascertained.
>
> The railway cut one mile west of Kara Burnu was bombarded and the line blocked temporarily, so that a troop train was unable to pass. It was being fired at as it steamed back, three truck loads of ammunition being blown up.

GERMANS BRING SIEGE GUNS

Great 42s That Battered Down Liege and Namur Hurried Up to Attack Warsaw Forts.

LONDON, Tuesday, Aug. 3.—While the Austro-Germans continue to tighten the wings of their great eastern battle front, with success at both extremities, including the occupation of Mitau in the north and further progress beyond Chelm in Southeast Poland, the situation before Warsaw proper remains unchanged and obscure.

Few additional details have reached London concerning the plans for the abandonment of the city, but apparently the time has not arrived for the Russians to relinquish their increasingly precarious hold on the capital, or, at least, no word of its evacuation has come to London.

Ivangorod, southeast of Warsaw, heretofore erroneously reported invested, is now nearing that state in fact, according to the Berlin announcement, but from Ivangorod eastward to Chelm, and beyond, the Russians who had to abandon the railway are fighting most desperately in an endeavor to hold up Field Marshal von Mackensen's advance northward into Poland, a movement which seriously threatens the Russian centre retiring from Warsaw.

Several 42 centimetre guns to be used in the bombardment of Russian forts passed through Berlin last week on the way to the Easter nfront, according to a Central News dispatch from Amsterdam.

Germans Tell of Mitau's Fall.

BERLIN, Aug. 2 (via London.)—Mitau, the capital of the Russian Province of Courland, 25 miles southwest of Riga, has been occupied by German troops, according to the official statement issued today by the German Army Headquarters Staff. Following is the official statement:

> In the Eastern war theatre: After fighting Mitau was occupied by our troops. The town on the whole is not damaged.
>
> East of Poniewicz fighting developed which is proceeding favorably for us.
>
>
> Northwest of Lomza our troops reached the Narew River after overcoming obstinate resistance at various points. One officer and 1,003 men were captured.
>
> On the remainder of the front to the Vistula we are advancing. We captured one officer and 550 men.
>
> Before Warsaw the situation is unchanged.
>
> In the southeastern war theatre: North of the heights near Podzance, which we captured July 31, our troops under General von Woyrsch yesterday advanced under heavy fighting through the wooded district eastward. The retreating enemy lost 1,500 prisoners and eight maehine guns.
>
>
> In the istula district, southwest of Lenczna, the army of Field Marshal von Meckensen still is being engaged by the Russians.
>
> German troops have gained a new success east of Kurow, capturing 600 prisoners.
>
>
> On the Bug River we have reached the district north of Dubienka.
>

"Heavy fighting has been resumed to the north of Lublin. There and on the front in the region of the Great Bend of the Vistula the Russians are trying to check the enegetic advance of the Austro-Germans in previously fortified positions, obviously aiming to meet the danger threatening Invangorod from the south. Their resistance is stronger than further to the east between the Wieprz and the Bug, where the retreat continued Saturday.

"The German-Austrian front in this section is everywhere in steady forward movement. Whenever the enemy tries to hold points of support he is driven back. The Russians have now abandoned their efforts to break the Austro-German lines further up the Bug in Galicia after weeks of heavy losses and diminutive success."

BULGARIA OPEN TO BEST OFFER

Premier Frankly Says So in Interview for a Budapest Paper.

SERBIA'S VIEW OF SITUATION

Ex-Minister Intimates Neighbor Must Not Be Too Exacting—Germany Takes Bulgar Loan.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUDAPEST, Aug. 2, (Dispatch to The London Morning Post.)—M. Radoslavoff, the Bulgarian Premier, has given an interview to the Sofia correspondent of Az Est. In answer to a question as to the result of the negotiations with Turkey, M. Radoslavoff said:

"There is much talk going on abroad about Bulgaria, but all I can say is the negotiations are proceeding quite satisfactorily."

The correspondent suggested that it was strange Bulgaria should be carrying on negotiations simultaneously with two groups of powers. N. Radoslavoff remarked:

"It is these negotiations that give us the chance to make a decision. Our country seeks only her own advantages and wishes to realize her rights. We have decided to gain these in any case. The only question to be settled is, how can we achieve our aim with the least sacrifice? As regards the internal situation of Bulgaria, I may proudly say that our conditions have improved and that everybody in the country looks forward to the great national undertaking we are about to embark on with immense joy and enthusiasm."

Commenting on this interview, the same paper says it does not convey anything else but that Bulgaria is resolved to join one side or the other. In any case, M. Radoslavoff is resolved to realize the national aspirations of Bulgarians, with whom or against whom he does not care. It argues that the winning over of Bulgaria or the losing of her help will be the greatest diplomatic success or blunder of the century.

Another interesting interview was published in the Bucharest Universul on the Balkan problem. M. Jovanovitch, the Serbian statesman, late Minister in Vienna, made a statement regarding the relations between Serbia and Bulgaria which throws some light on the situation from the Serbian point of view. M. Jovanovitch is known to be the right-hand man of Premier Paschitch; therefore his utterings are to be accepted as the views of official Serbia.

He first of all makes Bulgaria responsible for the Macedonia question, and, as the second Balkan War came about owing to the hunger of Bulgaria for conquest, she will have, he says, to submit to the requirements the situation demands today and be satisfied with what can justly be offered her. "In her own interest," he concluded, "Bulgaria ought to have fought on our side."

LONDON, Tuesday, Aug. 3.—A dispatch to The Exchange Telegraph Company from Geneva says:

"The statement that an agreement has been completed between Turkey and Bulgaria is denied by The Cologne Gazette, which says that the negotiations continue, and that the settlement of the new frontier is dependent on the outcome of several old outstanding disputes.

GERMANY GETS BULGAR LOAN.

To Redeem $24,000,000 Notes Out of $50,000,000 Advanced.

BERLIN, Aug. 2, (by Wireless to Sayville, L. I.)—Among the news items given out today by the Overseas News Agency is the following:

"According to the Colongne Gazette, a group of German bankers, headed by the Disconto Gesellschaft, has made a contract with the Bulgarian Government to take about 250,000,000 francs ($50,000,000) of the 5 per cent. Bulgarian gold loan of 1914.

"The Disconto Gesellschaft has been charged to redeem 120,000,000 francs ($24,000,000) of Bulgarian treasury notes, due early in August, at 81.25 marks per 100 francs."

LONDON, Tuesday, Aug. 3.—A wireless dispatch from Berlin says:

"The German bank coalition has an option on 250,000,000 francs ($50,000,000) of the 5 per cent. Bulgarian State loan, by means of which 120,000,000 francs ($24,000,000) of Bulgarian Treasury bonds are to be redeemed.

"The coalition is assured the right to an option until Aug. 1, 1817, to a further 250,000,000 of the State loan, and the right of railway and port construction in Bulgaria."

RUSSIA SATISFIED WITH ALLIES' AID

EFFORTS ARE APPRECIATED

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Pronouncements in the Duma at Petrograd and by Count Benckendorff, the Russian Ambassador at London, indicate that Russia and England are anxious to brand as unfounded the recurrent reports that the Russian people are disgruntled a the showing Great Britain and France have made in the west, which might create a situation unfavorable to the continued unity of the Allies.

No hint of a separate peace or of dissatisfaction with England's policy comes from any authoritative Rusisan source, and Count Benckendorff made it plain that there had been no criticism emanating from those who understood the military situation.

Count Benckendorff in a statement issued today reviewed Russia's position after a year of war, laid stress on the identity of aims of Russia and Great Britain, and asserted that peace was impossible "except on our conditions."

Commenting on the reports that Russia was dissatisfied with the efforts the Entente Allies were making in the west, the Ambassador said:

"It has been said that the Russian public hoped for a strong offensive in the west while the Germans were making their onset in the east. This may be so, but not a trace of ill feeling has been manifested, and the sober view which considers only military possibilities has always prevailed. Nowhere has the colossal effort of Great Britain and France in the Dardanelles been more appreciated than in Russia."

PETROGRAD, Aug. 2.—Semi-official press material issued at the General Staff Headquarters in Petrograd says:

"The sending of important German reinforcements from France to our front goes back to the second week of July, Russian style, when Field Marshal von Mackensen met a cruel rebuff on the Wieprz River and the battle on the Narew River took on a stubborn character.

"For every success we have the enemy compensated by piling up against us new forces from the western front, thereby creating very favorable conditions for operations by our allies."

LUSITANIA AS SUNG IN GERMAN MUSIC HALLS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, Aug. 3.—The Morning Post's Amsterdam correspondent forwards the text of a popular German music hall song, entitled "The Destruction of the Lusitania," described as a marching song by Rudolf Kuhn. The verses tell the following tale:

"She sailed for England from New York with contraband. She invited thousands to travel on board. But our submarine smelt a choice dish.

"The Lusitania sailed merrily along her criminal course; but the submarine was on the watch off Ireland's coast. She carried Americans, Englishmen, Frenchmen, Greeks, and Dutchmen to the dance of death.

"The submarine hit true. Those who were not suffocated were drowned. Vanderbilt was among them. It is a pity that Minister Grey was not there, too."

After references to complaints by mermaids at being disturbed by so many explosions and by vile gases emitted by the American ammunition, the poem continues:

So there the dead lay,
Most of them with their paws burnt,
England's sons and their companonsh.
Oh, how quiet they have become!
"So join now in a funeral song.
Build submarines as fast as possible.
Sink the enemy into a cool grave so that Germany may have peace."

Each verse has a rousing chorus.

It was feared that the military authorities might deem the evacuation of the city by the inhabitants a military necessity and would destroy a great part of the city to prevent its use by the Germans as a base.

Many wealthy residents left for the interior and many who have remained sent their families out during the past fortnight.

Stations and trains are overcrowded to discomfort, the number of passengers having been increased by necessary military precautions.

The streets which generally are thronged became deserted. The restaurants and coffee houses were empty, the inhabitants keeping indoors, seemingly fearful of some immediate disaster.

That period having passed with a realization that the city is to be spared, those remaining have taken up their normal trend of living.

The French and Belgian Consuls left the capital in the early days of German proximity, turning over their affairs to the American Consul, Hernando de Soto.

The city police and administrative authorities have continued their functions, thus operating to restore the confidence of the people.

In the meantime arrangements have been completed to substitute for the existing police and city authorities the Polish civic militia and government, should the former find it necessary to cease their activities. The civic militia has received full instructions and will take over the policing of the city and the nearby suburbs.

The civic administration embraces the criminal courts and has already entered upon that function to the extent of taking charge of prisoners. From the prisons most of the grave offenders have been removed to Central Russia and there remain only minor criminals and civic offenders.

Three daily newspapers have been suspended. One of them was founded in 1774 and was the organ of the Popular Democratic Party.

3,035,200 RUSSIANS TAKEN BY TEUTONS

Germans Report 8,000 Cannon and 3,000 Maxims Captured Since War Started.

BTRLIN, Aug. 2, (by Wireless to Sayville, N. Y.)—The German War Ministry furnishes in connection with the first anniversary of the war interesting figures relating to the successes of the Central Powers, says the Overseas News Agency. The statement follows:

"Prisoners of war taken in Galicia now in German camps and hospitals, or employed as workers, total 938,869; men captured in the campaign last week and on their way to camp number 120,000; prisoners in Austria-Hungary, 636,543, making a grand total of 1,695,412.

"Prisoners taken in Russia and now in Germany total 5.600 officers and 720,000 non-commissioned officers and privates; in Austria, 3,190 officers and 610,000 non-commissioned officers and privates; total, 8,790 officers and 1,330,000 men.

"German collecting stations received up to the middle of June 5,843 captured field guns and 1,556 machine guns. Many field pieces were not delivered to these stations, but were kept with the troops and are being used against their former owners. While exact figures are not available, it is estimated that nearly 8,000 guns and 3,000 machine guns have been captured."

FINE WINDAU $25,000.

First Act of Germans on Taking Possession of Russian City.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 2.—Refugees from Windau, on the Baltic, who have arrived at Riga, relate that the first act of the Germans in taking possession of Windau was to impose a levy of 50,000 rubles ($25,000) to be worked out by the inhabitants of the city on the roads and bridges and on their farms.

Windau is in Courland, 100 miles northwest of Mitau. Agricultural machinery was provided by the Germans, and the local farmers were ordered to proceed with their harvesting. They were told to bring in their grain to designated places, and that the producer of this grain would be permitted to retain one-fifth, the remainder going to Germany.

The German troops have been forbidden, these refugees continue, to discuss the war with the people of Windau. The inhabitants of the entire Windau community have been enrolled, and at the same time warned that if any man disappeared this would be the signal for the destruction of the estate on which he worked.

The Germans are said to be showing little respect for the Lettish pastors, many of whose homes have been looted.

$3,621,000,000 WAR COST.

Russia Will Have Spent That Sum by End of 1915, Minister Says.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 2.—Finance Minister Bark in an address to the Duma last night stated that in spite of enormous war expenses Russia had succeeded in finding sufficient funds, notwithstanding the loss of revenue caused by the prohibition of the sale of liquor, the tax upon which yielded 1,000,000,000 rubles ($500,000,000) annually.

He stated that the war expenses of Russia at the end of 1915 will amount to 7,242,000,000 rubles, ($3,621,000,000,) to cover which the Minister is projecting a series of credit operations. These operations were assured of success, M. Bark said, as the national savings had increased 1,800,000,000 rubles, ($900,000,000,) which proved that the country had sufficient resources.

This was due, the Minister insisted, entirely to the temperance of the people, and he asserted that prohibition must be maintained even after the war because of its salutary effect upon the nation.

KAISERIN BACK IN BERLIN.

Praised Energy of East Prussians in Rebuilding Ruined Homes.

BERLIN, Aug. 2, (via Wireless to Sayville, L. I.)—The German Empress, after traveling through East Prussia accompanied by the Crown Princess, has left Königsberg for Berlin.

Her Majesty wrote a letter to the civil authorities of Königsberg in which, according to the Overseas News Agency, she thanked the population for the hearty reception accorded her in spite of the misery caused by the two Russian invasions of last year.

"In the midst of the débris of devastated churches and houses," the Empress is quoted as writing, "I could observe the diligence, the industry, and the energy of the sturdy Prussians, who at once set to work to rebuild or repair their homes. Such efforts must gain a well-merited reward. The fact that the workers are returning to their homes carries the conviction that the East Prussians are not disheartened, but are firmly resolved to begin anew."

POPE'S PLEA A MONUMENT

But Allies Say "No" to Peace, Says the Cologne Gazette.

BERLIN, Aug. 2, (by Wireless to Sayville, L. I.)—Commenting on the appeal for peace issued last week by Pope Benedict the Cologne Gazette says:

"Pope Benedict has erected to his memory a lasting monument, deserving the great gratitude of mankind, far beyond that of Catholic circles, but it is met in London, Paris, Rome, and Petrograd with a sharp 'No!' Meanwhile Germany grasps her sword still more firmly and is ready to deal heavier blows to accomplish what religion and humanity are unable to accomplish and to secure an honorable and lasting peace."

10,000,000 PERSONS UNDER KAISER'S FLAG

And 30,000,000 Dependent on Government for Food, British Prize Court Is Told.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—At today's session of the meat cargo cases before a British prize court Sir Frederick E. Smith, the Solicitor General, produced an affidavit made by Major Eric Dillon, a member of the General Staff, giving a British estimate showing that the number of persons serving in the German Army and under the control of German military authority aggregates 10,000,000.

The statement was produced in support of the Crown's contention that persons employed in some of the ordinarily civilian occupations were now in the service of the German Government and no longer part of the civilian population; and that, therefore, the foodstuff seized by the British Government really was intended for Germany's military forces. Major Dillon's figures follow:

A—Under arms on two fronts, in garrisons in Belgium, and on lines of communications, 4,000,000.

B—In training in Germany, 750,000.

C—Casualties, including constant temporary wastage, 2,000,000.

D—On railways, all of which are used and organized especially for war and are controlled by the military authorities, 500,000.

E—At Krupp's arsenals and factories and other arsenals and factories concerned in the manufacture of war munitions, 750,000.

F—In coal mines and in factories concerned in making army boots, clothing, and other articles necessary in the equipment and provisioning of the army, 2,000,000.

Solicitor General Smith argued that the German Government reserved the right to substitute rations for money allowances to the wives and children of these men. Therefore, at the moderate figure of two dependents for each of the 10,000,000, he said, there would be 30,000,000 who might be dependent on the State for rations, so that it would be fair to assume that in all probability the seized goods were intended for Government use.

BERLIN PRESS THINKS IBERIAN WAS TO BLAME

Believes the Vessel Refused to Stop and Submarine was Forced to Shell Her.

From a Staff Correspondent.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 2, (via London.)—It is not believed here that the American casualties in the sinking of the Iberian will precipitate a crisis forcing action on the part of President Wilson. The feeling is that the Iberian case is like that of the Armenian.

The newspapers give no prominence to it except a short Rotterdam report. They refrain from all comment except the following:

"The steamer undoubtedly attempted to escape. Therefore the submarine was forced to compel her to stop by shell fire."

The submarine commander's report is not expected for a week or two.

SHOULD AVENGE THE IBERIAN.

London Newspaper Thinks Attack Calls for Action by Us.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Referring to the fact that Americans were killed and wounded among the crew of the Leyland liner Iberian, which was sunk by a German submarine, The Daily Chronicle says:

"In view of the concluding sentence of President Wilson's last note this circumstance makes the affair an international incident of some importance. On the face of it the Germans have done the very thing the United States has declared its intention of regarding as deliberately nufriendly. The German excuse will presumably be that the Iberian did not stop when summoned, but the evidence, as far as we have any, does not point to this having been the case."

LEELANAW SAILOR IN JAIL.

German Masquerading as Dutchman Gets Six Months.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 2.—Charles Reh of the crew of the American steamer Leelanaw, which was sunk last week by a German submarine, was sentenced to six months in jail today. When questioned concerning his nationality he said he was a Hollander, but subsequently he admitted that he was born in Bremen and had served in the German Army.

Reh was about to embark for New York on board the American Line steamer St. Paul when he made the statement to the alien officer which led to his arrest.

Germany Awaits Iberian Report.

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—The German authorities have not yet received a report on the sinking of the Leyland Line steamship Iberian. In accordance with previous experience it is probable that ten days or a fortnight may elapse before the Admiralty is in a position to make a report on th incident.

DERIDE KAISER'S WORDS.

French and Italian Papers Discuss Responsibility for War.

PARIS, Aug. 2.—Emperor William's address to his people on the anniversary of the war was the subject of lengthy and sacrastic comment today in the French press. The German Emperor's assertion that he did not want war evokes again a discussion of responsibility.

The Temps says:

"The Emperor dwells longer than usual on ideas of peace."

The Journal Des Débates remarks:

"Nobody, not even the most neutral of neutrals, will believe that Serbia threatened Austria; that Belgium plotted to humiliate Germany, or that the Triple Entente prepared ten years for war, for which in the beginning they visibly were lacking in the very arms essential."

MILAN, Italy, Aug. 2.—Commenting on Emperor William's address to the German people issued Saturday, the Secolo says:

"To the Emperor's oaths of innocence Europe and the whole civilized world already have replied that he is not telling the truth. His troops have so far been conquering because of their superior preparations. He accuses Europe of preparing ten years for war while Germany for thirty years sharpened her arms for aggression."

GUARDS COTTON SUPPLY.

Germany Takes Control of Entire Manufacturing Industry.

ROTTERDAM, Aug. 2, (via London.)—German newspapers report that the Government is taking over the entire control of the German cotton industry. The order which has been issued says:

"From Aug. 1 all textile factories in Westphalia will be worked under State control as part of an arrangement to provide for an equitable division of cotton among the factories in Germany."

GERMANS USE FIRE IN ARGONNE FIGHT

FRENCH GAIN IN ALSACE

Report Capture of Several Trenches and Heavy Losses Among the Defenders.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The Germans on the west front have again used flames to aid their attack, this time in the Argonne region. A violent offensive was launched at the same time the flaming liquid was directed against the French lines. By this means the Germans succeeded in gaining a foothold in the French trenches, but a counter-attack won back most of the ground, according to the French report.

In the region north of Arras, the scene of much bitter fighting, the French report the occupation of a section of a trench along the road between Oblain and Augres.

On the eastern end of the line engagements have been renewed north of Münster, in Alsace. Paris reports the capture of several trenches here and heavy losses among the Germans.

Around the St. Mihiel wedge the Germans have taken the offensive, and several infantry attacks have been made.

The activity of the artillery has been less marked in Artois and the Valley of the Aisne. A number of shells have been thrown into Arras and Soissons.

In the Argonne spirited infantry engagements occurred on the night of Aug. 1-2. In the region of Hill 213 the Germans occupied one of our trenches, which a counter-attack by our troops recovered in part.

During the course of the day, after having made use of flaming liquid, the enemy launched a violent attack against our trenches in the region of Marie-Thérèse and succeeded in gaining a foothold in one of them. We immediately counter-attacked and regained the greater part of the ground lost.

On the heights of the Meuse and in the Woevre there was the usual cannonade, more intense around Champion.

In the Vosges a succession of engagements have been going on since the evening of Aug. 1 before the positions which we conquered on the heights of the Linge, of Schratzmannele and of Barrenkopf. We have carried several German trenches, inflicting on the enemy heavy losses and taking fifty prisoners belonging to two different regiments.

The French War Office in the afternoon gave out this statement:

The evening of Aug. 1 and the night of Aug. 1-2 were marked by various infantry encounters.

In the Artois district, after having repulsed several German attacks with hand grenades, we took possession of a section of a trench along the road between Ablain and Angres, to the north of the national highway running between Bethune and Arras.

In the vicinity of Souchez the firing has been going on with handgrenades and bombs, but it has brought no change on the front line either to one side or the other.

In the Champagne district, along the front between Perthes and Beauséjour, there was yesterday fighting with mines, in which we had the advantage.

In the Argonne, not far from Marie-Thérèse, and in the vicinity of St. Hubert, the Germans, after a spirited fight, in which bombs were used, made several attempts to launch attacks, but they were repulsed.

On the heights of the Meuse, between Les Eparges and the Calonne trench, the enemy yesterday made three different attacks upon our position. Our artillery and our infantry fire succeeded in checking these attacks.

Pont-à-Mousson and the villages of Maidières and Manoncourt-sur-Seille were bombarded yesterday from the air with incendiary shells.

The official German statement follows:

West of the Argonnes by a surprise bayonet attack we occupied several enemy trenches, capturing four officers and 142 men and taking one machine gun.

In the Vosges the French in the evening again attacked our lines of Schratzmannele-Barrenkopf and violent fighting proceeded all night. The French were repulsed.

At Lingekopf fresh fighting also is proceeding. At several points on this front we successfully exploded mines.

South of the Ban-de-Sapt our artillery shot down a French captive balloon.

NEW TROOPS FOR THE WEST.

Fully 140,000 Germans Said to Have Passed Through Luxemburg.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 2, (Dispatch to The London Morning Post.)—The Luxemburg correspondent of the Tyd reports that 140,000 men have passed in ten days through Luxemburg on their way to the western war theatre. The correspondent adds that the soldiers did not display any enthusiasm, and appeared warworn and jaded.

COL. DESCLAUX DEGRADED.

Officer Convicted of Stealing Supplies to Serve Seven Years.

PARIS, Aug. 2.—Colonel François Desclaux, ex-Paymaster General of the French Army, who on March 27 was sentenced by a military court-martial to seven years' solitary confinement after being convicted on the charge of stealing military stores, was degraded this morning at the military school without incident.

Colonel Desclaux, who was chief secretary to Joseph Caillaux when the latter was Minister of Finance, was arrested in Paris in January, charged with stealing military supplies and sending them to the home of Mme. Bechoff, a well-known dressmaker of the French capital.

The trial created a sensation in Paris on account of the political connections of the army officer and the prominence of the dressmaker.

Mme. Bechoff, in whose house about a ton of war material, consisting of packages of coffee, tents, trophies of war, big shells, and helmets, was found, also was declared guilty and sentenced to two years in prison. A soldier named Verges, who was accused of aiding in the thefts, was sentenced to one year in prison.

FRENCH ACCUSE FOE OF INHUMAN ACTS

Commission Offers Evidence That Wounded and Prisoners Were Killed.

PARIS, Aug. 2.—The commission presided over by Georges Payelle, President of the French Court of Accounts, has presented to Premier Viviani the final report of its investigations into acts on the part of German soldiers in violation of the rights of man.

This report contains 12,000 words, and gives in detail the evidence gathered concerning the use by German troops of military and civilian prisoners as shields against the fire of French troops, as well as of the employment by the troops of Emperor William of cartridges in which the bullets were reversed in order to cause more serious wounds; split bullets, and other bullets cut to make them more rending.

Continuing the report cites orders given by General Stenger, commander of the Fifty-eighth German Brigade, ordering his soldiers to kill the wounded enemy and to take no more prisoners. Evidence confirming the issuing and the circulation of this order was obtained from German prisoners belonging to the 112th and 142d Regiments. The report contains also evidence of the massacre of French soldiers as a result of this order, as well as the massacre of wounded men after the battle of Fethe in Belgium. It presents the allegations of many individual soldiers who declare they saw their wounded comrades put to death by a rifle shot, a revolver shot, the thrust of a bayonet, or a blow from the butt of a musket by German soldiers, subaltern officers, and officers. Some of the French witnesses testified that they themselves had been objects of such aggressive attacks after having been wounded, and that they had survived.

The report devotes considerable space to allegations of the inhumanity of the Germans to their prisoners of war, which it says is proven by the evidence of the victims. Many prisoners of war have been shot, while others have had their skulls crushed by blows from the butt of a musket. At St. Dié thirty French prisoners were assassinated in this manner by Bavarian troops. The truth of this is vouched for by five men who actually witnessed the executions. Other men who appeared before the commission declared that they had found the dead bodies of a French patrol numbering seven men, an infantry corporal and six privates, with their hands tied behind their backs and dead from rifle shots. This incident was further supported by evidence taken before a Justice of the Peace.

The report concludes with three columns of evidence to prove the bombarding of ambulances by the Germans; the firing upon stretcher bearers, and the taking prisoner of surgeons. In some cases, it is set forth, French surgeons were arrested by German surgeons and by them sent to the rear to be interned.

Several cases are cited in which German wounded, succored by Frenchmen, are alleged to have taken the opportunity to kill those going to their relief.

WILL SET WILSON FREE.

Germany Grants Our Request for Accused Consular Clerk.

BERLIN, Aug. 2, (via London.)—Harry L. Wilson of Portland, Ore., and Washington, the clerk in the American Consulate in Berlin, who was arrested last week on a charge made by the German authorities of assisting a British subject to obtain an American passport in order to escape from Germany, will be released tomorrow at the request of the American Government and sent back to the United States.

James W. Gerard, the American Ambassador, today had the clerk brought to the Embassy and subjected him to a vigorous cross-examination as to the source of the money, which it is alleged, he sent to his home, but without result.

Wilson, it is alleged, certified that he personally knew the applicant for the passport as an American citizen, which enabled him to obtain the document. When the affair was about to be discovered Wilson disappeared from Berlin, but was arrested at the Swedish frontier and brought back to the capital.

GOD HELPED, SAYS KAISER.

Points Upward When Congratulated on German Success.

COLOGNE, Tuesday, Aug. 3, (via London.)—Cardinal Hartmann, Archbishop of Cologne, said in the course of the cathedral service Sunday that he had congratulated Emperor William a few weeks ago upon the favorable military developments in the east, and that the Emperor pointed upward and replied in a tone of the deepest conviction: "He up there has helped us."

INVENT NEW RESPIRATOR.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The staff of Melbourne University, according to a Reuter dispatch from Melbourne, has united in the invention of a respirator reported to be 100 per cent more effective than any now in use in the European war theatre.

McADOO VISITS PRESIDENT.

Unannounced Conference May Turn to National Defense Topics.

CORNISH, N. H., Aug. 2.—Secretary McAdoo of the Treasury Department arrived here unexpectedly today to see President Wilson. He explained tonight that he came for a social visit, but added that he probably would discuss department matters before leaving.

The decision of the President to pay particular attention to national defense in his next message to Congress gave rise to reports here that he desired to discuss the financial condition of the Government with Mr. McAdoo. No comment on the report could be obtained at the Summer White House tonight.

The Secretary, with Mrs. McAdoo, the President's daughter, made a twenty-two hour trip, most of it by automobile, from North Haven, Me., to Windsor. Mr. McAdoo and the President talked with other visitors tonight. They will discuss business questions tomorrow morning.

The fiscal affairs of the Government, including the condition of the Treasury, have occupied the President's attention recently because he soon will have to begin considering his message to Congress. He has also been planning to pay more attention than formerly to co-ordinating the income and expenses of the Government.

In the near future he will discuss with members of the committe enamed on the subject by the House at the last session of Congress the possibility of establishing a budget system.

Secretary and Mrs. McAdoo left their baby daughter, who has been ill recently, at North Haven. The child has almost recovered. They plan to go by automobile tomorrow to Boston and then continue to their Summer home by train.

'FRIENDS OF PEACE' ATTACK LANSING

Secretary of State Called Upon by Pro-Germans to Modify His Views or Resign.

SAY HIS ACTS SPELL WAR

"Millionaire Clique" and "Capitalist Press" Accused of Plotting to Embroil the Country.

The "Friends of Peace," representing the German-American Alliance of Greater New York, the German Catholic Federation of New York the "American Truth Society," the German-American Peace Society, the United Austrian and Hungarian-American Societies, the "American Fair Play Society," and various other organizations of pro-German origin, issued a statement last night in which Robert Lansing, Secretary of State, was attacked. The letterhead of the Friends of Peace carries the names of the men scheduled to act as Vice Presidents of the National Peace Convention to be held in Chicago next month. These names include those of two Justices of the Supreme Court of New York State, namely, John W. Goff and Daniel Cohalan. Others are Henry Weissmann, who was quoted as denouncing President Wilson as a "political bankrupt" at Utica last week; Edmund von Mach, the Boston pro-German propagandist; Jeremiah O'Leary, the man who engineered the meetings of the "American Truth Society in the Cort Theatre last Winter at which the policies of the Wilson Administration were denounced; Richard Bartholdt, the former German-American Congressman from St. Louis; Professor William L. Shepherd of Columbia University and Paul Mueller.

The Secretary of State is denounced in the statement as "one whose radicalism is liable to plunge the nation into war," and announcement is made that the National Peace Convention at its Chicago meeting will be called upon to demand of Secretary Lansing that "he employ more conservatism and deliberation in his official acts, or, if by nature he is deprived of such qualities, that he surrender his high post to one possessing them and whose official acts, therefore, will not be a menace to the peace and prosperity of this country at such a critical period.

"Just at this juncture," the statement goes on to say, "the country needs a Secretary whose conduct is calculated to avoid war, not to precipitate it. It needs a man of high statesmanship in the Secretary's chair, one who is neutral in his views, not partisan or militant; one who is a friend of the masses, not of the classes."

Here are some of the alleged reasons set forth for the need of a "high order of diplomacy and regard for the public weal" in the conduct of the Secretary of State:

That there is strong evidence of a deliberate plot to involve this nation in the European war.

That any sensible person knows that no nation of Europe is seeking war with America at this time, when each has all it can bear in the existing struggle, and that if we become involved it will be entirely at the instigation of our militarist agitators.

That the same subtle influences which dragged the Italian Kingdom into the war, against the people's will, is at work in America, and along identical lines.

That the "millionaire clique" are loudest in their cry for war, being urged on by the triple incentive to avenge the death of one of their members, to enhance their power over the commonalty, and to make good their loans to England, which loans England has threatened to repudiate if she should lose the war.

That the capitalist-controlled press has been made the medium for stirring up a war fever in this country, just as was the case in Italy, and that the news and editorial columns of these jingo papers allege a war sentiment which does not exist; that the efforts of the jingo press to arouse the people to favor war have failed utterly, and that if a vote were taken nine-tenths of the people would be for peace.

The statement then explains that "The Friends of Peace" is a "central body" affiliated with organizations of "every class, religion, and creed." Follows a reference to the recent pro-German meeting in Madison Square Garden, in which is repeated the statement made at the Utica convention of the German-American Alliance that the meeting was "attended by 100,000 persons." Madison Square Garden, when filled to capacity, seats fewer than 14,000 persons. The present agitation is the direct outgrowth, it is stated, of their mass meeting and another subsequently held in San Francisco.

The same organization issued a statement Saturday night, attacking the newspapers that were not pro-German.

A second statement given out last night says that among those invited to address the Chicago meeting are W. J. Bryan, Charles Nagel, ex-Secretary of Commerce; Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia, Senator Works of California, Miss Jane Addams, ex-Governor Pennypacker of Pennsylvania and "Cyclone" Davis of Texas.

TO BUY RUSSIAN MUNITIONS.

Gen. Harmonius Here—S. G. Talbot to Purchase Railway Material.

Major Gen. Edward Harmonius of the artillery branch of the Russian Army arrived yesterday from Petrograd, via Liverpool, on the Anchor liner Cameronia to buy war munitions for the Russian Army. He is accompanied by his secretary, Ivan Petroffsky; Prince Andrew Gagarin, and Stafford G. Talbot, an Englishman, who has been for many years in the service of the Russian Government. Mr. Talbot is here to purchase rolling stock and other materials for the new railroad that is being constructed from Petrograd to the little used port of Kola, not far from Archangel.

An American engineer named Sharp is in charge of the railroad, which was commenced at both ends, and has set a new pace for that kind of construction work in Russia, Mr. Petroffsky said.

ASKS GERMANY FOR CARS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, Aug. 2, (Dispatch to The London Times.)—The question of the export of the harvest this year is taking a serious turn. The Dardanelles being closed, the only country to which it is possible to export the surplus is Germany. The number of wagons owned by Rumania is not sufficient to convey the enormous quantity of cereals, and it has become necessary to apply to Germany to supply the -ed ficiency.

Germany is seeking by this means to put pressure on the Rumanian Government in order to obtain transit of munitions to Turkey. I am assured by a well-informed source that the Government will not yield to this pressure.

GERMAN-AMERICAN ALLIANCE CONVENTION

Delegates Represent 2,500,000 Members—Hope for German Victory Expressed.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—The German-American National Alliance, with a membership of more than two and a half million in the United States, began its eighth biennial convention here today. There were assembled 550 delegates from all parts of the country.

Dr. C. J. Hexamer of Philadelphia, President of the Alliance, at a banquet tonight made many references to the European war in his address, which he ended with the toast, "Good luck to the German and Austro-Hungarian arms on land, on the water, and in the air."

The war, he said, for the time being had placed the work and progress of the German nation in the background, but had not diminished the ambitions of the people.

"German-American citizens know now, and knew from the beginning of the war a year ago, that Germany was fighting for an open door on the seas as well as on the land," said Dr. Hexamer. "Cconscientious German-Americans knew immediately after the war began that the principle for which the German nation was fighting will bring the world nearer to a universal peace than all the efforts of all the pacificists and other well-meaning dreamers.

"Beginning with the first days in August, 1914, it was necessary for us to make great sacrifices. It was also necessary for us to foster German-American relationship as a part of the great principle for which the Fatherland is fighting. While the hostilities last and th ehorizon is clouded, we cannot expect that our German-American position and the far-sighted powers of our organization will be fully understood and acknowledged.

"My friends, I do not want to be prophetic, but yet I want to say that the future will prove us right. The time will and must come when the American—even the now boldest Anglo-American—will admit that the German-American is the most Americanized and therefore the most human of all neutral American citizens. They will praise us as much as fellow-citizens as we are now being condemned by a small minority."

Next Thursday is German Day at the Exposition. On one evening in the course of the convention there is to be a torchlight procession. It is expected that 50,000 German-Americans will take part in it.

COREY PREDICTS THREE YEARS OF WAR

Returning From France, He Urges America to Prepare, Though He Favors Peace.

William E. Corey, former President of the United States Steel Corporation, returned yesterday on the French liner Espagne, after being abroad four months at his château, twelve miles southeast of Paris. He said that Mrs. Corey had thrown open the château for the use of convalescent French officers, who were coming and going all the time.

"This war is one of chemistry and mechanics," said Mr. Corey, "and the Allies are preparing to continue it for three years longer, if necessary. It is problematical if they wish the United States to be at war with Germany. Rather, I would say, they would prefer our financial support. Although I early had militaristic leanings, I have come back a man of peace in this way: I have no use for the man who wants peace at any price, but I have less use for the so-called patriot who says war at any cost.

"Rather I should wish to see the United States so well prepared that no country could afford to wage war with her, but we are in no shape now, and it will take two years at least before we are a first-class power. At present we might fight Portugal or Liberia, but we could make no showing against a great military nation.

"Russia, it seems to me, from the latest reports, will have to reorganize her armies, and can hardly be in an aggressive stage until another Spring. Everywhere, however, Grand Duke Nicholas is acknowledged as the military genius and strategist of Europe. Russia needs much material, especially manufactured iron, and business is bound to be good in this country, with so much exported and all branches of business feeling the stimulus.

"President Wilson is considered one of the greatest rulers of the world by people abroad, and he certainly is one of the greatest Presidents we ever had, because he has kept the country out of war and controlled the Democratic Party, which no mortal ever did before.

"The watchword in this country must be prepare, prepare, and I can understand the German-Americans here who cannot see our point of view. Nor can they send munitions of war from here. Hence their condition of mind."

Several French soldiers from the Island of St. Pierre Michelon arrived on the Espange on their way home after serving in the trenches, and will leave on Saturday for St. John's, Newfoundland, by the Red Cross steamer Florizel.

Captain Laurent of the Espagne said that he did not sight any submarines or war vessels of any kind on the voyage from Bordeaux.

KAISER'S LUSITANIA WARNING

Edward Legge Says the Emperor Knew Liner Was Doomed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The Daily News says that Edward Legge, whose books on the career of King Edward VII. created a sensation, has brought out in a volume entitled "The Public and Private Life of Kaiser Wilhelm II.," what the newspaper describes as "a remarkable piece of evidence as to the complicity of the Kaiser in the Lusitania crime."

"An American gentleman," he declares, "who had founded an organization for succoring our troops and those of our allies, was sending his son out to further his benevolent work, and having been long on intimate terms with the Emperor, he wrote to inform him that his son would be passing through Germany, and expressed the hope that the young man would not be interfered with. By return post came a letter from the Kaiser in his own peculiar handwriting imploring his friend not to allow his son to take passage to England on board the Lusitania. Herr Ballin and Count von Bernstorff may have suggested the commission of the crime, but we have here the Kaiser's own admission that he knew all about it and sanctioned it."

ITALY'S CHIEFS SEE BIG SUCCESS NEAR

FORT HENSEL NEAR ITS END

Surrender Will Menace Austrian Communications Between Carinthia and Trentono.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TURIN, Aug. 2, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—For the first time since the beginning of the war, General Cadorna, in his latest communiqué, discloses a fairly full account of his tactical action, which proves how co-ordinated is the Italian plan of war over the whole front.

Whether the Tarvis group of fortifications will fall first or those of Tolmino and Gorizia, the result will be the same, namely, the Austrian line of defense of the eastern frontier from extreme Carnia right down to the Adriatic shore will suffer utter collapse.

Supposing Gorizia first succumbs. The Austrians will be obliged to wheel round to the east with their right wing under cover of the Tarvis forts, to make another stand, first on the River Idria and thereafter on the River Save. That would mean the abandonment of the land defense of the entire Istrian Peninsula, and reliance solely on the front between Fiume and Agram for stopping the Italian invasion of the Hungarian plain.

Supposing, instead, Tarvis proper should start knuckling down. The Austrians would then perforce retreat to the Drave River in order to block the road to Vienna. Moreover, the Austrian armies now operating along the middle and lower Isonzo would thereby be compelled to fall back considerably so as to avert the grave danger of being surrounded.

Cadorna allows the fact to become known today that Fort Hensel, less than a mile outside Marlborghetto, is in its death agony. Thus before long we shall see the communications cut on the great Austrian highway between the Carinthian and Trentino provinces, and the Italian Jack Johnsons growling against Tarvis.

ITALIANS HAVE 17,000 CAPTIVES

They Allow Them Same Rations as Their Own Soldiers Get.

ROME, Aug. 1.—Prisoners taken by the Italian forces now number 17,000, including 380 officers, according to an announcement made by the Stefani News Agency.

Prisoners come from all parts of Austria-Hungary. While under the surveillance of Italian troops, they are under the direct command of their own superiors. Their rations are the same as those served to the Italian soldiers.

FERRERO ESTIMATES KAISER IN HISTORY

Historian Predicts Execration Through Centuries of William II. and His Chiefs.

MILAN, Aug. 2.—Guglielmo Ferrero, the Italian historian, examining in the Secola the first year of the war, says that it is "the greatest tragedy ever experienced by one generation." He attributes it to insensate pride helped by the weakness of Governments, by the powerlessness of parties, by the lightness of public opinion and by the fatuity of the intellectual classes.

"On the council of Generals, which, presided over by Emperor William, decreed at Potsdam a universal war on the evening of July 29," he says, "will rest implacable execration throughout the centuries and condemnation in history. Those who within an hour took the most inhuman decision recorded in history were able to do so because in the mind of the public the sense of proportion had been extinguished."

Sig. Ferrero thinks that after the catastrophe it will be impossible to reconstruct new order unless "our generation adopts virtues so far neglected: namely, those of humility, firmness, simplicity and a reasonable judgment of life and things."

"This is our duty," he concluded, "to the memory of the millions of men who have fallen in this terrible year while defending Europe and her liberty against German aggression."

ITALY BARS BOY SOLDIERS.

Grief and Indignation Follow Setting of 18 as Age Limit.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

UGANO, Aug. 2, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—The Italian volunteer corps are in deep distress as a result of a recent Government order. The trouble arises from a new rule that no volunteer is to be accepted under the age of 18. All those who have been enrolled below this age are to be sent home:

When this order was made known and the youths of 16 and 17 serving in the ranks were told to give up their arms and uniform and return home the discipline of the volunteers underwent a severe trial. The sudden disappointment was too much for the feelings of the newly-made soldiers, and the sentiments expressed regarding the Minister were such that any court-martial would have judged them highly subversive of discipline.

When the time for parting came many of the boys broke down and wept.

CENSORSHIP A WEAKNESS

Officers, Failures as Soldiers, Put in Charge of the War News of a Democratic People.

By ROBERT R. McCORMICK.

LONDON, July 10.—To appreciate the nation of Great Britain at war it is necessary to summarize her recent history.

After obtaining supremacy at sea she proceeded to conquer all the territory of the world that was unable to protect itself. Contemporaneously with the development of steam and steel there was found in the islands the greatest deposits of coal and iron in Europe.

This brought about two conditions—an enormous increase in the national wealth and the transformation from an agricultural to a manufacturing country.

Land was held in England, as elsewhere in Europe, in a few large ownerships.

France, Prussia, and Russia at various times have divided the land among the inhabitants. This was too unconstitutional for England. She therefore repealed the corn laws, giving the people cheap food, rendering the cultivation of English land unprofitable, and rendering the nation dependent for food upon importation, and hence upon a continued control of the sea.

England has retained control of the sea, and as a nation has acquired the habit of mind of a successful middle-aged man. For years the Englishman's ideal has been not the acquisition of more wealth, but of more rest and more recreation.

This has been the desire of the workman as much as that of the business man and capitalist.

Vast wealth has come to England. The accident of ownership, as well as the laws of taxation and inheritance, has tended to great inequality in its distribution. Hence political activity for at least half a century has centred around the distribution of existing national wealth, not its increase. It has been more like America during the preceding decade.

Workmen listened to the preaching of a world-wide union against employers, not realizing that in the empire adjoining employers and workmen were co-operating to seize the advantageous trade position of England, and employers and employed alike take from the English the advantage that nature and the forefathers had given them.

It was upon a people thus preoccupied that the war burst in August, 1914.

Government Relied on Kitchener.

The Government did all that a democratic Government could do. It put its best-known General in charge of the war and gave him a free hand.

Lord Kitchener had conquered the Mahdi of Egypt and had done capable work in the conquest of South Africa. After Earl Roberts, he was the chief military figure of a nation given to worshipping the men who bring distinction to it.

He was hailed as possessing all the ability that Wellington had possessed and even as much as Englishmen had been taught to believe Wellington had possessed.

That Kitchener was a far-sighted man and a strong man was shown by his insistence upon an army of a million men and adequate training before taking the field, something England was unprepared to consider.

He came to power with all an English or American officer's unfamiliarity with his nation.

Besides these, denied all opportunity to work out a scheme of war adapted to the habits and interests of his people, he had swallowed whole the best ready-made plan—the Prussian.

Thus, when in the first panic of war England substantially turned the government of the country over to Kitchener and asked him to perform a miracle, one of his first acts was to attempt to direct the press, in emulation of the Prussian principle. In Prussia the press is a weak estate held in contempt and the governing hand is strong and able.

The English publicists, who have substantially dominated world public opinion for a century in the interest of the British Empire, were put under the governance of men who knew nothing of journalism and were considered too weak to work at their own profession—war.

Of course England lacked any comprehensive military system, lacked military knowledge and knowledge of military needs. Her immediate need was education, which, with a little intelligent help, the British press was eager to give.

Such knowledge the bungling censors, puffed up by sudden authority, venting at last pent-up resentment against Government and press, refused to give.

But before detailing this let us examine what were England's facilities for making an army and what she has accomplished.

Although the country had refused to follow the army's far-seeing advice and introduce universal service, it was far from ignoring all warning.

The Territorial System.

A system of "territorials" was introduced, composed of 18,000 cavalry and over 200,000 infantry, and which met in annual manoeuvres with the regulars every year.

As graduates of the Boer war were a number of semi-trained troops and semi-educated officers.

The colleges and public schools in recent years had conducted courses in which were taught the rudiments of military education.

This gave England a start which we, for instance, cannot equal. The disadvantage was that the amateur soldiers did not appreciate the short distance they had traveled on the road of soldiering.

The territorials volunteered very well and many battalions of them have been already sent to the front, where they have behaved gallantly.

It was, perhaps, the salvation of the country that a radical Government was in power when the war came. Extreme members of the Cabinet resigned; some were unwilling to attack their former colleagues; others who did were largely discredited. The Opposition became the leaders in support of the Government's war policy.

The veterans of the African campaign almost all returned to the colors. The leisure class was delighted to find occupation, especially occupation in support of their country.

Volunteers flocked to the colors, and they did so without any idea that they were going to a picnic.

They went to work to learn to become soldiers. They realized from the casualty list of the regulars that this war was no African campaign. Enlistments were made, not for sixty days or six months, but for the whole war.

But to raise an army of 1,000,000 men and not disturb business—the first idea—is no easy thing. A number of expedients were tried. Posters were put up all over England calling for volunteers, while the Press Bureau was busy sending out stories—false ones—giving the impression that volunteers were not needed.

They encouraged regiments of particular classes to enlist together, they lessened the requirements in regard to age and physique, they used men of the extreme ages in the same battalions.

Kitchener said the army would be ready in May. In August, and again in October, the Russian Army sacrificed itself to reduce the pressure on the French-English-Belgian front. Now, in July, the Austrians and Germans are massing against the Russians and Kitchener's army is not ready to advance.

In March Sir John French attempted an advance, but was unsuccessful. In May the Germans attacked with gas and almost broke through. Only the extraordinary courage of the Canadians (of whom more in another article) prevented them.

To all soldiers the fact had become plain that as a military factor Great Britain was negligible.

The military in control of the press forbade telling the people the truth that the Germans knew well enough. Without educating the people it was impossible to make such a military organization as could count in this war. England was struck on a dead centre.

Northcliffe's Campaign.

At this time Lord Northcliffe, proprietor of The Times, The Daily Mail, and other papers, took a patriotic rôle.

"Friend of my heart, is it meet or wise to warn a King of his enemies?" wrote Kipling.

The people have keen King of England for long, and so accustomed to flattery as to resent unpleasant truths.

Northcliffe began to print a part of the truth about the situation. He began to criticise the people in power—the men who were popularly supposed to be doing the impossible. People who were too patriotic to face facts, or who were afraid to do so, burned The Times publicly.

The bigoted Press Bureau promptly prosecuted Northcliffe upon a trumped-up charge, and an English Judge, following up the custom which makes an Englishman the only man in the world safe from official malice and popular outcry, dismissed the case.

Northcliffe continued his campaign, and not without animus.

The expedition to take the Dardanelles failed. The Lusitania was torpedoed.

Winston Churchill had ridden roughly in his career, and became the first sacrifice to the situation.

His career in the Admiralty since the outbreak of the war must be judged after the lapse of time. No one knows today whether it was good or bad.

But, as a man largely responsible for the maintenance of the power of the British Navy in the face of the opposition of many of those upon whom he depended for political life, he should have more charity than the British public gives him.

He has acted the part of patriot that Secretary Garrison is acting with us.

The dismissal of Winston Churchill, while it has soothed some irritated nerves and may, or may not, have improved the efficiency of the Navy Department, could not, and did not, change the military situation, which was that Great Britain, by far the richest and greatest manufacturing country in the war, was turning out less than one-tenth of the munitions turned out by any of the other contestants, and was unable decently to supply her army in the field, so far from providing for the new, great army in training.

The fault is partly due, no doubt, to the military authorities, who had had no opportunity of becoming acquainted with affairs on a large scale, and who, in the first glow of new found authority, were unwilling to associate with themselves competent business men.

It was due in a greater part to the workmen who insisted on limiting the output per man, as they had become accustomed to do during the many years of easy peace England's advantageous position had brought them. They were never told how serious was the situation of the nation; on the contrary, they were entirely deceived at the beginning of the war, and have been given only a small part of the truth to date.

Government Now Aroused.

The Government is now fully awake to the seriousness of the situation. The War Department officials have learned that they cannot do all the work themselves.

The plan is forming to make Great Britain a nation at war in the same sense that Germany, Austria, France, and Russia are at war; but with no governmental machinery to do this with and with a public mind unaccustomed to such discipline, the task is herculean.

Leading politicians have sounded warning in the most rousing speeches and in the same issue of the paper that these warnings have been produced the military Press Bureau and headline writers have discounted the speeches by representing some minor skirmish as a substantial victory and by announcing a substantial defeat as a strategic retirement.

The most forceful radical politician in Great Britain, Lloyd George, has taken upon himself the leadership in bringing the union workingmen under martial law.

Patriotically he put all the popularity he had acquired in leading the laborers against their employers and all his subtlety as a political campaigner to the service of the nation.

Many of his former colleagues were unable to see the necessity of the measure he introduced; some were of a type of mind that could not have seen it if the Prussian Imperial Guard was goose-stepping in Trafalgar Square. They intrenched themselves upon the unstormed heights of union rules and awaited his attack.

He broke the tension, he confused the issue. Followed Babel, and from Babel such a law is being enacted as the Czar of Russia has not decreed. Everybody is busy blaming everybody else, but they are working to an agreement to place the blame on the army.

It will take a strong combination of tact and firmness to make the law work without causing civil discord; indeed, at the moment of writing a strike of the South Wales coal miners threatens the nation with defeat.

However, the nation is on the right track in handling the munitions question—that is, all of it excepting the Press Bureau.

The more serious problem which confronts the nation is the formation of an army large enough and at the same time efficient enough to meet the Germans in the open field.

Voluntary System Collapsed.

Where small armies suffice it is evident that voluntary armies are better than armies trained by universal service, because the more adventurous volunteer and those not up to the physical requirements may be rejected, but where a substantial proportion of the nation is needed for the war the voluntary system must collapse utterly, as it has in England.

In collecting a large volunteer army men must be tempted in every way. They must be allowed to form special regiments of different classes, so that while one regiment may contain 100 men fit to be officers another regiment may contain less than ten.

Men of ages varying from 20 to 40 may be in the same regiment and men from the strongest to the weakest in physique may be put in the same regiment, with a result that a group of such regiments is worth about half as much as an equal number of men grouped according to the Prussian system.

Eyewitnesses who were present at the reoccupation of Przemysl by the Germans speak of the fact that the active troops occupied the fortress, and that as soon as it was in their possession the landwehr, or older men, took their places and the young men were again put in the field to attack.

In occupying fortresses and lines of trenches middle-aged men are substantially as good as the youngest. Germany uses her middle-aged men for this kind of work, and the young men for active work.

Under the voluntary system, where old and young are mixed together, half the regiment of young men are immobilized in permanent fortifications, and regiments composed in half of oldish men are sent on long marches, with the result that half the regiment is left on the roadside. It must be plain that the latter form of organization can never defeat the former.

Let it be borne in mind that Great Britain had organized a voluntary army infinitely better than a voluntary army has ever been organized before, and has allowed less politics to interfere than had been thought possible. It has exceeded every standard of a voluntary army that has ever been imagined, and yet has demonstrated just one thing—that a large voluntary army cannot compete with universal service troops.

How can it, when a Major commanding 500 men has less military education than a Sergeant commanding thirty men; yes, and often less military education than a private commanding only himself?

Kitchener's army has, therefore, done one great thing—it has shown that the whole military system of Great Britain must be revolutionized, and after such a system has been revolutionized the last year's training will pay for itself in full measure in the new organization.

To send the present army to the Continent to fight against a better organized, better trained German force, is to slaughter so many thousands of men without any possible chance of victory.

At this point the reader who is willing to credit my statement must think to himself:

"Then England is in a very desperate position."

So she would be if it were not for her navy, which is as efficient in personnel as it is powerful in numbers. It has met every test, and, barring accidents, will continue to do so.

It is for Americans to bear in mind that we cannot expect to do better on land than Great Britain has done, and at sea, even if our naval authorities were free to conduct the fleet according to their best opinion, as they would not be, there are at least three naval powers that could wipe us off the seas.

KAISER'S WORDS APPLAUDED

Enthusiastic Reception of Proclamation on War's Anniversary.

BERLIN, Aug. 2, (by wireless to Sayville, N. Y.)—In a statement given out today the Overseas News Agency says:

"The entire German press has approved with enthusiasm the proclamation given out by Emperor William on the anniversary of the outbreak of the war and published yesterday. It unites in pointing out that every word in this statement breathes his accustomed high-minded seriousness.

"The conviction of Emperor William that the entire German nation is animated by a firm resolution to secure a lasting peace, thus opening the road for an unparalleled national development, is shared by all the people. Yesterday the people went to church and thanked the Almighty for the blessings of the past year and prayed for a speedy ending of the fearful struggle.

"Newspapers publish also exhaustive reviews of the army and navy happenings of the past twelve months, and point out particularly that the plan to starve an entire nation of 70,000,000 men, women, and children has been frustrated by the careful organization of all resources."

Mrs. Springer Silent on Italian Story

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Mrs. Warren Springer of this city shed no light today on the story cabled from Paris yesterday that an American woman of Chicago, said to have given the name of Mrs. Warren Springs, attempted to use money to aid a peace propaganda among socialists in Italy. "I decline to be interviewed on this or any other subject," Mrs. Springer said.

BARNES DENOUNCES STATE PRIMARY LAW

Represses the Individual It Seeks to Liberate, He Tells Albany Convention.

ASSAILS OFFICIAL BALLOT

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Aug. 2.—At the session of the Constitutional Convention tonight William Banes criticised delegates who have introduced proposals which seek to restore the party convention for failing to move their measures for debate and final action. Ex-Senator Johnu G. Saxe of New York and Patrick J. Tierney, a Republican delegate from Clinton County, both have proposals pending before the convention which have been reported favorably by the Committee on Suffrage. Mr. Barnes, in his speech, intimated that their inactivity was due to the failure of the leaders of the convention to put the stamp of their approval on the plan to abolish direct primaries. Mr. Barnes said that the official ballot, not the political bosses, was responsible for the clamor for direct primaries which culminated in the enastment of the present primary law. Mr. Barnes favors making elections so extremely informal that any group of men can get a place on the official ballot for the name of a candidate of their selection.

"I believe that the State made its initial error," he said, "in legislation in relation to elections in establishing the official ballot which in a modified form we still have, which grants to groups of 10,000 voters a privilege which was denied the smaller groups.

"That legislation at first was deemed ver yacceptable because of the evils that were inherent in the small ballots that were formerly used. Opposition to the official ballot as constituted by the act of 1895 did not manifest itself for some years thereafter, but along about 1906 or 1907 the agitation for dirlect nominations began. The arguments that were raised, principally in behalf of the idea of direct nominations, were that they would make it impossible for those who were called political bosses to control nominations, and the nominations, therefore, would be in what are called 'the hands of the people.'

"That demand clearly arose from the fact that the voters felt a restriction. Now that restriction which they laid at the door of the convention system should really have been laid at the door of the official ballot which granted a privilege upon the ballot to the nominations of political parties. If all political parties, or all political groups, which is a better expression, were upon an equal footing, then it would not interest the State at large in what manner these groups made their appeal to the electorate. It is a right of voters to group in behalf of such ideas or such processes as they desire to see placed in law or against those which they desire to see defeated, but by our present system we have so organized our political parties that instead of being vehicles of thought they have become mere aggregations from a copyright label upon the name, making it practically impossible for independent movements to gain axpression in behalf of an idea.

"There is no method known to the present election law whereby any ideas may be incorporated into a political party. We have created by our methods an organization. We provided it no reason for existence except that it does exist."

Mr. Barnes has a proposal which would deprive political parties of all the privileges they have on the official ballot. It would prohibit the Legislature from passing any law regulating the election of party committee or the method of nominating candidates. The State could intervene in such matters, if Mr. Barnes had his way, only when fraud had been committed.

"If the Legislature had kept out privilege on the official ballot," Mr. Barnes said in his speech, "then you would not have had the difficulties of the situation which you have today, and you would not have political parties formed into infleible mechanisms, where it is impossible for me to know, when I vote the Republican ticket, for what I am voting.

"The present primary law, which was designed, as many laws are, for liberty, has resulted in the repression of individual expression and made the individual voter more favorable to get an opportunity to express his mind than he was even under the old system of conventions with the privilege upon the ballot."

Ex-Justice Morgan J. 'Brien, Democrat, moved as a substitute for the Barnes proposal, one drafted by ex-Chief Judge Cullen, but not presented to the convention. This would prohibit the Legislature from interfering with "the right of electors or any one of them to meet and select candidates at any election for public office in such manner as they may deem proper."

RED CROSS WITHDRAWING.

Arrangements to Curtail Activities in War Zone Explained.

The American Red Cross, through Mrs. William K. Draper, Secretary of its New York Chapter, announced last night that while the Red Cross would withdraw in October most of its units now on duty in the various belligerent countries of Europe, this did not mean that the activities of the American organization in Europe would end. On the contrary the Red Cross will continue to send supplies to the European Red Cross organization, and also will aid it by contributions of funds.

"The Governments have been notified long enough in advance," said Mrs. Draper, "to give them ample time to take over the hospitals. Much as the Red Cross regrets the necessity of withdrawing its units, the society realizes that the Red Cross of a neutral nation has never before rendered so long and extensive a service in the way of personnel to nations engaged in war."

It has been suggested that the probability of trouble with Mexico has been in part responsible for the Red Cross units leaving Europe. It can be stated on the highest authority that this report is without foundation.

KILLS THREE IN FRENZY AND SHOOTS HIMSELF

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—In a frenzy George H. Jones, 48, owner of a garage in Maywood, shot and killed his wife, his sister-in-law, and her brother tonight. Later he shot himself. He probably will die.

Those killed are: Mrs. Mary C. Jones, 46, the wife; Miss Catherine Cosgrove, 53, the sister-in-law, and John Cosgrove, 35, the brother-in-law.

The murders were committed at 1,855 West Taylod Street, where the Cosgroves lived. Mrs. Jones had been staying with them for several months, having separated from her husband because of "another woman." Miss Margaret Bitner, said to be the other, accompanied Jones in his automobile to the scene of the crime, and rode away with him after the murder. Miss Bitner cranked the machine, while Jones held a crowd at bay with his revolver. Jones then jumped into the automobile and drove madly to his garage. The police took him to the Oak Park Hospital, where surgeons probed for the bullet.

Shortly before 5:30 o'clock Jones drove West Ttylor Street and stopped his car a short distance from the Cosgrove home. He stepped out, leaving the woman in the car. He walked rapidly to the Cosgrove home. As he mounted the steps he saw his wife.

"I've got you this time," he shouted as he draw a revolver and leaped toward her. Mrs. Jones started to run into the house. Harry, her 17-year-old son, ran to her aid. He grappled with his father and tried to take away the revolver. The struggle ended by Jones pushing his son over the porch railing to the ground.

Jones then sprang at his wife and pursued her into the house. His sister-in-law and her brother confronted him.

"Get out of my way or I'll shoot you all," shouted Jones, waving his revolver. Then, leveling his revolver at his wife, he pulled the trigger. Mrs. Jones fell with a scream. The sister and brother tried to escape. Jones shot them down. Then he ran out of the house. To dismay the gathering crowd he discharged the revolver into the air twice. The crowd scattered.

Jones ran toward his waiting automobile. Charles agrath, a saloon keeper, rushed out with a loaded revolver in his hand. He fired five shots at Jones, but none took effect.

"Crank her up," Jones shouted to her as he ran. Shaking his fist at the shouting saloonkeeper, he leaped into the seat and shot west in Taylor Street.

Jones's son Harry told the police that his father became infatuated with Miss Bitner a year ago. Mrs. Jones left her husband shortly afterward, taking her son with her. They have lived with the Cosgroves since that time. Miss Bitner is about 30 years old.

Government Appeals Trust Suit.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2.—Judge Buffington in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals today allowed the Government to take an appeal to the Supreme Court in its anti-trust suit against the Keystone Watch Case Company. The Federal District Court recently refused the Government's petition to dissolve the company, but found that it had been using alleged boycott methods against certain dealers. The alleged boycott practice was stopped by the lower court.

WOMAN IS CAUGHT IN TRAP ON TRESTLE

DIES IN THE HOSPITAL

Secretary of Transatlantic Import Company Was on Her Way to Visit Friends in Ridgewood, N. J.

Miss Paula Schwerter, Secretary of the Transatlantic Import Company of 105 Fifth Avenue, died in the General Hospital, Paterson, N. J., yesterday morning from injuries suffered by falling from a trestle of the North Jersey Traction Company at Glen Rock, near Ridgewood, last Saturday night. Miss Schwerter roomed at 128 West Eighty-second Street. She was the daughter of a wealthy woman, the widow of a manufacturer, who lives at Iserlon, near Berlin, in Germany.

In company with Peter Voss of this city, Miss Schwerter was on her way to visit friends. Trapped on the trestle, Mr. Voss hung over the side by his hands until the car passed. Whether Miss Schwerter jumped to escape or was knocked off is not known. She fell twenty feet to the tracks of the Erie Railroad below. County Physician Armstrong believes that the woman was struck by the car, judging from her many injuries.

"We were on our way to visit friends in Ridgewood and it was after 9 P. M. Saturday when we alighted from the northbound car about half a mile south of the trestle," said Voss in his statement to the Coroner. "We made a mistake in getting off the car and started to walk along the tracks. It was so dark that we really did not know we were on the trestle until Miss Schwerter's umbrella went down between the ties.

"Suddenly the headlight of a trolley could be seen coming toward us. I thought the trestle was not very high, so I crawled over the side and I thought I could touch the ground with my feet, expecting to help Miss Schwerter down after I landed. I was thus suspended as the car neared us, though the light did not show us to the motorman owing to the curve on the bridge at the west end.

"I yelled to Miss Schwerter to climb down to the side of the trestle, but all I remember is that she screamed as the car passed over me. I thought she leaped from the trestle, but the many injuries she received make me believe she was hurled off the structure by the trolley car."

The trolley crew helped to carry Miss Schwerter to the car and she was taken to Paterson. Much secrecy was maintained there, and it was said the injured woman was a private patient. Voss is employed in a downtown importing house, and is married and has a family. Miss Schwerter was a friend of Mr. Voss's family and they were going to spend the evening with mutual friends. Miss Schwerter was in the Berlin office of the Transatlantic Import Company and was brought here two years ago. Apparently no report of the accident was made to the police in New Jersey.

The trestle crosses the tracks of the Erie Short Cut. There is a sharp curve and descent at the western end, and the car was within twenty-five feet of the woman when the motorman first saw her.

WANT NEW PARTY IN JAPAN.

Independent Leaders' Plan—Ministerial Crisis Continues.

TOKIO, Aug. 2.—Developments in the Cabinet crisis indicate that if the movement to oust Minister of Foreign Affairs Kato succeeds it means that the Cabinet of Count Okuma will be dissolved, as Mr. Kato is the working head of the Ministry.

The political situation is viewed with concern by Japanese generally because of the serious problems now facing the Empire.

Viscount Kanetake Oura, Minister of the Interior, who shared with Foreign Minister Kato the leadership of the Rikken Doshi-Kai, or Constitutional Unionist Party, after resigning his portfolio has retired into obscurity.

Peers of all positions and independent leaders are trying to organize a new party to be headed by Baron Goto, ex-Minister of Communications and ex-President of the South Manchurian Railway.

The Opposition, which favors the return to power of a Cabinet under the leadership of ex-Premier Satonji, of the Sei-yu-Kai, or Conservative Party, continues to assail the Okuma Cabinet. Anti-Government newspapers now charge that the members of the Ministry were consulted regarding what the journals term Minister Oura's project to obtain votes for an increase in the army by bribery.

To Aid Jewish War Sufferers.

A call was sent out yesterday for a conference of representatives of Jewish societies, congregations, trades unions, lodges, and clubs for the purpose of starting a campaign for additional funds to aid Jewish war sufferers in Europe. The cayy was issued in the name of the newly formed People's Relief Committee, of which Congressman Mayer London is Chairman. The conference will be held next Sunday afternoon in the auditorium of the Educational Alliance, East Broadway and Jefferson Street. The call states that there are now 600,000 homeless Jews in the eastern war zone. Each organization has been asked to send two representatives to the conference.

NOTES ON FRYE CASE AND BLOCKADE HERE

tries ports, when ultimately destined for belligerent consumption, and the attitude of the British Government in cases involving American interests being tried in Prize Courts and involving shipments to such eutral ports. I the caveat note the United States informed Great Britain that so far as interests of American citizens were concerned, this Government would insist upon their rights under the principles and rules of international law without limitation or impairment by ordersin-council or other municipal legislation. The United States also held that it would not recognize the validity of prize court proceedings taken under restraints imposed by municipal law in derogation of rights of American citizens under internatioal law. In the British reply to this note it is asserted that the British Government has endeavored to conform its municipal legislation and prize court proceedings to recognized principles of international law.

In a nutshell the British position as outlined in the three notes is that the issue between the two Governments is not whether the principles upon which the British Government has acted are lawful, because the British Government maintains that it is following the recognized rules of international law for which the United States Government has been contending, but whether the new applications of the old principles of international law have in reality involved a departure from those principles. The British position is that differences between the two Governments ovr this point may be submitted to arbitration as a matter of course, after the close of the war.

Germany Stands Pat.

The new German note dealing with the demand for the indemnity and reparation for the sinking of the sailing ship William P. Frye was handed to Ambassador Gerard at Berlin on Friday and was cabled in sections, the first of which reached the State Department early this morning and the remainder late this afternoon.

The note will not be made public before Thursday morning. The cablegram from Ambassador Gerard transmitting the note was silent as to whether an arrangement had been made for simultaneous publication. For this reason Secretary Lansing cabled to the Ambassador suggesting that he ask whether the German Government would consent to its publication on Thursday morning.

State Department officials decline to disclose the contents of the new German note, but it is understood that Germany adheres to its previous contentions and does not yield to the request of the United States for the settlement of the claim by direct diplomatic negotiations. The United States has insisted that the destruction of the Frye was a direct violation of the Treaty of 1799 between the United States and Prussia. Germany challenged this contention, although admitting its liability for damages.

The German Government's attitude has been that the German prize court should decide whether the destruction of the ship and cargo was legal, whether the property sunk was liable to confiscation, and to whom and in what amount indemnity should be paid, and that since the decision of the prize court must first be awaited before any further position was taken the simplest way for the interested parties to settle their claims would be to enter them in accordance with the German code of prize proceedings.

The United States Government insisted that the real issue was what reparation must be made for a breach of treaty obligations and that it was not a question which fell within the jurisdiction of a prize court, but one which should be handled diplomatically. The United States, therefore, asked Germany to reconsider the matter in the light of these considerations.

The German note, it is understood, fails to meet this contention, and will call for a rejoinder. In this rejoinder it is probable that allusion will be made to the case of the American steamer Leelanaw, recently sunk with a cargo of flax, which was declared by the Germans, to be contraband. The owners of the Leelanaw, it is learned, have not presented any claim for damages. The Leelanaw case is regarded by the State Department as being similar to that of the Frye, and the owners of the Leelanaw are regarded as being entitled to damages. But until a claim has been made, no representations can be sent to Germany.

NEW GERMAN WARNING.

Wants Neutral Ships to Carry Bigger Color Markings.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Ambassador Gerard reported to the State Department today that he had received from the German Admiralty another warning with respect to the marking of neutral ships to protect them against submarine attacks. It is interpreted as an indication that Germany is desirous of making no mistakes when her submarines encounter neutral vessels which do not carry contraband or which are not engaged in hostile missions. But it is not regarded as any sign of Germany's yielding to the American contention that the rule of visit and search must be applied before merchant ships of belligerent nationality are torpedoed.

A paraphrase of Ambassador Gerard's message was made public by the State Department as follows:

The American Ambassador at Berlin has been notified by the German Admiralty that merchant vessels wishing to indicate their neutral nationality by painting their national colors on the ships' sides often commit the mistake of painting these signs too small, so that they cannot be recognized at some distance. The Foreign Office requests American steamship companies be accordingly informed.

The American Government has insisted on the observance of the rule of visit and search and takes the position that the responsibility for making no mistake in dealing with neutral vessels rests upon the belligerent, and that since neutral vessels are entitled to the freedam of the seas, it is ot incumbent upon the nation whose flags they fly to warn them to carry unusual distinguishing marks other than their usual flag of registry. If ship owners, of their own volition, care to adopt special markings, or conform with the German request, the United States will interpose no objection, but it is not considered incumbent on this Government to direct ship owners to adopt particular markings.

If all neutral ships were officially ordered to adopt special markings, then by inference vessels which did not carry such markings ought to be regarded by German submarine commanders as enemy vessels. The mere fact that a vessel carries a special neutral marking does not necessarily imply that the vessel is neutral. A belligerent merchant vessel might adopt such a marking for purposes of disguise, and, as in cases of misuse of flag, could b eseized upon by a submarine commander as affording excuse for making a mistake in attacking a neutral ship so marked. The position of the United States is that the only safe course is to observe the rule of visit and search in every case before attacking a merchant vessel.

GERMANY MAY NOT REPLY.

Waiting to See What America Will Say to England.

BERLIN, Aug. 2, (By Wireless to Sayville, L. I.)—The Overseas News Agency gave out the following today:

"Notwithstanding reports to the contrary, the German Government has not yet decided whether the American note regarding German submarine warfare will be answered. The Government awaits the text of the announced American note to Great Britain before deciding what further steps will be taken."

PAN-AMERICAN AID FOR MEXICO MOVE

not to be given consideration by the United States.

Circumstances may make it necessary for the United States to look to Villa and Zapata to give support to the Central Government which the United States desires to see established in Mexico in the near future. In that event the Villa and Carranza troops would be depended on to keep the new Government in power. The proposal to select a member of the Madero Cabinet to become Provisional President of Mexico pending the establishment of a permanent Constitutional Government, points to the choice of Vasquez Tagle, who was Mister of Justice under Madero and was the only member of Madero's official family who did not resign his portfolio when Huerta and Felix Diaz forced the Maderistas from power. Under the Mexican Constitution, according to the argument advanced, Tagle is the legitimate successor of Madero.

Apparently convinced that the United States Government would soon undertake to put a programme of this character into effect, the Carranzistas tonight issued a statement obviously intended to cast suspicion on the intention of this Government and make it unpopular in Mexico. In this statement it was declared that Villa, Angeles, his chief General; Governor Maytorena of Sonora, Eduardo Iturbide, who has made a favorable impression on officials of the United States Government, and General Victoriano Huerto himself, had entered into an arrangement "which consists in asking humbly the support of the American Government in behalf of Vasquez Tagle as Provisional President of Mexico, in order afterward to place as permanent President Mr. Iturbide and perhaps Angeles as Vice President."

It is evident that the main purpose of this statement is to discredit the plan of the United States by indicating that Huerta is a party to it, and that it was conceived by Villa and some of his advisors.

The American plan, however, was invented in Washington, and while its details are not known, there is reason to believe that the Carrancistas are not far from the truth in their references to the selection of Tagle as Provisional President under an arrangement that he will appoint as his successor some person of character satisfactory to the leaders who will support the program of the United States.

Placing Tagle in authority as Provisional President of Mexico would comply, it is claimed, with the requirements of the Mexican constitution upon which President Wilson has insisted from the outset of his handling of the Mexican situation. After appointing his Cabinet, Tagle could resign and be succeeded by the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. While the American plan may be modified in some respects, it is believed here that the proposal to be submitted to the Latin-American diplomats at Thursday's conference in the State Department will embrace the selection by Mexican leaders of some prominent Mexican citizen for appointment as the head of the proposed Cabinet who will succeeded to the Presidency upon the retirement of Tagle or some other member of the Madero Cabinet.

Iturbide May be the Man.

Since r s escape from Mexico last Winter, Eduardo Iturbide has spent much of his time in Washington. He has met a number of prominent officers of the Administration, including some members of the Cabinet, and has created a verey favorable impression. He was reported to have departed recently departed from New York for the Mexican border. There is a strong personal disposition on the part of officials who have discussed the situation with him to favor Iturbide's selection as the head of the Mexican Government. It seems to be assured that his name will figure prominently in the consideration to be given to choosing a President of Mexico who will succeed the President, whose Government the United States desires to establish with the least possible delay.

In giving consideration to the Mexican problem, this Government is confronted by the immediate necessity of saving the population of Mexico City from starvation, and it is conceded that it must act quickly. How far it would be willing to go to keep open the railroad line between Vera Cruz and Mexico City should the Carranza, Villa, and Zapata factions fail to heed the emphatic representations sent by Secretary Lansing this week, is something that could not be ascertained from officials tonight.

According to belief here, the only alternative of the United States in the event that railroad trains are not permitted o carry supplies from Vera Cruz to Mexico City, would be to send an armed force into Mexico for the purpose of maintaining communication between the coast and the capital. Such action, it is held, would not be war, and it is pointed out in this connection that the United States has frequently undertaken similar expeditions with the object of relieving and protecting Americans and other foreign citizens whose lives and properties were endangered. The landing of American bluejackets and marines in Haiti last week is mentioned as evidence of the right of this Government to send armed forces into perturbed foreign territory without undertaking to engage in war.

Starvation in Capital.

The Government is being spurred to action by frequent reports of the terrible situation of those in Mexico City. Its anxiety was increased and its desire to take positive action soon was strengthened by a message to the Red Cross from Charles J. O'Connor, the relief agent of that organization in the Mexican capital. Mr. O'Connor's dispatch, sent from Mexico City and cabled from Vera Cruz under date of July 31, was, in part, as follows:

> Conditions desperate. Getting worse daily. Some food, but price already prohibitive and doubled since my arrival. Practically no grain for sale. Authentic cases of death and collapse from starvation. Some people eating weeds, grass, leaves, dead horses, and mules. Yield of planted crops in grain States will be small on account of late rains and unfavorable season.

The appeal made by Mr. O'Connor is also signed by Señor Cardoso, the Brazilian Minister in Mexico City, who is representing the United States diplomatically. In connection with the information they sent, the Red Cross announced tonight that while it was striving to arrange for the transportation of American-bought food supplies to the stricken capital, it would hesitate to try to carry any quantity of foodstuffs over the railroad from Vera Cruz. Mr. O'Connor sent word that Americans in Mexico City are in need of food and have deposited $6,000 with a banking company there and wished the Red Cross to draw against this amount for the purchase of supplies.

Carranzista representatives in Washington are pushing a vigorous propoganda to create sentiment in favor of the recognition of the Carranza Government. Carranza is promising to "clean up" the Mexico City situation, to send food suplies there, and move his entire Government to the capital this month. Assurances of this sort have been given frequently in the past without being fulfilled.

Special Agent Silliman of the State Department telegraphs from Vera Cruz that a severe battle occurred Friday afternoon at a point east of Guadelupe, which is near Mexico City, and that telegraphic communication with the Capital was expected to be established. Communication with Tula, via Pachuca had been established and was being pushed northward.

That Carranza is still opposed to relinquishing his effort to be President of Mexico was indicated by a statement from him given out by his agency here tonight. Carranza enumerated the portions of Mexico which were claimed to be in the possession of the Carranza forces, and it was asserted that this data showed that the Carrancistas controlled the greater part of Mexico. The Carranza Government, it was declared, "has completely overpowered the reaction, and the only thing it expects is that its course may not be interrupted, so that it may accomplish a definite work of peace and reconstruction of the Republic, which it is so anxious to realize."

CAPERTON MOVES FOR PEACE IN HAITI

MOB ATTACKS A MISSION

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Acting vigorously on his instructions from Washington to restore order in Haiti, Rear Admiral Caperton has sent a special commission from Port au Prince to Cape Haitien, 169 miles distant, to bring about the disbanding of the revolutionary forces in the northern part of the republic. This commission will request General Bobo, leader of the revolutionary forces, and General Blot, leader of the forces of the defunct Guillaume Government, to return to Port au Prince with the members of the commission in order to join in conferences to promote order in Haiti.

Admiral Caperton notified Secretary Daniels today that such action has been taken. An earlier dispatch from the Admiral to the Navy Department today showed that the American force of marines and bluejackets is proceeding vigorously with the work of disarming the natives, but while the Haitien soldiers are turning in arms to the naval authorities, many arms are being secretly retained.

There can be read between the lines of the messages received from Admiral Caperton full confirmation of statements made in special dispatches from Washington to THE NEW YORK TIMES last week, which stated that the American expeditionary force in Haiti will remain ashore there until order has been fully restored, until an orderly Government has been established, and in all probability until guarantees are given for the future.

The last of the series of dispatches from Admiral Caperton to the Navy Department this afternoon read:

> Sending on the Jason to Cape Haitien commission composed of the following: Lieutenant Reuben Burton Coffey, U. S. N.; ex-President Legitie, Archbishop Conan of Port au Prince, General Polynice, ex-Minister Charles Zamora, Colonel Chevalier. My instructions to commission are to require the army in the north to disarm and disband, soldiers to return to their homes, Leaders Blot and Bobo to return to Port au Prince with the commission and join conferences to promote order in Haiti.

Since the uprising in Port au Prince last week, which resulted in the deaths of ex-President Zamor and President Guillaume, there has been desultory firing around Cape Haitien between the Blot and Bobo factions. The Navy Department today received from the commander of the American gunboat Nashville at Cape Haitien a report stating that there had been rifle firing outside of that city. The Nashville and the Eagle, on duty at Cape Haitien, will protect American and foreign interests there and land such marines as are necessary to afford protection. Admiral Caperton is endeavoring to bring about an agreement between the contending leaders and factions for a solution of the problem, and has given assurances to the members of the Haitian Congress that they will receive full protection from the American forces landed at Port au Prince. These assurances have been given with the idea of enabling the Haitian leaders to act with freedom from fear of danger from the Bobo Revolutionary Committee.

Wesleyan Mission Attacked.

Admiral Caperton notified the Navy Department today that the Wesleyan Mission at Port au Prince was attacked by a mob on Saturday night, but that the situation was now quiet and he was in control of affairs. A separate message dealing with this attack said:

> All quiet during the night except at the Wesleyan Mission, where a mob of about twelve men broke in.

The Navy Department this morning issued this summary of another message from Admiral Caperton:

> The commander of the cruiser squadron, Rear Admiral Caperton, reports from Port au Prince that the city is being controlled without any difficulty. While apparently everything is quiet and the Haitian soldiers are said to be disarming and turning in their arms to the naval authorities, it is believed that many arms are being retained secretly.

The Haitian soldiers apparently retain their organization, although without arms. Daily inspections are made for arms, and whenever any are found the arms are taken and placed in charge of the United States forces.

The assembly of citizens in any number during the night has been forbidden. During Saturday night the Wesleyan Mission was mobbed. One of the men who had murdered a prisoner in jail was secreted in this mission.

The prices of provisions have greatly increased, and the poorer classes are without food and many are suffering greatly.

A fourth message from Admiral Caperton was summarized by the Navy Department late this afternoon as follows:

> Admiral Caperton reports all quiet at Port au Prince during the night of Aug. 1. A legation guard was landed from the French cruiser Descartes at 7 A. M. today. The French Minister conveyed to Rear Admiral Caperton the thanks of his Government for the protection afforded the French Legation by the American landing forces.

The landing of these marines was at the earnest solicitation of the French Minister and was with the consent of the United States Government. These marines will, to some extent, lighten the burden on the 500 marines and bluejackets that Admiral Caperton has on shore, and which have a wide stretch of territory to patrol to defend the city against attack. The battleship Connecticut took on board 125 marines from the Norfolk Navy Yard today, and is now en route to Port au Prince under forced draft to reinforce the landing party on shore.

Will Command Shore Forces.

Upon the arrival of the reinforcements at Port au Prince, Colonel Eli K. Cole of the Marine Corps, in command of the marine regiment on the Connecticut, will take command of the American expeditionary force on shore, succeeding Commander Edward L. Beach of the armored cruiser Washington, now in command of the force of 500 marines and bluejackets. Colonel Cole will be the senior officer on shore under Rear Admiral Caperton.

It was admitted in official circles today that very wide latitude had been given to Admiral Caperton in the orders he had received from the Navy Department. His orders directed him to land and to do everything necessary to restore law and order and bring about the free choice of a new President unhampered by revolutionary leaders or influences. The details of the action to be taken to accomplish this end have been left to the discretion of Admiral Caperton. It was learned that his action in sending a commission northward from Port au Prince to Cape Haitien was taken on his own initiative and not on orders from Washington. The general instructions to him were broad enough to warrant such action, and it has been approved by the Washington Government.

Admiral Caperton is believed to have displayed tact in sending a commission of native Haitians to deal with the rival forces at Cape Haitien, but the commission is accompanied and headed by Lieutenant Coffey, who is a member of the staff of the Admiral, and who has confidential instructions. It is the hope of the Admiral that the Blot and Bobo forces in the north will comply with the demand that they cease fighting, disarm, and disband, and that the respective leaders will accompany the commission to Port au Prince to participate in the conferences to be held with a view to restoring order.

A Political Deadlock.

PORT AU PRINCE, Aug. 2.—The violent revolutionary activities of last week have been followed by a political deadlock in the efforts of the Haitian Congress to elect a President in succession to Guillaume, who was shot to death by a mob last week.

A majority of the National Assembly desires to elect to the Presidency M. Dartiguenave, but these members are in sharp conflict with the revolutionary committee, which desires the election of Dr. Rosalvo Bobo, leader of the successful revolution.

In spite of the assurances given by the American naval commander that Congress will enjoy the protection of the American forces present in order to deliberate with freedom, the Senators and Deputies have decided not to elect a President at the present time. They are forced to this course by fear of attack from the partisans of Dr. Bobo.

A delegation of four Congressmen, including the Archbishop of Port au Prince, left here yesterday on the American naval auxiliary Celtic for Cape Haitien in an endeavor to bring about conciliation between the various political factions.

The American marines on shore continue to disarm Haitian civilians.

The detachment of marines who came ashore last night from the French cruiser Descartes is now in occupation of the French Legation.

QUICKSAND ENGULFS GREAT POWER HOUSE

Cement Plant Near Hudson Suddenly Drops Into Deep Hole—Five Workmen Killed.

Special to The New York Times.

CATSKILL, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Carrying with it almost three acres of hard clay, the immense power plant of the Knickerbocker Cement Company, near Hudson, was almost swallowed in what is supposed to be a bed of quicksand early this morning, sending five men to death and injuring several others.

Just before 6 o'clock, at which hour the laboring shift is changed, the workmen felt a rumbling under their feet, followed by a cloud of dust. Almost instantly the immense plant disappeared from sight, carrying with it 40,000 tons of trap-rock stored for Winter use, the weight of which nudoubtedly served to cause the disaster.

Thirty men employed on the night shift were in the plant at the time, and all were carried down. The uninjured extricated themselves from the ruins and, with the day crew coming to work, formed a rescue party that at once started to search for the missing. In the ruins were found the bodies of Paul Gage, 34; James Crowe, (colored,) 41, and John Suta, 27. John Harrington, 47, a foreman, and Lee Chambers, 27, were found mortally injured; they died in the Hudson Hospital this afternoon.

The plant, built four years ago at a cost of $250,000, was situated on an almost level piece of land a mile from Hudson; it employed nearly 600 men. Many of the workmen had complained that the plant was settling, but their fears were laughed at. Tonight the plant, one of the largest of the kind in New York State, built of brick, steel and reinforced concrete, lies in a hole forty feet deep, the huge power house crumbled to dust and the heavy steel twisted into grotesque shapes.

The buildings which vanished consisted of a large power house, an 80-foot concrete smokestack, an elevator conveyor with another smokestack, a concrete storehouse, and a large frame barn which held three horses and an automobile, all of which were buried.

SANITY TEST FOR MINISTER.

Defendant, Who Sought Alms, Says He Is the Rev. Stephen Budden.

A man who said he was the Rev. Stephen Budden, 46 years old, of 115 East 128th Street, was committed to Bellevue Hospital for ten days for observation yesterday by Magistrate Cobb in the Essex Market Court. He wore clerical clothes when he was arrested Friday by Detective Sullivan of the First Branch on a charge of soliciting alms.

Arraigned that afternoon before Magistrate Cobb, he said he was a regularly ordained Episcopal minister of Oakland, Cal. He carried a small safe which bore the inscription, "All Souls' Chapel, Richmond Hill. For the Relief of the Poor and Destitute." After he had said he had been soliciting funds with which to establish a mission here for five years, and had showed papers signed by himself, authorizing him to collect moneys, Magistrate Cobb held him in $1,000 bail for examination Saturday, telling him to communicate with his wife, who, Budden said, had his ordination papers.

The defendant on Saturday said his wife had gone to Jefferson Market Court. The hearing was set down for yesterday afternoon. When the case was called the wife did not appear. Detective Sullivan testified that Budden had acted in a peculiar manner in the prison and on the street.

REBUKES HEATED LAWYERS.

Justice Weeks Annoyed When They Yawn and Remove Coats.

Justice Weeks became much annoyed yesterday in Special Term, Part I. of the Supreme Court, where all litigated motions are argued, when certain lawyers removed their coats and yawned during the arguments in the heated courtroom. One portly lawyer yawned and stretched to such an extent that he forced two buttons from the front of his shirt, whereupon the Justice pounded on his desk with the gavel and exclaimed:

"If counsel are so fatigued that they find it necessary to stretch themselves, they had better go outside. Undignified behavior of counsel will not be tolerated."

The learned legal brethren immediately put on their coats, sat upright, and were much interested thereafter in the law points elucidated.

HOLDS R. S. BARCLAY ATTEMPTED FRAUD

Court Decision Says Soap Manufacturer Aimed to Victimize His Sister-in-Law.

RECEIVER TO BE APPOINTED

In deciding in favor of Mrs. Clara S. Barclay in her suit against her brother-in-law, Reginald G. Barclay, in which she asked that she be assured her annual income of more than $100,000 from the business of Barclay & Co., soap and perfume manufacturers, of which her late husband, William O. Barclay, was a founder and one of the chief owners, Justice Alfred R. Page of the Supreme Court, Special Term, Part III., said Reginald G. Barclay had devised a clumsy scheme to "enable him to defraud the widow and children of his deceased brother."

William O. Barclay died late in 1900, leaving his wife and brother, Reginald, as executors and trustees of his estate, his widow being the only one to qualify. By an agreement made between the brothers in August, 1900, their shares in Barclay & Co., each amounting to a third, were properly defined. In his will William O. Barclay said:

"I authorize and empower my trustees and their survivors to retain as a trust investment my interest in the business, good will and firm name of Barclay & Co., and in all trade marks, &c., and to lease or sell the same with the concurrence of my said wife."

The Justice sets forth further that Reginald G. Barclay incorporated Barclay & Co. in Delaware in April, 1913, with a capitalization of $3,000,000, divided into $1,000,000 8 per cent. cumulative preferred and $2,000,000 common stock. During May, 1914, Barclay conveyed his rights in the old Barclay & Co. to the new Delaware corporation, and later it was discovered that the new company owned all the business and assets of the old.

Further, it was discovered that aBrclay owned 5,000 shares of the preferred stock and 19,985 of the common in the new Barclay & Co. Mrs. Barclay, in her petition filed in Justice Page's court on April 8, 1915, stated that from 1908 until 1913, inclusive, she received $468,048 as income from her one-third share in the company, the largest amount, $111,983, being received in 1913, when Alexander Barrie left the company.

"It is evident," the Justice says, "that the sole purpose of the incorporation was to enable, through legal formality, Reginald G. aBrclap to escapt from the obligations of the agreement of Aug. 1, 1900, and to appropriate to himself the entire benefits and emoluments from the use of the common property. A clumsily devised scheme to enable him to defraud the widow and children of his deceased brother of their property right and to appropriate it to himself, in violation of the trust and confidence reposed in him by his deceased brother, and in disregard of his own contract obligations, irrevocably assumed by him. A corporate form, the picture of a corporate entity, is too diaphanous a cloak to shield him in a court of equity from full accountability for his acts The plaintiff is entitled to judgment and costs.

He also directs that Mrs. Barclay shall receive 33 1-3 per cent. of the net profits, which are said to be greatly in excess of $100,000 yearly.

It is directed that a receiver be appointed at the direction of the court to sell all that comprises the business of Barclay & Co., and that from the proceeds received Mrs. Barclay shall be paid the sum due her for accrued profits, together with the costs of the suit, plus one-half the proceeds of the sale. Reginald G. Barclay is to receive such sum as may remain after deducting expenses, including the receiver's commissions.

Mrs. Barclay lived until recently at the Plaza Hotel, but removed to Atlantic City earlier in the year. Reginald G. Barclay lives at 5 East Seventy-eighth Street and is a member of the Riding Club, the Down Town Club, the New York Yacht Club, the Automobile Club of America, and the Mayflower Descendants.

SUMMONS TO GOETHALS.

Will Confer in Washington Over Troops in Canal Zone.

PANAMA, Aug. 2.—Just as he was leaving here today on the steamer Pastores for New York Major Gen. George W. Goethals, Governor of the Panama Canal Zone, received instructions to appear in Washington immediately instead of beginning his vacation.

General Goethals said that he had been informed indirectly that his presence was desired in order that he might confer with the Washington authorities regarding army reorganization, particularly with reference to the strength, disposition, and housing of the troops in the Canal Zone. He said he had several plans in view, which he would submit to Secretary Garrison. These he declined to outline. It is understood that his views differ somewhat from those of Brig. Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, commander of the Canal Zone forces, which were forwarded to the Secretary of War several weeks ago.

After proceeding to Washington General Goethals, who is accompanied by his wife and son, Thomas, will make a tour of the West, visiting the California expositions. He will then return to the Canal Zone at the end of September. Meanwhile he will tender his resignation as Governor to President Wilson and will make application to be placed on the retired list of the army.

W. H. BLATCH KILLED BY LOOSE LIVE WIRE

PLAYWRIGHT FINDS BODY

Sustains Severe Shock in Attempting to Pull It Away from the Current.

William H. Blatch, husband of Mrs. Harriot Stanton Blatch, the suffrage leader, was killed yesterday morning by coming in contact with the current of a broken electric light wire which had fallen across the walk at the entrance to the lawn at the home of Channing Pollock, the playwright, on the Sound, at Shoreham, L. I. It is supposed that Mr. Blatch saw a broken wire and sought to remove it not knowing that it was charged. The end of the wire, carrying 110 volts of an alternating current, killed him instantly.

Mr. Blatch called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Pollock at 7:30 o'clock to return a book he had borrowed. As the playwright and his wife were not up, he left the volume with a maid and started back along the path toward the road. The maid saw a spurt of flame at the gate, and when Blatch staggered and fell she called Pollock.

There was a little pillar of smoke and sputtering flame visible as Pollock ran toward the place where Blatch had fallen, with one hand tightly clutching the wire. The only piece of wood near at hand was the signboard of the Pollock home, "The Parsonage," fixed to a stake beside the gate, which the playwright pulled up and reached for the wire with one end, whereupon he received a shock of electricity which knocked him down. The sign was covered with moisture. He then got a garden rake and succeeded in pulling the wire away from the body.

Dr. James M. Winfield of 47 Halsey Street, Brooklyn, who has a Summer home at Shoreham, was sent for. He said Blatch had died instantly from the shock of the current, which under ordinary circumstances might not have proved fatal, but the wet ground made the contact more severe. Coroner Gibson of Huntington gave permission for the removal of the body to the home of Mr. Blatch.

"We believe the wire must have dropped from the pole after Mr. Blatch came here," said Mrs. Pollock yesterday, during the absence of her husband. "I am sure from what Mr. Pollock told me after the accident that he would have fallen a victim to that wire had he got out as early as he intended to meet Mr. and Mrs. Flo Ziegfeld at Port Jefferson. The wire was that of the Port Jefferson Electric Light Company."

Mrs. Nora Stanton De Forest, daughter of Mr. Blatch, who with her daughter had spent the week-end at her father's home, had started for the city. Mr. Blatch had gone to the Pollock home after seeing his daughter off at the station. Mrs. De Forest was notified of the accident when she alighted from the train here and returned to Shoreham. Mrs. Harriot Stanton Blatch, who was at Syracuse on Saturday and had an engagement to lecture last night at Utica, was reached by telegraph while on a train yesterday afternoon and notified.

William H. Blatch, 65 years old, was the head of the May Brewing Company in England, from which he retired twenty years ago and had since resided here. His wife is an American. Because her husband had not become a citizen of this country Mrs. Blatch's efforts to establish her rights to citizenship were denied on the ground that her marriage made her a British subject. She is the President of the Women's Political Union. Mr. Blatch owned a large country home at Shoreham, where he had developed one of the largest and finest hanging gardens on Long Island.

25 YEARS FOR BANK BANDIT.

Harry Starr, Chief of Oklahoma Band, Pleads Guilty.

CHANDLER, Okla., Aug. 2.—Harry Starr pleaded guilty to bank robbery today in the District Court, and was sentenced to twenty-five years in the penitentiary. A jury was being impanelled today for the trial of Claude Sawyer, one of Starr's alleged accomplices.

Starr was charged with the robbery of two banks in Stroud, Okla., last March, in which $5,000 was stolen. After the robbery Starr was wounded and with four of his companions was captured.

Many daring robberies were charged to what was known as the Starr gang of bandits, which was led by Harry Starr.

IN ROADLESS GREENWICH.

Detours That Are Tours and Other Freak Conditions Found.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Aug. 2.—When the New York people who pay a large share of the taxes that go to keep up this corner of Connecticut got their last bills from the Collector they found they were down for heavy increases. Realizing that this was an expensive neighborhood to live in, some paid cheerfully. Others, when they learned that a considerable portion of the increase was to be devoted to the improvement of roads in the township, paid philosophically.

But to find a philosopher in these regions now is difficult. And if you seek to talk on the subject of roads you will find no cheerful person. Practically speaking, there are no roads. They have been made away with. A casual glance at them would lead the visitor to conclude that somebody had come along and torn them up by the roots and taken them away. After a fashion, that is what happened.

Sections of the Boston Post Road are still intact, but you may have difficulty in finding them. If you get off that once beaten path you never know where you will end up. True, the highways are marked here and there with the sign "Detour," indicating that a little way ahead is another sign reading "Road Closed," but you never know exactly where you will be when you have again located yourself. Sometimes the "detour" would be more properly spelled without a prefix.

Perhaps the most disgusted citizens hereabouts are those who last Spring purchased new cars. They early met the "Road Closed" signs. Then teams began to leave mounds of sand and broken stone and great bundles of wire concrete "tier" here and there along the highways until in some spots there was not room for a livery "rig" to pass. As it was then so it is now, and so it appears likely to continue indefinitely.

APPEAL FOR A FAMILY.

Wife and Children of a Prisoner Need Assistance.

Convicted on the charge of burglary, L. is serving a prison sentence. His punishment is deserved, but his wife and children, who have done no wrong, must suffer too. Their physical needs will be met, however, if contributions for the purpose are sent to the Charity Organization Society.

The mother went to the society in the Spring, just before the baby's birth, and they have helped her ever since, for she has four small children, the eldest only 7, and has no income from any source. The society has secured for her the interest of a religious organization, which pays half her rent and supplies clothing, leaving the balance of the rent, a weekly allowance for food, and a daily supply of milk to be provided from the funds for which the society asks. A trained dietitian under the direction of the society has helped Mrs. L. plan her budget and is assisting her to buy her food wisely.

L. may be discharged at the end of the year, but to meet the physical needs of his family until that time $150 is necessary. Gifts, payable to the Charity Organization Society, should be addressed to its office at 105 East Twenty-second Street and will be acknowledged.

The society acknowledges with thanks the following gifts in response to previous appeals in THE TIMES for other families: "Mrs. F. E. S.," $1; Mrs. Marie Celeste Eastwick, $10; Mrs. G. P. Slade, $25; Anonymous, $5; Cash, $5; Mrs. Payson Merrill, $5; Mrs. Thomas H. Messenger, $5; Mrs. Alice Fenn Coffin, $1; Anonymous, $10; Cash, $1.

U. S. METAL PRODUCTS SALE

Company's Forty-seven Parcels of Assets Bring $216,000.

The property and assets of the United States Metal Products Company of 111 Broadway and College Point were sold at auction yesterday at 32 Liberty Street under the direction of John J. Townsend, referee in bankruptcy. There were forty-seven parcels in the sale, and the total amount realized was $216,027. The creditors' committee bid $204,000 for most of the parcels, and the excepted parcels went to outsiders for $12,027.

Among the parcels sold were the right, title, and interest in the real estate and buildings at College Point, $40,000; patents, trademarks, and welding contract, 10,000; recorders and auto trucks, $2,600, and office equipment, $2,000. A petition in bankruptcy was filed against the company on Nov. 30, 1914, and liabilities were $1,008,550.

Long Term for Black Hander.

A sentence of from ten to twenty years in Sing Sing was imposed by Judge Nieman in the County Court, Brooklyn, yesterday, on Francesco Giarraputo, reputed Black Hand leader, who was convicted of having placed a lighted bomb in the drug store of Joseph Ingoglia at 1,081 Flushing Avenue, on April 6. The druggist identified the prisoner as the man who had demanded $1,000 from him after several threatening letters had been sent to him. Andrea Graffeo, convicted as an accomplice of Giarraputo in the same crime, received a similar sentence from Judge Dike last week.

LYNN GETS ISLANDS UNDER TORRENS ACT

ENDS 22 YEARS' LITIGATION

Justice's Victory Sets a Precedent in Appeal Involving Realty Registration Law.

Justice Wauhope Lynn of the Municipal Court, after twenty-two years of litigation, has had his ownership of three islands in Jamaica Bay upheld. He purchased them from the State of New York in 1893. The islands are known as Old Squaw Marsh, Big Fishkill Marsh, and Sails Point Hassock. A unanimous opinion in favor of Justice Lynn has been rendered by the Appellate Division, and it confirms the right to have the titles in the islands registered under the Torrens Land Title Registration act.

The ownership of the islands and the registration of their titles in favor of Justice Lynn were opposed by Ludwig Klee, a fisherman of Jamaca Bay, and other fishermen and oystermen who had been squatters on the islands for many years and who claimed ownership by adverse possession. In addition, Ezra D. Bushnell and Edward F. Linton claimed title through an early grant from the Town of Flatlands, and the City of New York also claimed ownership on the ground that the islands were land under water and that the State of New York, therefore, had no power to sell them.

A year ago Justice Scudder of the Supreme Court gave a decision in favor of Justice Lynn. An appeal was taken by the City of New York and Edward F. Linton, and in its recent opinion the Appellate Division upholds the decision of the lower court. The decision virtually disposes of a long-disputed question regarding the ownership of lands under water in Jamaica Bay. In the trial it was necessary to go back to the Colonial grants of Governor Dongan, who gave New York City the so-called Dongan charter, and it was proved that in 1685 he granted to Captain John Palmer all of the sandy peninsula known as Rockaway Beach, extending from low-water mark in Jamaica Bay to low-water mark in the Atlantic Ocean. The technicalities involved in the early land grants make a record on the appeal of the case of 329 printed pages, besides maps, surveys, photographs, and copies from the original records of the Town of Flatlands.

Gilbert Ray Hawes, who was instrumental in causing the passage by the Legislature several years ago of the Torrens Land Title Registration act, by which real estate titles may be registered in the State, said yesterday that this was the first instance in a contested Torrens act case wherein the judgment had been affirmed on appeal. It would dispose, he said, of many technicalities which had been advanced against the registration of titles under that method.

The Torrens act, which is now recognized by law in eleven States, provides for a simple system of registry of land titles whereby, when the proof of ownership has been established after examination by the Register and title lawyers under his supervision, this one examination suffices for all time, and future transfers of property are made directly on the original Torrens registration.

Why Live on Milk and Such Nursery Diet

Although you may have indigestion so severely that anything but the most limited diet causes you the keenest suffering, there is a simple way to get back safely onto pleasanter, more nourishing food. Just sip a glass or two of clear, good Man-a-cea Water with each meal and begin at once to eat a little of any food you crave. Man-a-cea Water is not a laxative, but stimulates the secretion of the digestive fluids and soon enables you to try one more good dinner without fear of bad results. Sold by all druggists. 6 MORE HEAT DEATHS; RELIEF IS PREDICTED

WOMAN DIES IN STREET

The indications last night were that the backbone of the heat wave was broken and that within the next twenty-four hours the city would obtain relief from the intolerable conditions of the past four days, which have caused a score of deaths and many prostrations.

Six more deaths were reported yesterday in Brooklyn, one in White Plains, and one in Elizabeth, N. J., as a direct result of the heat. The prostrations were even more numerous than on Sunday. The maximum temperature was 84 degrees at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, but while that was not considered unusual, the humidity remained high. At 8 o'clock in the morning it registered 91 per cent., and while it dropped to 60 per cent. at 4 o'clock it was back to 83 per cent. at 8 o'clock in the evening. This condition added greatly to the suffering caused by the heat.

The weather forecast for today reads "not so warm," and predicts occasional showers.

The Dead.

KELLY, CATHERINE, 55, 140 Hoyt Street, Brooklyn; overcome at home.

The Prostrations.

DRUDE, HARRY, 21, 124 West 107th Street; overcome in front of 324 West 103d Street; Knickerbocker Hospital.

MARTIN, JOSEPH, 42, 210 Meserole Street, Brooklyn; overcome in front of 47 Varick Street; home.

Woman Died in a Chair.

Mrs. Theodore Leizzenschmidt of 31 De Kalb Avenue, White Plains, was overcome in South Broadway. She dragged herself to the porch of the home of Frank Tucker and dropped into a chair. Tucker found her dead a few minutes later. She was 55 years old.

In Elizabeth, N. J., William Bowers, 26, of 108 Wall Street, who had complained of exhaustion because of the heat, went swimming in Staten Island Sound near the recreation pier, despite the protests of his friends. He was drowned. Those overcome by the heat in Elizabeth were Miss Rnnie Color, 39, of 120 Summer Street, Newark; Patrick Bradley of Arlington and Joseph Marone of Stapleton, S. I.; Miss Color was taken to the General Hospital in a critical condition. The others were removed to the Alexian Brothers Hospital.

In East New York James Johnson, 38, of 134 Alabama Avenue, fell from the fire escape of his home on the fourth floor. He suffered a fracture of the skull, a broken right leg, and several broken ribs. At the Kings County Hospital, where he was taken, it was said he had but little chance of recovery. Harry Portugal of 161 Park Place fell from a building at 457 Thatford Avenue, where he was working, and sustained serious internal injuries.

The severe thunder storm of Sunday night tore up the roads near Somerville, N. J., and as a result the hotels were filled with autoists from this city and Northern New Jersey who could not reach their homes. During the storm a coop containing 400 chickens was swept away and the chickens were drowned. Cellars were flooded and much damage was done.

At least 100,000 went to Coney Island for a swim yesterday. There were no accidents, and a slight rainfall in the early evening drove most of the people to their homes.

HEATED TERM IS BROKEN.

Cool Wave from Northwest May Continue All Week.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The heat wave, which caused a number of deaths and intense suffering in the Eastern half of the country, has been broken. A cool wave, approaching from the Northwest, has brought lower temperatures, which the Weather Bureau officials predict will continue until the end of the week. Higher temperatures, however, will prevail over the Pacific Coast and Northwest States.

A windstorm over Florida today brought relief from the heat in the South Atlantic States, but indications tonight pointed to a return of high temperatures there. Washington was the hottest of Eastern cities today, its official temperature being 94 degrees. Jacksonville, Fla., reported 78, Savannah 82, Baltimore and Philadelphia 90, Boston 72, Pittsburgh 84, Chicago 78, St. Louis 90, Kansas City 82, and maha 72.

POSTAL DENIES PHONE CUT.

Reduction in Rate Applies Only to Newspaper Telegraph Lines.

At the offices of the Postal Telegraph Company at 253 Broadway it was said yesterday that the reports that the company was contemplating a cut in the rates of its telephone service were not correct. The statement was made, however, that the Postal is rapidly extending its telephone service through the South, West, and Middle West, and it was asserted that the rates of the telephone companies connected with the Postal were, as a rule, lower than that of their competitors, their rates being based on a conversation of five minutes rather than three. It was said that the Postal's service is largely a recent growth and that the tariffs fixed at the time the various lines were started are still the ones best suited to the business done.

The report had arisen in connection with the announcement made Saturday night that the Postal had cut the rates on the leased telegraph wires for night press service in two. This rate, which went into effect yesterday, means that the rates of $10 a mile per year for wires leased by individual newspapers and $12 a mile per year for press associations was cut to $5 and $6 respectively. Charles C. Adams, Vice President of the Postal, in charge of the Traffic Department, said yesterday that the primary idea of this change was to benefit the smaller newspapers of the interior cities.

"Formerly," said Mr. Adams, "the smaller newspapers in the smaller towns could take only very limited service on general world news—perhaps 500 to 1,000 words a night to cover the entire news field. This has worked a considerable hardship, particularly since the war broke out, and the public everywhere is so deeply interested in foreign news, which it rarely read before. This reduction in the rates on leased wires ought to give an opportunity to many newspapers in smaller cities to afford their own wires and thus to get much fuller service on the news of the world at large."

ARREST DR. H. C. COE'S SON.

Railroad Detectives Accuse Him of Tempering with Switches.

Charged with having endangered the lives of passengers on the Putnam Division of the New York Central Railroad by unlocking switches and tampering with switch lights, Fordyce Coe, a son of Dr. Henry C. Coe of 8 West Seventy-sixth Street, was brought before Acting Police Judge Madden in Yonkers yesterday afternoon. Young Coe gave his age as 20, and claimed to be a student at the Columbia College of Journalism. Detectives in the employ of the railroad were notified during the morning that a young man was wandering along the right of way between the Van Cortlandt Station and Bryn Mawr, tampering with signal lights and switches. They found that several switches had been unlocked and some of the signal lights taken away. They arrested young Coe.

The detectives told Judge Madden they found young Coe wandering along the road and he refused to explain his presence there satisfactorily. The student was held to await the arrival of his father. "I was full of gin rickies and Scotch high balls," was the explanation he offered in court.

Dr. Coe said last night over the telephone that he had been away on a case and that his son's trouble had been simply the result of a schoolboy prank. He denied that the son had done any harm.

Dr. Coe's family was brought into prominence early this year when Henry Clarke Coe, Jr., another son, disappeared from his home in Boston. Mr. Coe left his young wife on the eve of becoming a mother. A country-wide search was made for him, and in May he was located in Fairbanks, Alaska. Henry Clarke Coe, Jr., was an employe in the Boston office of the Standard Oil Company.

ARRESTED AS DRUG THIEF.

Samuel Lippman Accused of Flundering Store by Daylight.

David Rubinstein, who had been waiting on a row of customers in his drug store at 384 Saratoga Avenue, East New York, yesterday afternoon, went back behind the screen into the rear of the store to make up a prescription and found a youth plundering his case of narcotics. Rubinstein grappled with him. The intruder, though pale and haggard, had a good deal of strength left, and managed to break away.

He got out into the back yard and climbed over a fence, shedding bottles of drugs as he ran, but was finally run down and caught by Patrolman Malloy of the Brownsville Station. He told the police his name was Samuel Sippman and that after he had found himself unable to buy drugs he could not break himself of the habit. He was held on a charge of burglary.

GENERAL TRACY IS DYING.

Physician Gives Up Hope for ex-Secretary of the Navy.

General Benjamin F. Tracy, Secretary of the Navy under President Harrison, who has been crditically ill at his home, 14 East Sixtieth Street, for the last few days, was said late last night to have failed rapidly during the day.

Dr. William B. Pritchard, of 143 West Seventy-second Street, who has been the General's physician for the last twenty-two years, said that his patient's wonderful vitality was all that was sustaining him and that his death was probably only a question of hours. He said that General Tracy was slowly losing ground and that there was no hope for recovery. His daughter, Mrs. Ferdinand Wilmerding, is constantly at his bedside.

VESSEL INSPECTORS SHACKLED TOGETHER

GOVERNMENT TO RESCUE

Habeas Corpus Suit Begun to Take Accused Officials Out of Hands of State of Illinois.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Conflict between the Federal Department of Commerce and Maclay Hoyne, State's attorney, arose today at the investigation of the steamer Eastland disaster, because Robert Reid and C. C. Eckliff, the Federal Steamboat Inspectors who gave the Eastland its last license, were brought, handcuffed together, before Secretary of Commerce Redfield and the Steamboat Inspection Service Board.

Application for a writ of habeas corpus to take the Inspectors from the State officers was filed in the United States District Court by the Inspectors' attorney after a consultation with A. L. Thurman, Solicitor of the Department of Commerce. Judge Landis will hear the case tomorrow.

Several members of the Steamboat Inspection Service gave testimony before Secretary Redfield, who is conducting an inquiry as provided by the rules of his department. Late in the day, while Ira B. Mansfield, Inspector of Hulls at Chicago, was testifying, Inspectors Reid and Eckliff, who had been arrested on a Coroner's mittimus, were brought into the room handcuffed to a Deupty Sheriff. The Inspectors walked up in front of Secretary Redfield and raised their hands, while the Deputy Sheriff removed the manacles.

"If these Government Inspectors are to be handcuffed and treated in this manner by State officers," said Solicitor Thurman, "I shall start a fight for jurisdiction over them."

State's Attorney Hoyne was called to confer with United States District Attorney Clyne and Mr. Thurman. The Federal attorneys announced that application would be made for a writ of habeas corpus, and Mr. Hoyne said he would oppose the removal of Reid and Eckliff from the jurisdiction of the State. Mr. Hoyne said he did not order the Sheriff to handcuff the Inspectors.

As Reid and Eckliff had virtually been subpoenaed for the Federal Grand Jury, it was decided that they should not again be asked to give evidence to the Redfield board.

Secretary Redfield announced that an equilibrium test of all passenger-carrying steamers on the Great Lakes would be made, and that the work of Steamboat Inspectors during the last fifteen years would be investigated, as suggested by Lieutenant Governor Barratt O'Hara. It was announced that an advisory committee of business men, consisting of P. B. Foulke of St. Louis, Charles C. Jenks of Detroit, and Charles A. McCormick of New Brunswick, N. J., would assist Secretary Redfield in the investigation.

Mr. Redfield received two threatening letters today. One declared that the writer would "push the Secretary into the river," and was signed "Murderer." The other was signed "Republicans," and advised Mr. Redfield to leave the city immediately for fear some crank would kill him.

"I have received many such letters," said Secretary Redfield. "They are idle threats and mean nothing."

Captain Harry Pedersen of the Eastland, who had been in jail since shortly after the disaster, was released on $10,000 bail today.

No bodies were recovered from the capsized Eastland today. The known dead remained at 839, with 142 reported missing.

CORNISH, N. H., Aug. 2.—President Wilson continued today to receive protests from Chicago against the conduct of the Federal investigation into the Eastland disaster. Up to the present he has taken no action. He is receiving reports almost daily form Secretary Redfield.

TO AVERT GARMENT STRIKE.

Mediators Confer as Votes of 60,000 Union Members Are Counted.

While the last votes of 60,000 members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union were being cast yesterday on the question of a general strike, representatives of the union and of the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association met at the Chamberlain's office in the Municipal Building in an effort to avoid a break.

The failure of the Manufacturers' Association to ratify the adjustment proposed by the Council of Conciliation has been due, it is said, to the interpretation placed by the union on the clause of the council's decision which limits the right of the employer to lay off workmen and to the finding in favor of a distribution which would keep all employes at work, though at reduced hours, in dull seasons.

The council was in conference all day, and will meet again today in order to define these points exactly.

The last votes of the unionists were cast last night, and the counting began at 9 o'clock. Union leaders said the counting of the ballots was only a necessary formality, as the vote had been overwhelmingly in favor of the strike.

WED, THEN TOLD PARENTS.

Miss Hyde to Follow Example of Her Sister, Who Eloped.

Without taking their parents into their confidence, Miss Helen Hyde, a daughter of Raymond Newton Hyde, of Main Avenue, Douglaston, L. I., and Paul Byrnes, son of James C. Byrnes, of 50 North Nineteenth Street, Flushing, were married yesterday in Long Island City.

At the home of Miss Hyde it was said at first that she was on her vacation. There was surprise over the taking out of a marriage license. Late in the afternoon Miss Hyde, then Mrs. Byrnes, telephoned her father that she and Mr. Byrnes had been married in Queens and were then headed toward New Jersey on a honeymoon trip. About the same time her husband notified his family. The surprise in the Barnes home was as great as in that of Mr. Hyde.

Miss Hyde followed the example of her sister, Mrs. Edith Hyde Robbins, who married Tod Robbins, athlete, polo player, author, and wealthy society man of Brooklyn, in 1909, and five years later divorced him.

over the prison situation, which is rapidly approaching a crisis. It is understood that Mr. Riley is angered at the degree of demoralization in discipline at Sing Sing.

Eight or ten prisoners, members of Mr. Osborne's Mutual Welfare League, according to the documentary evidence now in the hands of Mr. Riley, have been admitted to the death house at Sing Sing every Sunday night to entertain the condemned men with singing. The cell corridor, according to the account of conditions at the prison now in Mr. Riley's hands, on these occasions would be filled with prisoners, and conversation between them and the men in the condemned cells was easy, despite the presence of two guards.

Superintendent Riley had also, it was said tonight, evidence to show that Spence, a murderer, and Scalzo and Pillods, two white slavers, with long terms before them, who recently escaped from Sing Sing, had unusual privileges. The two white slavers, on a written order, were actually outside the prison walls at the time they escaped.

A week ago last Saturday, after Joseph Murphy, a convicted murderer, who made an affidavit which furnished the basis for the Becker proceedings before Justice Ford, had confessed to the Governor that he had talked with Becker in the death house at the Sunday night concert on June 20, Governor Whitman urged Superintendent Riley to impress on Warden Osborne the necessity of living up to the law governing admission to the death house. Superintendent Riley said today that he issued orders accordingly at once, but that for three days Warden Osborne did not even acknowledge receipt of the instructions.

The Governor, it is known, is very much displeased with the present management of Sing Sing Prison. Events, incidental to the execution of Becker, it is said, have deepened the Governor's conviction that Mr. Osborne's management is too loose, yet it is understood that the Governor does not at present intend to take any step looking to Mr. Osborne's removal. The Governor feels that Warden Osborne is directly responsible to Superintendent Riley, and that the appointment and removal of Prison Wardens is within the province of the Superintendent of Prisons exclusively.

Late tonight word reached the Capitol that Mr. Osborne in an interview had prognosticated his own removal within ten days, and also ventured the opinion that he "would come back."

"I really have not given this subject any thought," said State Superintendent of Prisons John B. Riley when he heard of this. "Mr. Osborne's suggestion is news to me."

Westchester Democrat Resigns.

The Democratic County Committee of Westchester yesterday afternoon at its meeting in White Plains accepted the resignation of Michael J. Walsh as county leader. It elected Clifford B. Couch of Peekskill, an attorney, as his successor. It is said that Mr. Walsh is grooming himself as candidate for the nomination for State Controller. Mayor Edwin W. Fiske of Mount Vernon, who is not a Walsh man, resigned as Vice Chairman. His successor was not elected.

LAWN TENNIS—NEW YORK YACHT CLUB FLEET ASSEMBLES AT NEW LONDON

R. N. WILLIAMS BEATS GRIFFIN AT TENNIS

Special to The New York Times.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 2.—R. Norris Williams, 2d, national tennis champion, saved the honor of the East today and got revenge for his Pacific Coast defeat of a few weeks ago.

The Harvard crack won over Clarence J. Griffin of San Francisco in straight sets at 9—7, 7—5, 6—1 on the Longwood courts in the fifth round of the singles of this annual tennis classic.

Conditions for playing were none too good because the day was so dark during the final set that the spectators and players could hardly see the ball. Notwithstanding these drawbacks the match was bitterly fought from start to finish. Griffin was tired out and so exhausted that the outcome was virtually a foregone conclusion. The first two sets were very thrilling, as the score 9—7 and 7—5 will indicate.

Griffin was fast on his feet and caused Williams lots of trouble. He was out to duplicate his feat on the Pacific Coast, which he did on asphalt, but he found the turf courts more difficult. Williams's play was more severe. For two long sets it was nip and tuck between the players.

The San Francisco player's quick, straight drive, without either a top or cut and his ability to pick openings left his more famous rival no time to play a waiting game. If anything Williams did the greater amount of footing.

Williams was slow in getting under way, and he repeatedly made errors during the first six games, while Griffin went after every point. Griffin ran up a 4-to-1 lead before Williams started to show his real form. After getting started he caused Griffin trouble with his bombardment of forehand and backhand drives and cannon ball volleys. They were not all point winners, but enough to enable Williams to prove conclusively that he was in the running. The Harvard star jumped into the front for the first time in the eleventh game. Griffin rallied in turn and fought Williams off for five more games.

Williams was steadier and less brilliant in the second set, but the play was faster and closer. After that games alternated with the services generally, and again the Californian with a fine attack and defense caused the set to go extra games. The fact that the set went extra games took much out of Griffin and enabled Williams to almost obtain a whitewash in the third set.

Nat Niles won his place in the final round all alone, as Williams and Johnson are still hung up in the semi-finals. Niles defeated Craig Biddle of Philadelphia in a very interesting match. It went to four sets, Biddles' clever play keeping the Bostonian on the jump for three sets, but the latter made a walkaway of the fourth. Biddle was showing signs of distress because of the strenuous work in the early sets. At the start Biddle was rather unsteady but more brilliant than his opponent.

Since Boston must share Williams with Philadelphia Niles is the only local star still in the tourney. Wallace Johnson showed up wonderfully well against Watson M. Washburn of New York, winning without much trouble.

Niles will play the winner of the match tomorrow between Williams and Johnson for the honor of playing Maurice E. McLoughlin of San Francisco in the challenge round. The summary:

Longwood Singles, Fifth Round.—R. N. Williams, 2d, Harvard, defeated C. J. Griffin, San Francisco, 9—7, 7—5, 6—1; W. F. Johnson, Philadelphia, defeated W. M. Washburn, New York, 6—3, 6—1, 6—4.

Man and Major Defeat Baggs and Ostendorf in Tennis Tourney.

Alrick H. Man, Jr., and Cedric A. Major, who are entered in the tennis tournament at Norwalk for the championship of Connecticut, arranged to play their first round matches today in order to enable them to compete in the semi-final and final rounds of the invitation men's doubles of the Edgemere Club tournament yesterday at Edgemere, L. I. The arrangement proved a satisfactory one for the pair, for they won the event by taking their unfinished match with Arthur M. Lovibond and Wylie C. Grant, and defeating Ralph L. Baggs and A. J. Ostendorf in the final round.

The victory of Man and Major was expected, as they had survived a series of competitions, defeating among other teams Vanderbilt B. Ward and Dr. William Rosenbaum. Each succeeding tournament finds the partnership more firmly cemented and with increasing knowledge of each other's strong and weak points the combination will prove a formidable one. The score in the unfinished match was 6—2, 7—5, and the result of the final round was 6—1, 6—2, 6—4.

When rain stopped the play on Sunday Man and Major led Lovibond and Grant, 6—2, 2—2. The match was continued yesterday, and the Seventh Regiment combination made a much better showing. Lovibond's steadiness and accuracy brought the games to 5—all. Man and Major then rallied and by forcing the issue won the next two games and match.

The excessive heat did not appear to affect Man and Major in their match with Baggs and Ostendorf. They played with a confidence that spelled victory. From the outset they completely outclassed their opponents, and met no opposition until the third set, when they stopped a rally by Baggs and Ostendorf, and saved an extra game set. They were particularly strong in their overhead smashing, while Man, who devoted his attention to the net found many undefended spots with his cross-court shots. The summary:

Edgemere Club Invitation Men's Doubles.—Semi-Final Round—Alrick H. Man, Jr., and Cedric A. Major defeated Arthur M. Lovibond and Wylie C. Grant, 6—2, 7—5.

Final Round—Alrick H. Man, Jr., and Cedric A. Major defeated Ralph L. Baggs and A. J. Ostendorf, 6—1, 6—2, 6—4.

New Hampshire Tennis Starts.

Special to The New York Times.

CRAWFORD NOTCH, N. H., Aug. 2.—Heavy showers this morning did not interfere with the starting in the afternoon of the annual New Hampshire State and White Mountain tennis championship tournament at the Crawford Notch Lawn Tennis Club courts and a large gallery asembled to see the preliminary play. Forty-six entries were received, and the winner of the singles will oppose James Nowell in the challenge round for a leg on the Crawford Notch Challenge Cup. The scores:

Hemple and Smith Matched.

Jock Hemple and Gunboat Smith have been matched in the main bout at the St. Nicholas Rink, Wednesday evening, Aug. 11. Hemple has "stopped" every man he has boxed since arriving in the East.

G. M. CHURCH A VICTOR.

Princetonian Now Favorite for Western Tennis Championship.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Heath Byford, Chicago, upset predictions today by defeating W. M. Johnston of San Francisco in the first round of the Western Tennis Tournament at Lake Forest. It was a signal victory for the Illinois champion, since critics generally had predicted his defeat by the Californian, and bemoaned the fact that the draw placed the local favorite against a star in the first round. Errors cost Johnston the match. He made 76 to Byford's 54, though he earned 39 of his points to the Chicagoan's 20. The score was 3—6, 7—5, 6—4.

G. M. Church, the Princeton player, with Johnston out, became favorite. He had little trouble defeating J. D. Boven of Chicago, 6—1, 6—1, in the second round, to which he moved through a default. J. J. Armstrong, St. Paul, easily won from H. F. Logan, Chicago, 6—2, 6—2.

It was decided to postpone two men's matches. A few matches, all between local teams, were recorded in the men's doubles. Summaries:

Men Singles.—First Round—Clarence J. Griffin, San Francisco, defaulted to D. A. Knoche, Chicago; Watson M. Washburn, New York, defaulted to H. S. Knox, Chicago; Jesse Spaulding, Chicago, defaulted to F. A. Thompson, Chicago; Walter Hayes, Chicago, defeated N. A. Augur, Chicago, 6—1, 6—0; M. G. Ketchum, Chicago, defeated Joe Adams, Omaha, 6—3, 6—3; J. J. Armstrong, St. Paul, defeated F. H. Logan, Chicago, 6—2, 6—2; John A. Krugh, Kansas City, defeated Harold Hodge, Buffalo, by default; Heath Byford, Chicago, defeated William M. Johnston, San Francisco, 3—6, 7—5, 6—4; W. A. Futterer, Chicago, defeated R. N. Hamilton, Milwaukee, by default; G. M. Church, Tenafly, N. J., defeated Fred Appel, Indianapolis, by default; J. J. Forstall, Chicago, defeated J. Burnham, Burlington, Iowa, by default.

Second Round—Al Lindauer, Chicago, defeated Jimmy Weber, Chicago, 6—2, 6—1; M. E. McLoughlin, San Francisco, defaulted to Deering Davis, Chicago; John Adams, St. Paul, defaulted to H. Raeder, Chicago; Dean Mathey, Princeton, defaulted to A. Ries, Chicago; R. N. Williams, Jr., Philadelphia, defaulted to George W. Fargo, Chicago; Al J. Green, Chicago, won from A. Stevenson, Chicago, 6—1, 6—2; G. M. Church, Princeton, defeated J. D. Bowen, Chicago, 6—1, 6—1; Jerry Weber, Chicago, defeated H. S. Knox, Chicago, by default; Staver Moulding, Chicago, defeated E. T. Pancoast, Chicago, 6—4, 6—4; Paul Gardner, Chicago, defeated E. Rockwell, Chicago, 6—2, 7—5; Ralph Burdick, Chicago, defeated W. J. Hoppe, Chicago, 6—0, 6—2; H. James, Chicago, defeated Glen Gooder, Chicago, 6—0, 6—1; L. K. Callahan, Chicago, defeated H. F. Ferry, Chicago, 4—6, 6—4, 6—0; Francis Benson, Decatur, Ill., defeated R. L. Van Arsdale, Chicago, by default; R. E. Turvey, Chicago, defeated H. M. Merrill, by default.

BASSFORD AND KING WIN.

Straight-Set Victory in Hudson River Tennis Championship Doubles.

The third of the Hudson River Lawn Tennis Association championships was decided yesterday on the courts of the Park Hill Country Club, near Yonkers, when Abraham Bassford, Jr., County Tennis Club of Westchester, and George King, Columbia University, defeated Dr. S. H. Rowe and J. L. Jova in the final round of the men's doubles in straight sets at 6—2, 6—0, 7—5.

With the defeat of Steinkampf and Forster in the semi-final round last week, the only possible stumbling block to Bassford and King's victory was removed, and the result was about the same as was expected. The winning combination showed more effectiveness than when the two players joined issue in the New York Lawn Tennis Club tournament early in the season. The pair played through the three sets with an even pace and appeared to understand each other's play.

Bassford kept in the back court and devoted his attention to the lobbing for which he is famous, while King played a net game and smashed the ball to all sections of the opposite court. Rowe and Jova did not succeed in uncovering a very strong defense, and allowed their opponents to score on many passing shots.

The first two sets were decided in easy manner, Bassford and King allowing their opponents only two games. The leaders, feeling secure, eased up in the third set, and the score was carried to deuce before Bassford and King once more settled down to business. They broke through Jova's service and won their own. The summary:

Hudson River Lawn Tennis Association, Men's Doubles Championship.—Final Round—Abraham Bassford, Jr., and George King defeated Dr. S. H. Rowe and J. L. Jova, 6—2, 6—0, 7—5.

Bowler E. W. Pierson Dead.

Edward W. Pierson of Newark, one of the most prominent bowlers in the country, died Sunday afternoon at Saranac Lake of tuberculosis. He was 45 years old and almost all his life had taken a keen interest in athletics, but his particular enjoyment has been in bowling. For two years he was President of the Newark Bowling Association, and as a member of the Roseville A. R. took part in the N. B. A. tournaments. Tis active participation in bowling covered a period of eighteen years. He was for twenty-three eyars connected with the Prudential Insurance Company and was one of the organizers of the Prudential A. A. The funeral will be held today from his late home at 190 South Eleventh Street, Newark.

NEW YORK Y. C. FLEET READY FOR CRUISE

200 Yachts at New London Will Start Today on Port-to-Port Sail in East.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 2.—About 20 0yachts flying the burgee of the New York Yacht Club were anchored in the Thames River off New London tonight, prepared to leave early tomorrow for Newport on the first run of the annual port-to-port cruise. Commodore George F. Baker's flagsip Viking broke out signals at sunset, declaring the 1916 cruise in commission, and immediately the harbor resounded with a salute of cannon.

Captains of the various yachts reported aboard the flagship, and final details of the cruise were discussed. A formal receptoion was held aboard the Viking tonight, which was attended by the yacht owners and their guests.

There were more large steam yachts and auxiliaries in the squadron than in any cruise of recent years. While the various racing classes had filled to the satisfaction of the Regatta Committee, interest in the port races was increased by the presence of the Resolut and Vanitie. These boats alone are to sail in out-and-out racing trim.

Among the larger of the steamers beside the Viking here are J. P. Morgan's Corsair, Henry Walter's Narada, W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr.'s, Tarantula, ex-Commodore E. C. Benedict's Oneida, Morton F. Plant's Kanawha, F. G. Bourne's Alberta, Allison V. Armour's Utowana, W. Sharpe Kilmer's Remlik, D. W. Smith's Virginia, Huston Wyeth's Nemaha, James Elverson, Jr.'s Allegro, Edgar Palmer's Guinevere, Henry Gilsey's Ertanax, Henry W. Putnam, Jr.'s Alcyone, C. W. Harkness's Agawa, C. J. Doval's Paragon, Walter Lippincott's Lady Betty, W. D. Hoxie's Idalia, R. P. Perkin's Mohican, R. Eldridge's Kehtoh, H. H. Hogin's Ilewellyn, C. J. Eisenlohr's Miramie, M. B. Mills's Cynthia III., W. C. Hubbard's Leda, and E. Walter Clark's Zipalong.

The houseboast were represented by the giants of the class, the Everglades of Arthur Curtis, James Seminole of H. C. Phipps, Alela of A. H. Disston, and Lodoma of James G. Wilson.

The cup class yachts Resolute and Vanitie loomed larger among the sloops, which included also J. M. MacDonough's Spartan, H. P. Whitney's Barbr, George F. Baker, Jr's. Ventura, Harold S. Vanderbilt's Vagrant, R. N. Ellis's Iroquois II., W. E. Dodge's Samuri, and the Grayling, Carolina, and Acushla of the racing fleet, with the half dozen New York thirties which had made the run up from New Haven in the day's competition.

The schooners included Clifford R. Hendrix's Radiant, Lloyd Phoenix's Intrepid, J. D. Ford's Katrina, M. F. Plant's Elena, G. H. Worthington's Priscilla, Herbert M. Sears's onstellation, Robert E. Tod's Katowa, W. H. Judson's Rival, Howard C. Smith's Ahmakola, I. E. Raymond's Hopewell, and a score of lesser two and three stickers and sound schooners.

About 9 o'clock tomorrow the fleet will leave for Newport, Resolute and Vanitie accompanying and racing once more for a special cup. Schooners of all sizes in one class, sloops and yawls in another will race for the navy challenge cups.

The Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club fleet, which was expected to arrive here this evening, had not been reported at a late hour. The Corinthians sailed in a head wind and against the tide, and a thick fog enveloped their course this evening, which accounts for the nonarrival of the fleet.

A course dead to windward took them from New Haven Breakwater for a long leg on the port tack of twenty miles close to the Long Island shore. When they came about for the trip to this port the wind had about deserted them and they faced a fog bank and an adverse tide. These tested patience, seamanship and sailing luck.

Among Harlem River Oarsmen.

The Nonpareil Rowing Club will be represented in three races in the National Rowing Regatta at Springfield, Mass., on Aug. 13-14.

Captain R. H. Pearse will row in the quarter mile dash and in the senior singles. In the dash he will again encounter Everard Butler of Canada, who beat him by inches at Philadelphia last year.

Livingston, Mullen, Faber, and McLaughlin will represent the club in the race for intermediate four-oared shells.

Pearse has been coaching this crew, but will turn it over this week to Fred Plaisted, the professoinal oarsman and assistant to Coach Rice at Columbia University.

Uttley, ex-Captain of the Nonpareils, has taken Hamilton, Keenan, Howard, and other younger members of the club in hand and will develop a junior centipede to compete in the Middle States Regatta at Philadelphia, Sept. 6, and in the Fall regatta on the Harlem.

The Union Boat Club is giving its attention to developing junior oarsmen for the New York Rowing Associatoin Regatta on the Speedway course, Sept. 12. This will be the first Sunday regatta held on this river in many years.

YAWL FLAMINGO AGROUND.

R. L. Bigelow's Small Racing Craft Fast on Seal Rock in Sound.

SAYBROOK, Conn., Aug. 2.—The auxiliary yawl Flamingo, owned by R. L. Bigelow of the New York Yacht Club, is aground on Seal Rock tonight inside of Cornfield Light. The yawl struck late today, and when the tide fell found herself fast. What damage, if any, she has suffered, is not known yet. Flamingo is fifty-four feet long overall.

The point where the yawl struck is about four miles inside Cornfield Light and a short distance off shore. Two women, members of the party of nine on board, were brought ashore, but the rest of the party remained on board. An effort to float the boat will be made at high tide.

The Flamingo left Bridgeport this morning with other boats of the New York Yacht Club, which had started for New London for the annual cruise, but were compelled to put into Bridgeport because of the fog on Long Island Sound.

When the start for New London was made today the fog still hung over the Sound, making navigation difficult. The first intimation that those on board had that they were out of their course was when the yawl struck. At the same time the engine clutch broke. The sails were hoisted, but the boat simply spun around, and investigation showed that it was hard aground.

PUBLIC PARKS TENNIS.

Final Round in Singles Will Be Played on Saturday.

The tennis players competing in the championship of the Public Parks Lawn Tennis Association will reach the final round of the singles of the deciding tournament on Saturday. The program was arranged by William H. Brown, Jr., the President of the Parks Association, and A. Enklewitz and other members of the Executive Committee at a meeting held yesterday.

According to the arrangements which may be made between the individual park champions, the matches in the semi-final round of the singles will be contested tomorrow or Thursday afternoon. Francis J. Hopkins, Jr., the Van Cortlandt Park winner, will play the Sunset Park champion on the McComb's Dam Park courts. On the same courts Marty Alexander, Claremont Park winner, will play Russell Brown, the singles title holder of Central Park. The matches wi be the best two out of three sets.

Interested committeemen decided to bring about the matches in the other section of the draw on the courts at Van Cortandt Park, where Louis Oshman, the Crotona Park champion, plays H. Dulborger, the McComb's Dam Park title holder, and H. Berman, winner at Bronx Park, plays the Prospect Park champion.

The players who win places in the semi-finals will arrange to play their opponents in the matches for the final on the same courts not later than 1 o'clock next Saturday afternoon. The students of form among the committee favored Brown of Central Park as the finalist in the upper half, with Oshman of Crotona as winner in the lower division.

The doubles championship match for the Central Park title was checked by the storm on Sunday after each of the pairs had won two sets. It proved a gruelling match of the most desperate type. Ray Kriss and Edward Gordon, the holders of the doubles honors, led off at 4—2 on games in the first set. Then Kriss became over-confident. He attempted to take liberties in the way of trying fancy smashes. It wrecked the chances of his side, for Louis Joffe and Jack Joffe sailed into the rallies, lobbing prettily at the most unexpected times, so that they reeled off four games and won the set. The balance of four sets was fought with plenty of fast driving interspersed by high lobbing, especially from the Joffe side of the net. The Joffe brothers by the most courageous sort of playing in rallies pulled out the set after Kriss and Gordon had forced the score to games all.

Kramer Fears He'll Lose Title.

EAST ORANGE, N. J., Aug. 2.—Cycle Champion Frank L. Kramer, who has held the national title for the last fourteen years, admits that it looks as if he had reached the end of his wonderful record. When discussing the situation at his home, 65 North Maple Avenue, this city, the champion said:

"I am away off form and with the hot weather to contend with I am doubtful of my ability to gain my best form again until late in the season. As the remaining championship races will be run off this month, it appears as if I am likely to lose the title."

Kramer has been hard pressed during the last few weeks by Alfred Goullet, the Australian cyclist, who is a much younger man. Goullet is showing the best form of his career.

Kramer trained on the roads of East Orange as a boy twenty years ago, and from the time he began to win laurels as an amateur has been the strongest card at the Vailsburgh track, just over the line in Newark. He has saved his winings as a champion cyclist and invested in East Orange real estate.

Marathon Won by Ted Johnson.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 30.—The Far Western track and field championship of the Amateur Athletic Union opened at the Panama-Pacific Exposition Stadium today. Preliminary heats were run in all events except one, the Modified Marathon being won by Ted Johnson of Denver in 1:13:05 1-5. R. H. Lee of San Francisco finished second, fifty yards behind. Five associations of the A. A. U. were represented, the athletes coming from the Pacific, Southern Pacific, Rocky Mountain, Intermountain, and Pacific Northwestern divisions.

EASTERN ATHLETES ARRIVE AT THE FAIR

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—Norman Taber, world's record holder for a paced mile, arrived here today shortly before noon ready for the competition in the National Track and Field championships of Saturday. Taber appeared to be in prime condition. He came direct from Portland, where he has spent the past four days in training. After a preliminary talk with the exposition athletic officials Taber went to the Panama-Pacific Fair cinderpath, where he spent part of the afternoon in limbering up exercises. It is the plan of the former Oxford star to work every morning up to Friday, on which day he will lay off from work.

The balance of the Eastern contingent is expected to put in an appearance Wednesday afternoon or evening. The New York Athletic Club team is somewhere on the road to this city while the Irish-Americans are expected soon.

Frederick W. Rubien, Secretary of the A. A. U., arrived today and will call a meeting of the Championship Committee at the Olympic Club for Wednesday evening, for a final consideration of track meet details.

All of the Chicago and Illinois athlecit club athletec have reported for work on the Exposition cinders. J. Loomis and Joie Ray are attracting the most attention. Loomis says he is ready for anything and welcomes a chance to meet Alma Richards, the Cornell star, in the high jump. And it looks right now as if this high jump will be one of the best events upon the program, with Richards, Loomis and George Horine ready. Horine is in particularly fine shape and will bend every effort to defeat Richards and deverse Olympic games tables. Horine has cleared six feet four inches in practice, and figures to surpass this in competition.

Mel Shepard and his string of Melrose A. A. stars is on the ground and ready for work. Willie Kyronen, national five-mile champion, Nick Gianakopulos junior cross country national champion, and Charley Pores, recent winner of the Seagate marathon, are all running well. Kyronen seems to be working better than Pores and Gianakopulos.

Pacific Coast stars are counting upon certain points in Saturday's championships. Drew is almost a certainty in the century, Fred Kelly is being counted a sure thing in the high hurdles, while George Horine should count in the high jump. Sam Bellah of the Multnomah Athletic Club of Portland is also to be considered in the pole vault, as he accomplished a leap of 12 feet 8 inches last Saturday in the Far Western championships without much effort. Another coast luminary expected to show is Fred Murray of the Olympic Club, who ran the low hurdles in 0:23 3-5 last Saturday, defeating Kelly of Los Angeles over the distance. A wind blowing at the backs of the starters made the time unusually fast.

Three hundred and eighty-eight entries have been received by the exposition officials for both the junior and senior championships. Heats will be run in both sprints and hurdles, and possibly in the quarter mile. It is also expected that preliminary eliminations will be held in the field in such events as the high jump, broad jump, pole vault, and shot put.

EXPECTS $100,000 HOUSE.

McFarland-Gibbons Bout Promoters Hope to Sell 50,000 Tickets.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 2.—The ten-round bout between Packey McFarland and Mike Gibbons became a certainty today, when the two principals accepted the terms offered by the Ocean Athletic Club of Brighton Beach, New York City.

After an all-day session in the Planters Hotel, Gibbons agreed to take $15,000 for his end, without the privilege of a percentage. McFarland previously had accepted an offer of $17,500. Details of the battle were agreed upon, and all that remains is the formal signing of articles, which will take place tomorrow.

All records for financing a limited-round battle were broken by the promoters. As the matter stands now, the Ocean A. C. stands pledged to pay out $32,500 cash to the principals, and in order to stage the battle additional expenses of $10,000 to $15,000 will be necessary.

The bout will take place at the Brighton Beach Motordrome on the night of Sept. 11. Arrangements for seating 50,000 persons will be provided. The prices will range from $1 to $5, and the tickets will be placed on sale immediately, to forestall any activity by scalpers.

W. C. Marshall of the Ocean A. C. never has promoted boxing before. He is a railroad contractor in New York, and, with his cousin, Chauncey, also conducts the Brighton Baths. He was a little limp tonight after all the business had been settled.

"We offered Gibbons $10,000 cash and a privilege of 25 per cent. on all receipts over $60,000," said Mr. Marshall. "We expected him to snap at this offer, but he held out flat for $15,000.

"I have had no previous experience with fighters and considered this demand exorbitant. However, everything has been settled now and we are all feeling fine. I believe we will put $100,000 in the house, provided weather and other conditions are good."

QUESTION TABER'S RECORD.

Objectors Say Race Was Not True in Real Sense of the Word.

Considerable controversy has developed in track and field circles as to the propriety of accepting the new world's record of 4:12 3-5 for the mile run, made by Norman Taber in the Harvard Stadium on July 17. The contention of the objectors to accepting the figures is that the time was made in a special trial and not in a race in the true sense of the word. Few followers of athletics realize the difficulty of finding a field and conditions that will give a runner of Taber's type the opportunity to break such a record even though he has the ability.

W. G. George of England set the time for the mile at 4:21 2-5 in 1882, and this time was not lowered by an amateur until 1895, when Tommy Conneff ran the distance in 2:15 3-5. There it stood until 1911, when John Paul Jones reduced it one-fifth of a second, and two years later cut a whole second off that time. In this race Jones had as opponents Taber, Brown; Harmon, Dartmouth, and Madeira of Pennsylvania, all of whom finished in the order named. This was an extraordinary field, and forced Jones to run at his best speed to win in time less than two seconds slower than George's record of 4:12¾, made when a professional in 1886.

In the race in which George established the world's record that Taber broke the English professional had as his opponent in the match contest at Lilliebridge, London, Billy Cummings, a runner of almost equal ability. It can be seen, therefore, that it is seldom that a group of runners of sufficient speed can be gathered under perfect racing conditions to warrant expectations of reducing records which have reached the point where the mile figures are today. Taber could have in all probability lowered the record just as much, or perhaps more, had he been able to race the full mile against a field of several runners capable of staying with him for the entire distance at a speed inside 4:15. Just where to find such a field the objectors to the record fail to state.

Hunt Meeting at Elkins Park.

Entry blanks for the annual hunt meeting of Lynewood Farm at Elkin Park, Penn., on Oct. 16, were issued by Frank J. Bryan, racing secretary, yesterday. The meet will be held under sanction of the Hunts Committee of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association. Entries will close on Thursday, Oct. 7. Six races are scheduled, with purses ranging up to $500. One of the feature races will be for the Fulminate Plate, open to registered hacks and hunters, and horses owned by the United States Government or officers of the United States Army. The other events are the Caller Plate, handicap, for all ages; the Cheltenham Steeplechase, for maidens, three years old and upward; the El Cuchillo Plate, for three-year-olds and upward; the Lynewood Challenge Cup, steeplechase, for registered hunters, and the Coligny Steeplechase, for four-year-olds and upward.

Canadian Athletes to Go to War.

Thomas Boyd, President of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, in a recent statement, suggests fewer competitions and appeals to members of athletic organizations to join the overseas corps. He says:

"Kitchener says he needs more men, and we all realize that when he says it he means it.

"This is the reason I am appealing to all those who have no ties to hold them back, and especially the unmarried members of the many athletic organizations throughout Canada, to join at once the various corps now being recruited.

"The elimination of cup games at this juncture would give to the men engaged an opportunity to realize the gravity of the situation, and enable them to put their fighting qualities at the disposal of their King and country. The athletes of Canada have done nobly in filling the ranks of previous contingents. All honor to them. Those of you to whom this appeal reaches, show your patriotism by enlisting at once. 'Do your bit.'"

The Manitoba branch of the Canadian A. U. is urging all athletes to enlist for active service or home defense.

YANKEES DEFEAT WHITE SOX IN NINTH INNING RALLY—SARATOGA RACING

SCOTT'S WILD TOSS LETS IN WINNING RUN

Without the aid of white whiskers, a red bonnet, or a team of reindeers, Jim Scott of the White Sox gave a perfect impersonation of Santa Claus at the Polo Grounds yesterday. Christmas is a long way off, but so was the ball when Jim threw it away in the ninth inning and let Eddie Barney come home with the run which gave the Yanks a 3 to 2 victory. If one gift deserves another, Scott has an automobile or a suit of clothes or something coming from Bill Donovan.

Urban Faber pitched great ball against the Yankees up to the ninth inning. He allowed only four scattered hits, and skillfully suppressed the Yankees the few times they threatened to score. The Yankees went into the ninth inning with the score 2 to 0 against them.

Maisel lifted a long fly to Murphy. Pipp clouted Faber for a single, and Charley Mullen was enlisted to run for Pipp. Doc Cook pounded a single to right, and Mullen went to third. Barney rolled an easy grounder to Eddie Collins. Ordinarily this $25,000 portion of Connie Mack's late lamented $100,000 infield would have evolved a neat little double play out of this incident and given young Faber the support he deserved.

Collins handled the ball as if it was an anarchist's bomb. He picked it up and dropped it and then repeated the operation. It seemed as if he dropped it oftener than he picked it up. Anyway, by the time he found out that the ball wasn't red-hot, Barney was safe at first and Mullen had crossed the plate.

Paddy Bauman lofted one to Shano Collins and made it two out. Roy Hartzell assumed the pinch-hitting rôle for Alexander. Hartzell slashed a single to right and scored Doc Cook with the run that tied the score. Clarence Rowland, the Sox manager, went out and told Faber to hurry to the clubhouse, where somebody wanted him on the 'phone.

From the wilds of right field stalked Jim Scott. Nunamaker went in as pinch-hitter for Brown, and he got a pass, filling the bases. Hughey High was at the bat when Scott unraveled a peg which was far out of Ray Schalk's reach and, Barney went home with the victory.

King Cole made his reappearance in these parts for the Yankees, and his home coming was welcomed by some tissue paper support from his team mates. Cole pitched a game that was good enough to win anywhere. Walter Alexander, the new Yankee catcher from Kansas City, was behind the bat, and he showed some good stuff yesterday. Most everybody, except perhaps Sweeney and Nunamaker, thought Alexander was pretty good.

The Sox got a run in the third inning. Blackburne hit a grounder to Maisel, who has just returned to the game after a few days' illness. Fritz made a wild throw to Pipp, and Blackburne went to second base. Faber rolled a bunt to Cole, who fired it at Maisel. Blackburne was at the bag as soon as the ball, and Umpire Wallace called him safe. Eddie Murphy whacked a single to right centre, which scored Blackburne.

Fournier walked in the sixth, and J. Collins sacrificed. After Felsch flied out to Cook, Mayer singled, scoring Fournier. In the eighth, Shano Collins banged out a triple with two out, and although Cole walked Felsch, the next batter, he settled down and pitched himself out of the difficulty. The score:

Tigers Take Lead, Then It Rains.

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—Rain stopped today's game after the seventh inning, ten minutes after Detroit had jumped into a lead of 5 runs to 3. The Tigers scored three runs in the sixth off the deliveries of Collins and Leonard. Boston knocked Dauss from the box in the third, but was unable to profit from the pitching of Boland. This was Shriners' day, and Elpho Temple presented Cobb, Speaker, and Gardner with diamond studded emblems of the order and President Lannin of the Red Sox with a mahogany clock. Score:

Johnson's Anniversary Victory.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Walter Johnson today celebrated the eighth anniversary of his first appearance with the Nationals by defeating St. Louis, 5 to 1, in a game devoid of features. Kopp, an outfielder obtained by Washington from the St. Thomas (Ont.) club, dropped his first chance, an easy fly, afterward making a single and scoring a run. Score:

DODGERS RECOVER FROM BRIEF SLUMP

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 2.—Ed Pfeffer, selected by Wilbert Robinson to do the hurling for the Dodgers this afternoon, was successful in fine style. He held the Reds completely under his control the entire route, and at no time was he in danger of being scored against except possibly in the final round, when, with two men on bases—one on third and one on second—and only one out, he caused Red Killifer to hit into a double play. While Pfeffer mowed down the enemy at the plate his teammates did good work at the bat. Grasping every opportunity that presented itself and taking advantage of the openings, Robbie's men scored four runs, while Herzog's crew were treated to a coat of whitewash.

Buck Herzog handed the contest to the visitors in the fifth inning, when his wild throw paved the way for a tally, which eventually proved enough to beat the Reds. Stengel was the first man up in this inning. He passed up several wide ones and then asked Pete Schneider to put one over. Schneider complied with this request, and the husky Dodger sent a whizzler down to Herzog. In his eagerness to head off the right gardener at first base Buck threw wild and Stengel dashed on to second and a moment later scored with the winning run when Getz sent a single over second base. This victory allowed the Brooklyn aggregation to gain on the league-leading Phillies, who lost to the Cubs.

To make the defeat more complete, Robbie's men, after being blanked from the fifth inning, in the ninth piled up three more tallies, dispelling all hopes the locals may have entertained of overcoming that one-run lead.

To open the ninth O'Mara and Daubert walked. Wheat forced O'Mara, and Cutshaw forced Wheat. Cutshaw stole second. Stengel laced out a triple to centrefield, and Daubert and Cutshaw scored. Getz came through with a single, scoring Stengel. McCarthy brought the round to a close by fanning.

While Pfeffer allowed seven hits, as many as his opponent, Schneider, "would-be new iron man of the National League," Ed kept them scattered, no two of them coming in one inning. The Reds threatened to score in the ninth, but Pfeffer was too strong, and their rally fell short. Groh opened the ninth by coaxing a walk out of Ed. Herzog singled, Groh taking second. Both runners advanced on a passed ball. With runners on third and second and nobody out, it looked good from a Red standpoint. But the hopes that had risen in Herzog's crew soon vanished when Wagner fouled out and Killifer hit into a double play. The score:

CUT PLAYERS' HIGH SALARIES

Milwaukee Club Owner Says That Is the Way to Make Game Pay.

Owners of clubs in the American Association say that lower salaries are necessary to save the game, according to The Milwaukee Leader. Speaking of the plans of the association to make their properties pay, A. F. Timme, President of the Milwaukee club, said:

"It is not the intention of our club or of any club in the Association to give the players starvation salaries. With us it is a question of cutting down expenses or going bankrupt with high salaries. When you consider that we have more than $1,000,000 invested in this Association, and that during five years the owners have not realized 2 per cent. on their investment, you know we must reduce expenses. Some of the owners have been satisfied to make a living salary, take a chance on getting a fair rate on their investment.

"There is only one way to overcome the salary question, and that is to discharge the high-priced player and hire younger talent at lower salaries. I would prefer to see the players' salaries more evenly balanced. An average of $200 to $250 a month would be a reasonable salary."

FEDERAL LEAGUE.

Newark Triumphs in Hard Sixteen-Inning Game Over Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Newark won a hard fought sixteen-inning game from Chicago today, 3 to 2. The visitors tied the score in the ninth inning on three successive singles. In the sixteenth McKechnie singled and Esmond sacrificed him to second. He went to third on Rousch's infield out and scored the winning run when Smith fumbled a slow roller from Scheer. Scheer stole second and reached third on Fritz's wild throw to catch Laporte at first, but Huhn forced Laporte at second.

Except in the first and third innings when bunched hits gave Chicago its two runs, Mosely held the home team safely throughout the long game. Prendergast gave way to a pinch hitter in the ninth and Black finished for Chicago. Score:

Buffalo Overcomes Big Lead.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 2.—Buffalo defeated St. Louis here today, 6 to 5. In the third inning with one out and the bases full, Groom for St. Louis, struck out Dalton and Louden. St. Louis got four runs in the third and one in the fourth. Then Buffalo knocked Groom out of the box in the fifth, getting two runs. The visitors tied the score in the sixth and got the winning run in the eighth. Score:

15-CENT BALL AT NEWARK.

Federal League Club Reduces Prices and Will Retain Franchise.

All talk of the Federal League leaving Newark was set at rest yesterday when it was announced that Harry F. Sinclair and P. T. Powers, owners of the Newark team, had decided to retain their Newark franchise permanently. Another thing decided upon was a reduction in the prices of admission, to go into effect upon the return of the Newark team from its Western trip Friday. The new scale is to be 15 cents for the bleachers, instead of 25, as heretofore; 25 cents for seats in the extreme sections of the covered stand, for which 50 cents has been charged, while for seats in the main body of the grandstand the price will be 50 cents, a reduction of 25 cents from the former scale. The price of box seats is to be $1, as before.

When the Peps left for their swing around the Federal circuit a month ago there were rumors that Powers and Sinclair were going to give up Newark and seek a more lucrative location, for the attendance, which had been all that could be desired at the start, had fallen off greatly. Poor transportation facilities was the principal cause, and the stories that Powers and Sinclair were ready to quit had the effect of arousing Jersey fans, and the Freeholders of both Essex and Hudson Counties voted to permit the Public Service Railway Company to lay tracks over the Jackson Street Bridge. This will make the ball grounds accessible from all parts of Newark, thus remedying what was regarded as the Feds' greatest handicap.

It was also announced yesterday that the Feds' owners have given Manager Bill McKechnie full authority to strengthen the team by the acquisition of new players.

Joe Jackson Trade Rumor Spiked.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 2.—Vice President E. S. Barnard of the Cleveland American League Club denied today that any offer has been received from President Charles A. Comiskey of the Chicago Americans for outfielder Joe Jackson of the Indians, as was reported in a story published in Chicago. Barnard says Jackson will not be sold or traded to any club. The Chicago dispatch had it that Comiskey, who is now on a hunting trip, offered $20,000 and several players for Jackson.

BETTER TENNIS BY COACHING

Expert Thinks Teaching Game Would Increase Standard.

College tennis suffers from lack of good coaching, says The Cleveland Plain Dealer. Answering the question, "Why do not colleges have professional coaches in tennis, as they have in other sports?" a veteran said: "Every college sport is loaded down with its coaches. Trainers drawing princely salaries storm over the performances of the track athletes. Frenzy burns itself out as the knowledge of football is imparted to the human machine, the college eleven. Fencing has its specialized corps of professional instructors. Basket ball is played under professional direction. It remains for tennis to have systematic and expert advice.

"It is not long ago that players on college tennis teams were first considered worthy of a college letter. If a man could win the All Comers, or at Longwood, or the intercollegiate singles, it was possible that he might win his insignia. Now the regular men on the tennis teams are sure of their letters.

"With professional coaching we would have more and better material to defend the Davis Cup. How many college players have received professional coaching is a question I cannot answer. George M. Church and Ludlow Vandeventer have had professional coaching, and with results. Church has acquired several methods of his own, too.

"A player who has accomplished much with his natural game is not the ideal pupil the professional thinks. It is almost impossible to revolutionize faulty methods of making certain strokes. It is possible, however, to strengthen a player's game and to add much to natural ability.

"What is the universal weakness among tennis players? Not sustaining the game. Many players will not press a victory home. Once in the lead, they 'loaf.' If they fall behind and are unable to strike into form they soften their game and make a poor finish, instead of working for control. It is always unsound to lower the pitch of a game. It is an old story around the courts, 'I let down on my game, and then I couldn't get started again.' That's the tale of many a match lost by a superior player."

NEWS FOR THE GOLFERS.

When the seniors assemble on the links of the Apawamis Club the latter part of September, they will have a chance to take part in putting competitions. Although the official program has not been issued, it is understood that a portion of two days will be set aside for putting, and it may be that the committee will add driving competitions for classes. The seniors' tournament this year will extend over a period of four days.

The national amateur championship tournament to begin at the Country Club of Detroit the latter part of this month, will probably be a seven-day affair. Some time ago the Executive Committee voted that in the event of the entry being sufficiently large an elimination test would be held on Saturday, Aug. 28. That test, if held, will consist of an eighteen-hole round, in which the sixty-four leaders will earn the right to start in the qualification round on Monday, Aug. 30. There is talk now of having special trains from this city to Detroit.

Holes in one are being made frequently these days. Howard F. Whitney, Secretary of the United States Golf Association, played recently on the St. Regis course, in the Adirondacks. He only had a couple of borrowed clubs, yet from the ninth tee he holed a full midiron shot for a one. This hole is 178 yards long. In a match the other day at Pocono Manor E. W. Loos, a Van Cortlandt Park product, defeated A. J. Elphick, the Shawnee professional, 2 up and 1 to play. Loos got a 71, but the best part of the round was the making of the 225-yard eighth hole in a single stroke. In June, while practicing for the open championship at Baltusrol, Loos made the third hole in a single stroke.

Tigers Buy Fred Maisel's Brother.

SCRANTON, Penn., Aug. 2.—George Maisel, outfielder for the Scranton team of the New York State League, was sold to Detroit today. The price announced was $3,000. Maisel is a brother of Fred Maisel of the New York Americans. He leads the State League in base running and is hitting .324. He reports to Detroit Sept. 5.

TIM SHOULD HAVE BECOME A SOLDIER

By FRANK L. CHANCE.

Timothy Donahue, leading catcher for the Chicago Nationals, lowered his feet from the top of the railing around the hotel veranda, produced a brown paper, and scraped around in his pocket for the rest of the "makin's."

"My own uncle was one of the queen's foresters and a great shot, he was," said Tim, eying a flock of ducks that were swimming in a pond a short distance away from the hotel. They were wild ducks, too, for the hotel was in New Mexico, where the ball players were staying while they finished the preliminary days of their Spring training.

Tim blew a thin cloud of smoke ceilingward and several of the ball players moved their chairs further away from the catcher. Tim's cigarette, scraped from his pockets, contained as much wool as it did tobacco, and smelled like a mattress factory with a fire raging in the basement.

"He learned me to shoot," continued Tim, in no wise disturbed either over the flavor or odor of his cigarette, "and, believe me, I was some rare shot a few years back."

"It probably was a rare thing when you hit anything," remarked Malachi Kittredge, Tim's rival behind the bat. Tim cocked a baleful eye toward Malachi.

"I can outshoot you with a revolver for anything you can name," he declared.

Malachi contented himself with snorting his disbelief.

"I can do it. I can do it right now. I can do it tomorrow or the next day or next Christmas or the week after," bawled Tim, thoroughly aroused.

"I bet you could not come close enough to those ducks to scare them off the water," growled Malachi.

"If I had a gun handy I would show you," returned Tim.

Cowboy on Scene.

At this juncture one of the cowboys from Spaulding's ranch sauntered up for a little "chin music," as he put it. But right here let it be known that the Chicago club nearly lost its best catcher and Tim nearly wrecked his beauty forever in the events which followed.

"The man who can hit one of them there ducks from here with a revolver would be shootin' some," remarked the puncher.

Tim measured the distance to the ducks with his eye. Whatever conceit entered into his head at that moment will never be known. For some reason or other he must have thought he was a good revolver shot or that luck might help him and he would be able to wing a duck, for he replied promptly:

"That ain't no shot at all for a man who knows how to use a gun like I do," he boasted.

"Dare you to take a pot shot at 'em," egged Kittredge.

We were all sitting around listening to the dialogue between the two catchers, and were hardly prepared for what happened.

Borrowed a Young Cannon.

"Sure, blaze away with it," said the "puncher." He yanked the weapon from the holster and handed it to Donahue. The gun looked to me to be a foot long. With the rest of the ball players, I moved out of range, and Donahue began fooling with the cowboy's piece of heavy artillery.

"Don't frisk that gun around in my direction, or I will take it and bend the handle over your head," warned Bill Lange.

"Hold your horses; I know what I am doing," replied Tim. We watched him while he knelt down on the veranda and rested the big revolver on the railing. We thought he was just fooling and sighting at the ducks, and never dreamed he would fire off the blamed thing while in that position. Evidently poor Tim had never shot one of the big heavy revolvers, and imagined it fired something like a Springfield rifle.

But It Kicked.

Suddenly there was a terrific report. Tim had pulled the trigger while holding the revolver up against his cheek and sighting. Following the report was a shriek of terror from the unfortunate catcher. To our horror Tim lay stretched upon his back, uttering a series of blood-curdling yells. We rushed to his side.

"The whole top of my head is blown off," he shrieked. His face was covered with blood and at first we could not see how badly he was hurt.

We lifted him up and carried him out in front of the hotel. Some one turned the hose on the wounded man and Tim spluttered and moaned. He thought that his end was near and his groan would have brought tears to the eyes of the Cardiff giant.

Sufficient to say Tim was not killed, or even mortally wounded, but he was certainly battered up. The big revolver had kicked him with all the force of a bay steer. One of his eyes was entirely closed and the only gleam of light for his tortured mind was furnished by the other optic, which, itself, was nothing but a mere slit. Donahue did not show up for practice on the diamond for a week.

Tim's Story of It.

He kept to his room, for he was kidded unmercifully about his looks and about his prowess with a revolver. However, you could not down Tim. That Summer, on a train going to Philadelphia, I heard Tim telling the story to a traveling man.

"Say," he exclaimed to the attentive drummer, "I shot that duck so full of lead that he sank to the bottom and never did come up."

It may be told, in passing, that the duck was a "diver," and of course dove at the report of the gun. Tim was told this and concluded that he had hit the fowl.

ROAMER SETS TRACK RECORD AT SARATOGA

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Racing at Saratoga Springs was launched this afternoon before a crowd that was estimated at 15,000 persons. The stands and lawns have seldom been as crowded before.

Andrew Miller's Roamer was an easy winner of the Saratoga Handicap at a mile and a quarter when he scored by ten lengths over D. J. Leary's Saratoga and T. C. McDowell's Star Jasmine.

The companion feature was also a victory for the East when L. S. Thompson's Dominant just galloped in front of his company in the United States Hotel Stakes, a six-furlong dash for the two-year-olds.

A third feature was the Shillelah steeplechase, under selling conditions. It brought out only three starters and went to Joseph E. Widener's El Bart, which beat Thomas Hitchcock's Swish and F. Ambrose Clark's Knight of Merci.

The race run by Roamer was one to be remembered, for not only did he make a show of the good handicap horses that opposed him, but he hung up a new record for the handicap when he ran the mile and a quarter in 2:04 2-5.

While the East made a clean sweep of the stakes, the other three races went to the West, when Mrs. J. Shilling's Conning Tower took the first, John W. Schorr's Lindenthal the second, and Jefferson Livingston's Colonel Vennie and Fleuro, a pair of imported two-year-olds, ran first and second in the last race. After the victory of Conning Tower he was boosted from his entered price of $800 and sold to Frank J. Nolan for $1,600.

The opening of the racing season was successful from every viewpoint, although the weather was by no means ideal. Rain fell at short intervals throughout the day, and between showers there was hot sunshine. The rain was not heavy enough to make the track muddy.

At a meeting of the Stewards of The Jockey Club held this afternoon the suspension of the license of Trainer Edward Heffner was continued, but he was informed that he may appear before the Stewards at a later date. This suspension was inflicted during the Belmont Park part of the meeting of the Empire City Racing Association for a bad race run by The Finn, one of the H. C. Hallenbeck colts trained by Heffner.

Perry Belmont was looking over George Smith, the two-year-old sensation of Maryland and Canada, and today it is possible that he will purchase him from Edward McBride.

Why Cyclist Turned "Pro."

Aubrey Taylor, the five and ten-mile cycling champion of Australia, says that the National Cyclists' Association forced him into professionalism. Taylor came to the United States in April, hoping to win the amateur cycling championship of the United States. He wrote:

"Upon arrival in Newark I was notified that I would have to ride as a professional or not at all. I asked the reason, and was informed by the National Cyclists' Association that I would be too superior to the other riders. The procedure here, when a rider stands out from the other amateurs, is to turn him professional in order to encourage the young and new talent. Well, I did not kick, as I have ridden as an amateur for quite a while, and I had to quit the game, as Marcus Hurley did after he won the world's amateur championship in 1904, or fall in with the wishes of the governing body here."

ANOTHER SHIP PURCHASE FIGHT.

> I am more than ever of the opinion that the Administration Ship Purchase bill was a good measure and is more necessary even now than it was when introduced and debated in Congress.—Senator JOHN SHARP WILLIAMS.

Since then a great deal has happened. Up to July 24 150 foreign ships, over half a million tons, had been admitted to American registry. For eleven months of the fiscal year exports in American vessels increased from $146,696,000 to $246,616,000, an increase of 68 per cent. If there is an American shipyard which is not busy it is not known. From Maine to Maryland, from Delaware to San Francisco, there is but one report of buoyancy and hope in a decadent industry. There could not be a greater contrast than with the conditions when the Ship Purchase bill was rejected, and laid away unwept, unhonored, and unsung. If the bill had passed and the same conditions had followed there would have been a demonstration of the wisdom and necessity of the bill. The bill having been rejected, and the conditions being what they are, there is a similar demonstration that the bill was not needed, and that its defeat was a better stimulus to shipping than its passage would have been.

As to its present need there is less doubt than originally. The magnitude of our export trade is a marvel, and it is all being carried with a diminishing amount of friction and delay. It is true that rates are high. That is because conditions are offering great inducements which stimulate the industry better than any subsidy. High rates are not tax money, and they fall upon those who benefit by the commerce. The passage of the ship bill would not add to this wholesome activity. The Government ships would drive out of the industry more ships than it could add to it. It would do so because Government competition is not on an economic basis. It is thought that Government operation is brilliantly successful when receipts equal expenses, without expectation of profit or replacement of capital.

Yet appears Senator WILLIAMS to say: "I want to see the Government "own these ships and have what "profit there may be in the trans-"action." The profit to the Government would be to the loss of the Government's competitors, and the activity now existent would be chilled with fear of the unequal contest with ships capitalized with tax money, and indifferent to loss. It is to be hoped that the Senator's views are personal, and not a sign that the Administration is inviting a repetition of its humiliation.

AN APPEAL TO SUFFRAGISTS.

With the welfare of the nation in mind we respectfully direct the attention of our good friends, the woman suffragists, to this paragraph in the cabled report of the opening of the Russian Duma:

> The first sitting of the Duma, which opened today, holds out promise of work, with the object of promoting the production of military supplies and meeting the military requirements, rather than oratory. * * *

It is desirable that the nation should feel the same confidence in the good promise of the next session of its Senate and Representatives in Congress assembled. There is work cut out for the national legislators to do that will require all their time, and the exercise of all their judgment. As far as possible, extraneous matters should be avoided in their deliberations. No Congress that ever assembled has had more important issues placed before it than the Sixty-fourth Congress will have to consider in its first session. With the kindliest feeling, therefore, we appeal to the suffragists not to persist in their determination to invade Washington on the opening day and force their propaganda upon the minds of the legislators. They can derive no material advantage through Congress. If they are to win their fight they must conquer in the States. Their battleground is not Washington. But they know well, as we all know, that they have many sympathizers among the Senators and Representatives, and there is danger that some of these may be impelled, through their sense of chivalry, to waste the nation's precious time in debating the question. Words spoken in Congress in favor of granting the women the right to vote must be empty words. They can have no practical result. Therefore should the women be not only merciful but sufficiently patriotic to resolve not to interfere with the course of Federal business.

Congress must consider important matters touching our foreign relations, the nation's finances, and the enlargement of our means of national defense. Various details developed in the consideration of these questions will precipitate protracted debates. They are all questions touching the interests of the women as well as those of the men. The suffragists will see, we hope, after thinking the matter over, that the present is not the time for them to force their own cause upon Congress. Let them wait for a more suitable time. If they do wait, it may never be necessary for them to appeal to Congressmen for their unprofitable moral support. If they win in New York State this Fall they may feel that their final victory can be obtained by sticking to a practical line of action.

WILLIAM II. AS DEAN SWIFT.

The reader of the manifesto of WILHELM II. at the end of the first year of the war will find in it little of the brilliant rhetoric or the sharp phrases destined to become international, and perhaps historical, quotations, which, through his long course of encyclopaedic speechmaking, the world has learned to expect from him. For a quarter of a century he has been, we might say, the public orator of Europe, occasionally of Asia and Africa. At times he has sent a wave of gooseflesh over the Powers, sometimes, as in the famous Daily Telegraph interview, over the Fatherland itself.

It is not solely his great place that gives weight to his words. He has a certain gift for words, imagination, a way of putting things. If he is sometimes or often unpruned, excessive, and thrasonical, at other times you seem to feel the army, the fleet, the ambitions, and the unparalleled energies of Germany speaking through him. In his impassioned politico-military defiances, challenges, and proclamations we hear a Hebrew prophet, the oracle of the Hohenzollern, elect of Heaven, a mixture of a minor prophet and EDMUND KEAN.

In his latest composition, edifying of piety and excellent of patriotism, we somehow miss the lyric note, the old sonority. Apollo doesn't always bend the bow. In more than recompense there is a passage which for a savage, Swiftian irony is hard to beat. It is this: "After preparations for a "whole decade the coalition Powers, to "whom Germany had become too "great, believed that the moment had "come to humiliate the Empire." In Great Britain and Russia especially this amplitude of preparation will be fully understood.

RUSSIAN ALLUREMENTS.

The Russian bear, though intending to abandon the bone of Warsaw, yet growls so horribly over it, and is so formidable and deliberate in defeat, that the Germans will not be able to glorify their victory. It is possible that they are puzzled by the strategy of Grand Duke NICHOLAS. Their past experiences with him have taught them to be wary. The evacuation of Warsaw has been going on for several weeks. The Germans must have known it. On Thursday, July 15, the Russian Government publicly announced that it would begin on the following Sunday. The news reached the outside world officially on July 29.

Yet the fighting continues. The progress of the Germans is as gallantly contested as if the fate of the Polish capital had not been conceded. Great masses of troops must have been already withdrawn to the new line on the Bug River and to the north, only enough remaining to keep up a rear-guard action. The fierce character of the fighting, especially to the north of Warsaw, is, therefore, very surprising. But more surprising is the fact that the Germans against greatly reduced Russian forces have made headway no faster. This may indicate, as one correspondent suggests, that the German power of offensive has been greatly weakened. That would make the Russians' strategy all the more mysterious.

The probable explanation is that both sides have been shifting troops in large numbers northward toward the Baltic, where the next issue will be decided, and where the prize is the ancient Hanseatic seaport of Riga. This is the second most important Russian port on the Baltic Sea, ranking next to St. Petersburg, only 366 miles away. By means of inland canals Riga is connected with the basins of the Volga and Dnieper Rivers, and by railways it drains the most fertile regions of Southern and Southeastern Russia. Its foreign trade, imports and exports combined, amounts to $125,000,000 a year. It is one of the oldest trading cities in Europe. Bremen merchants founded it in 1158. During the seventeenth century it was a bone of incessant contention between Poland, Sweden, and Russia. It was finally taken by Russia in 1710. Its commercial importance to her as a door of outlet on the Baltic Sea is immeasurable. To lose it would be to suffer partial strangulation. Riga's population is about 300,000, of which Germans constitute 47 per cent. The Russians are only a quarter of the population.

It is supposed that the new Russian defense when reconstructed will be on a line drawn almost due south from Riga through Brest-Litovsk and down the course of the Bug River. Brest-Litovsk is about 375 miles south of Riga and 125 miles east of Warsaw. It is a place to remember. Lying at the junction of the Mukovets and Bug Rivers, and at the intersection of railways communicating with Warsaw, East Prussia, Kiev, and Moscow, and connected by canal with the Dnieper and Vistula Rivers, it is a city of high strategic importance. It is strongly fortified and a great depot of war munitions. There are, or were, huge stores of guns, food, and ammunition there. The city was first mentioned in the eleventh century. In 1245 it was destroyed by the Mongols. In 1379 the Teutonic Knights burned it. It was twice captured by the Swedes. The first Jewish synagogue known in Europe was there. It does a large trade in grain, flax, hemp, wool, tar, and leather. It lies behind the Bug River as Warsaw lies behind the Vistula.

Perhaps it would be no easier to defend Brest-Litovsk than it was to defend Warsaw, other things being equal; but other things are not equal, and wherein they differ it is to the disadvantage of the Germans. This point is nearly as far east of Warsaw as Warsaw is east of the German frontier. Therefore the Germans would be twice as far from home at Brest-Litovsk as they are at Warsaw. But the important matter is that the Russian line, which was stretched very thin to make a huge loop or salient around Warsaw, will be shortened by perhaps 300 miles, and become in proportion thicker. It will be like a rubber band shortened from a length at which it was near the breaking point. If the Germans got to Brest-Litovsk they would still be 700 miles from Moscow. Distance is one of Russia's great allies.

It seems very probable, however, that before attempting any movement east of Warsaw the Germans will make a supreme effort to take Riga. That is where the fighting now is most intense. "Below Bausk, on the "River Dvina, in Courland, we fought "a desperate engagement with the "Germans Friday and Saturday," says the Petrograd War Office in Sunday's bulletin, leading its communication with that information, thereby, perhaps unconsciously, showing what importance was attached to it. That battle was within thirty miles of Riga.

TWO PAINFUL POEMS.

Vindication is a slow pedestrian, usually waiting, in fact, till near the end of the third act. Not often does it proceed so swiftly and unerringly as it has in the case of some observations made in THE NEW YORK TIMES concerning "Is This Mr. Reilly?" with an incidental reference to "Punch in the presence of the passenjare." There has arisen a host of witnesses to confute us, and they have stepped on each other's feet and out of their own mouths have they vindicated us.

The chorus of "Mr. Reilly" appears to be the simplest in the world, but not only can no two persons agree upon it, but each displays a heated certainty about his version, and men who will concede that their religion is wrong will regard it as the last insult if any one questions their version of "Mr. Reilly." This tantalizing chorus, what witchery did PAT ROONEY weave into its construction that men should lose their reason? It seems to fit smoothly into the memory, but only to confuse the minds of men and make them short-breathed and red-faced with old friends. Magic not exactly black but none too white, magic as subtle as that woven into "Punch, brothers," which condemned any one who heard it once to go on hearing it, to keep quoting it, until the frenzy wore off.

Since for some deep psychological reason any question about either of these productions arouses anger deeper than the rage of war, there immediately rushed upon us hordes of indignant letter writers, each denying that there was any question about the Reilly chorus and each giving the correct one; only each gave a different chorus. And on their heels came rushing yet others, denying that there was anything peculiar about "Punch, brothers." Most of these misunderstood the contention and supposed that there was a controversy over the authorship of that great poem; and with a contempt that bit deep they informed us that there was no such controversy, that it was written by MARK TWAIN.

But it wasn't, and out of their own mouths they have erected a controversy where there was none before. MARK TWAIN did not write it, and never pretended to write it. In the famous skit in which he dealt with the irritating problem raised by this exasperating jingle he said that it was a newspaper jingle, and it was. MARK TWAIN did not know who the author was. There really was a sign in the horse cars of the seventies directing the conductors to punch "in the presence of the passenger," and specifying "a buff trip slip for a three-cent fare, a pink trip slip for a five-cent fare," and so on. "Why, it's poetry!" exclaimed one of a party of newspaper men one night, studying the sign as they went home. They assembled its lines in metrical form, added some improvements, such as >   care,

> All in the presence of the passenjare, and one of them, ISAAC H. BROMLEY, published it in The New York Tribune, where MARK TWAIN saw it and let it loose upon the world. A maddening thing; it filled nearly as many insane asylums as "Mr. Reilly." And now, thirty years after the question of whether Mr. Reilly was Terence or John, and whether he was looking quite well or cut quite a swell, has died out; forty years after MARK TWAIN got "Punch, conductor," out of his head by reciting it to an orphan asylum, and when the world is at last able to forget its disquiet over these problems, there arise vaunting and toplofty persons to assert that there is not, and never was, a problem connected with either. It is well if they can quaff a kind nepenthe and forget the hot and rebellious dissensions of the seventies and eighties; but let them not instruct those less fortunate and of better memory.

TWO GOVERNORS.

When a multitude of strikers from the great plants of the Standard Oil Company at Bayonne assailed and endangered life and property, when private violence and private war reigned over a considerable part of that city, and the local authorities were pitifully poor in force to suppress the outbreak, the Sheriff of the county appealed again and again and in vain to the Governor to send a detachment of militia to support the civil powers.

The inevitable conclusion of men familiar with official timidities and used to seeing politicians step gingerly over eggs was that the Governor was cautious about offending "labor," that a vision of lost votes kept him from what seemed to be his plain duty. It happened, though he had no means of knowing it would happen, that the Sheriff, by his courage, readiness, tact, and strong personality, impressed himself vividly upon the strikers, and got them, or most of them, back to work at better wages. That was no merit of the Governor, against whom remains the imputation or suspicion, warranted or not, of an inertia bred of political motives.

When at Massena, on the State Canal, a mob of strikers, whose temper may be judged from their drowning a fellow-workman who had refused to "go out," had seized and injured the plant, and the Sheriff, some of whose officers were imprisoned in it, could not control the rioters, he had only to telephone Governor WHITMAN that life and property were being destroyed or threatened. The Governor sent two companies of militia at once. We may censure the not infrequent cowardice of Sheriffs who cry for the militia because they are afraid vigorously to put down, or try to put down, a mob good for so many votes. But when a capable and brave Sheriff certifies that the situation is beyond his control, then the Governor who acts promptly deserves well of the State. And the other kind of Governor, who hesitates, who palters with disorder and coddles anarchy—well, it may be doubted if he gains as many votes as he loses, and he loses something more than votes sometimes.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Is It Can't or Won't Understand?

It is not only over in Germany that mistakes as to American sentiments and intentions are made, and the German inability—or refusal—to understand us is seemingly not, as has been supposed, a matter of geography and distance, but one of constitution and temperament. At any rate the editors in the capitals of the several German States evolve out of their inner consciousness conclusions as to what we think and purpose that are no more or differently inaccurate than are those carried over to Berlin by agents specially selected by the German Ambassador in Washington for their imagined competence to reveal and explain us. And long citizenship or even birth here does not remove the curious difficulty.

For weeks past representative German-Americans have been declaring that though the urban East is pro-Ally, the farmers all over the country are on the other side, at least to the extent of supporting the German contention that our exports of war material are wicked and unneutral. Yet when the mysterious collection of German sympathizers that calls itself "Labor's National Peace Council" manages to get a lot of Granger officials together, those officials vehemently refuse to pass resolutions condemning the traffic in arms and denouncing the Administration for permitting it. What they did vote was merely an expression of their preference on general principles for peace to war, and an amiable desire that nothing illegal should be done for any of the belligerents!

So fades away the confidently painted picture of some millions of American farmers to whom the Germans could look for countenance, if not for aid. They are equally well informed about the Middle West, if the press of that section can be trusted, and as for the South—well, the South, or some of it, seems to be thinking cotton, not thoughts, just now, but that it's thinking German is the wildest of delusions.

When Roads Are Closed for Repairs.

Recent travelers by automobile along the Albany Post Road are glad, of course, that in several stretches of its course needed repairs are in progress. That thus they are forced to turn off from the known route and to make long detours through the back country and over roads upon which the reformative influence of the motor car has not yet been exerted is an annoyance to them, indeed, but they would endure it with joyful resignation if even a little pains were taken to decrease the resulting inconveniences and dangers.

Nobody's intellectual powers would be strained, and no heavy expense incurred, if before the temporary closing of part of a much-traveled road like this one the roads to which travel was to be diverted were put in at least decent condition. Should the rural taxpayer protest too bitterly against using his money for that purpose, it might be omitted, but he could hardly object to the placing of signs along the new route, so that the détour, besides involving what may be called inevitable delay and discomfort, might not also lead to "getting lost," the misadventure which tries the automobilist's temper and patience more, perhaps, than any other. That has been for some time, now, a common experience just north of Ossining, and on the back roads in that region, especially late at night, the wanderings of a strayed motor car may be long, painful, and even a little perilous.

The days are past when there was a general inclination to say of automobilists, "Good enough for 'em!" no matter what, less than death or serious injury, might happen to them. In the stern school of experience the motor folk have acquired a fair amount both of caution and of consideration, and, though they still have something to learn in both respects, appreciation of them as distributers of money has so increased that their sins are no longer judged more severely than those of other people. Having become themselves more regardful of others, they are more regarded—are helped, instead of hindered, along their way. That they can fairly claim a special assistance when forced out into unfamiliar and uncharted territory seems not yet, however, to have occurred to anybody upon whom the giving of it would naturally devolve.

Why not—to make a somewhat venturesome suggestion—impose it upon the contractors who do the road building or the road repairing that necessitates long detours? They could at least mark the new routes with adequate signs, and not many of them would be ruined if they also put some lights at the worst places.

Defying the Scorn of the Critics.

After the hot, but ludicrously inconclusive war that was waged by the professional and amateur critics ten years ago over the age and origin of the statue which then came to be known as the Linton Venus, about the last fate that anybody would have prophesied for the pretty creature was that at last she would fall into the very determinative possession of JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER.

That eminent financier had never been accused, even by the harshest of his antagonists, of taking any interest in art of the kind that makes as generous revelation of feminine charms as did the creator of this Venus, whoever he may have been, and it would have been assumed with confidence, had anybody given the subject any thought at the time, which certainly nobody did, that Mr. ROCKEFELLER, trained as he was, would have been grieved, if not seriously shocked, at the sight of such a statue. It seems, however, that his aestheticism is broader than had been supposed.

While, of course, Mr. ROCKEFELLER's purchase of the problematic marble does not go any distance at all toward supporting the claims of its admirers as to its age and its sculptor's name, if he did pay, as reported, $75,000 for it, then one can be sure that his estimate of its beauty is high and his appreciation of it sincere. It also proves that Mr. ROCKEFELLER, in judging a work of art, displays a courage and uses a measure of value apparently unknown among those whose reputations—and incomes—depend on fixing a name and a date to every picture and statue submitted to their inspection. When they know, or think they know, who made either the one or the other, then they know just what to say about it, but in cases of ignorance or uncertainty, most of them either cautiously refrain from expressing any opinion at all or else boldly manifest disdain.

Why a work of art can have a prominent place in a museum while labeled with a great name, and why the same work of art is scornfully thrown out of that museum when somebody demonstrates the label's inaccuracy—these are questions that have never been answered to the satisfaction of any except the professional critics and their more devoted followers. For others it is hard to see what difference it makes who carved the statue or painted the picture—hard to believe that it does make any difference except as to the price that will be paid by people who think much of names and little or nothing of intrinsic merit.

High Scandal in Japan.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Tokyo dispatch in today's TIMES is open for some rectifications.

First—Viscount K. Oura, who resigned his portfolio of the Cabinet, had not been the Minister of Justice, as the dispatch purports him, but had been the Minister of Home Affairs since last February. Mr. G. Ojaki is the Minister of Justice.

Secondly—As to the cause of Viscount Oura's resignation, the telegram seems to me to have some flaw in its accuracy. The bribery case in connection with the elections referred to in it culminated in a vain effort to impeach him in the special session of the Diet in May by the Opposition parties. The adjournment of the Diet was soon followed by a sensational disclosure of another scandal when three seceders of the Opposition parties were suddenly arrested for the charge, it was inferred, of letting themselves be bribed by a Government representative to exert their influence in favor of the Army Expansion bill the last Fall. The Public Prosecutor's Office had recently been carrying on a vigorous investigation of the case, and, if I am not mistaken in my inference, based upon the latest papers from Japan, the incident referred to in the telegram must have been in connection with this case.

Influential as the position is he has been enjoying, Viscount Oura is one of the most stiff-necked, autocratic bureaucrats of the present Japan, and it was a surprise to us when Count Okuma selected him first as the Minister of Agriculture and Commerce in forming the Cabinet two years ago. Police and governance were synonyms to him.

While I am ashamed of going into detail about such a disgrace to my country like this I find consolation in the deathknell which the scandal may have knolled upon his political career detrimental to the progress of democracy in Japan. KENJI OGOMORI.

HARBORED SHIPS.

Still, as great birds with folded wings,
  Their masts black spears against the moon,
  Wrapped in the lapping waves' low croon.

Beyond, the hills lie—fold on fold
  Against the Night's dark star-pierced sky;
Long since, the two-score village lights have died,

Far out beyond the harbor's circling hills
  The ocean thunders deep—above its dead!

EVIL OF GERMAN TEACHING.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In today's issue you quote Dean Russell's praise of the German school system.

With many of us it is a grave question whether Dean Russell's admiration for this system is not a serious menace, so frequently and openly expressed as it is from his position in the Teachers College.

He says: "I deplore German militarism as I dislike the English navy. With both out of the way there would be no war; with both present the problem is to find what makes the Germans willing to sacrifice everything to succeed on the field of battle."

Passing over the inevitable inference from this sentence that he regards the English navy as equally responsible with German militarism for causing the war, what solution of this problem does he offer? Why are Germans willing to sacrifice everything to succeed in battle? I quote again: "The end sought by the State is unquestionably respect for authority and a confident reliance upon a power above and beyond the individual."

The problem thus turns out to be no problem at all. The people were thoroughly taught to resign to others their consciences and ethical perceptions and go it blind under orders.

This German conception of authority is, of course, the very opposite of the American aim, which is to teach children to have no respect whatever for authority in which they do not share.

In vain I search his remarks for any statement of this principle. On the contrary he says: "If anywhere in the world or at any time in history a parallel can be found to this superb machine for the education of a nation I do not know of it." In another place he says: "You must admire the perfection of the machine which more than all else enables that empire today to defy the world."

I submit that for a teacher of teachers to call a machine which does the devil's work on a scale more conscienceless and deadlier than the world has ever seen "superb," and to call upon us to "admire" it, is a menace to American education.

The Junior Republic at Freeville has been in operation about twenty years, serving as a model for other republic's in other States, and for the moral education of the entire youth of America. Today, in the midst of its prosperity, those principles of self-government for which it stands are closely adhered to under the inspired management of its founder, William R. George.

Hundreds of schools throughout America, including the school system of William Wirt of Gary, Ind. teach discipline and morality according to these ideas in opposition to the German theory, which according to American ideas produces a criminal docility in the entire population, a mechanical activity assimilating them more nearly to bees or ants than to human beings.

Lungmotors Needed at Beaches.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Great indignation is felt and much censure is justly being directed at the cause of the death of three people on a roller coaster at Coney Island recently. I desire to point out that where one person rides on "coasters," probably three hundred people go bathing at Coney Island and near-by beaches and at other public bathing beaches in New York. I find on inquiry that with the exception of a few places (perhaps 1 per cent. of all) there is no approved lungmotor for use in cases of drowning.

I saw in The Chicago Daily News today an interview with Dr. W. A. Evans, formerly Health Commissioner of Chicago, and Dr. John F. Golden, Dr. J. B. Murphy's chief assistant, who were first on the scene of last Saturday's terrible Eastland disaster, that lungmotors saved practically 100 lives of those who were apparently dead from drowning or suffocation.

Why should a public beach be permitted to run without the very latest resuscitating device at hand, especially when the cost is so small? Why shouldn't there be a law compelling each beach to be so equipped?

An Annual Firing Day.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As an experienced member of the Cloakmakers' Union for fifteen years, I would like to voice my ideas concerning the coming conflict between the union and the Protective Association. As I understand, the trouble is: Shall the employer have the right to discharge his employe?

If we discuss the question with reference to both sides, we see that no justice is done to the employer if he cannot discharge his employe; nor is any justice done to the workingman if he is continually to be discharged by his employer. Therefore, the only reasonable compromise that can be made is that one day in the year be set aside, upon which day the employer shall have the right to discharge any of his employes he desires. Seeing The Times.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

To observe minutely the detailed processes involved in the making of a modern newspaper offers an unusual opportunity for practical information of very distinct value, especially to teachers. Each of the five visits of the Columbia University Summer session students to THE NEW YORK TIMES offered this peculiar opportunity. These visits were, accordingly, much appreciated and heartily enjoyed. I wish, therefore, in behalf of the students and in behalf of the university, to thank you for making these opportunities possible.

The Few Who Rock the Boat.

From The St. Louis Republic.

It seems incredible that 100 citizens out of a population of upward of three-quarters of a million could create so much of "sound and fury" as have the members of the Neutrality League of St. Louis. The Chairman of the league's Entertainment Committee for its anti-war day has admitted that the organization has "about 100 members," but from the noise they have managed to make the average citizen naturally concluded that there must be a small army of them.

There is no need of organizations in this city, this State and this nation to preserve American neutrality. It has been and is being preserved in spite of, rather than because of, such movements. The hundred St. Louis "boat rockers" should sit down. Their sole contribution to the situation is to stiffen the German Foreign Office in its Dernburg-born belief that there is a growing chasm in American thought. We know, and the members of the league know, what their own final action would be were we drawn into war even against their kindred across the seas. John C. Meyers has expressed it when he stated that his sons had served in the American Army and Navy and that he would see that they fought under the Stars and Stripes against his native land if the call came. Everybody in America knows this spirit, but in Berlin—that is another matter. The United States and the Imperial German Government are opposing each other in an admittedly grave situation. Every evidence of division in the United States strengthens the stand of the German Foreign Office. Here in America we understand our Neutrality League members better than they do in Berlin, and we counsel them to sit down.

WHAT GERMANY THOUGHT A NAVY WAS FOR.

Overtures From England to Limit Sea Armament and Make Commerce Immune in War Were Rejected by the Imperial Government.

By J. M. ROBERTSON, M. P.

Some use has lately been made in the United States of certain ante-bellum discussions on matters of naval policy, to the end of proving that the guilt of hostile relations between Britain and Germany lies with the former. As we are likely to hear more of the matter after Mr. Lloyd George's challenging statement in his speech on munitions, it is important that the particular point as to naval policy should be cleared up. Mr. George's declaration is that for years past Germany has maintained a calculated air of friendliness toward Great Britain while doing her utmost to prepare for war. The German contention, zealously maintained by pro-Germans in the United States, is that, on the contrary, British jealousy of German trade had all along inspired British policy, and that we on this side were all along eagerly planning for an opportunity to use our naval power to destroy that trade. Some of us who strove long and patiently in the past to bring about a friendly understanding between the two Powers on a naval basis are in a position, I think, to disprove completely the German assertion.

That assertion founds itself, I understand, on the substance of a declaration made in February of 1914 by Professor Brentano, then a respected representative of German social science in England. Interviewed for The Daily Chronicle as to the possibility of an agreement between Britain and Germany for a restriction of naval armaments, he avowed himself very unhopeful of any such development. At the same time he put forward a plea for a change of policy on the part of Britain which, he in effect promised, would lead to the desired result. All that was required, in his opinion, was to abolish or abandon the right to capture commerce at sea in time of war. These are his words:

> If England does not recognize private property at sea it means, in the case of war, she wishes to destroy Germany's competition in the commercial world. What is more natural than that, in these circumstances, Germany should want to increase her navy to defend her growing commerce? One cannot say anything against it. If Great Britain would agree that private property is immune at sea, as it is on land, then you would soon see a change. Let your Government express its views in favor of that policy, and call an international conference to regulate piracy. Then naval estimates would fall.

As one of those who strove in England for the joint adoption of the policy in question, I am bound to state that Professor Brentano's declaration, doubtless made in entire good faith, is a completely misleading account of the situation. It is perfectly true that those of us who had pleaded for the new policy in the House of Commons, years before, had avowed that in our opinion the usage of capture of commerce in naval war gave Germany a justification for her naval expansion. Sir F. E. Smith, with whom in that matter I collaborated, declared, for instance, that were he a German he would spend his last mark in building warships to protect his commerce from our cruisers so long as the right of "capture" was recognized by international law. But the historic truth is that the German Government never gave the slightest countenance to the suggestion that international abandonment of capture of commerce in naval war would in any degree modify its policy of naval expansion. On the contrary, it definitely refused to consider any such arrangement.

The facts, which I had some special means of knowing, may be briefly put thus. While Sir Edward Grey in the House of Commons always met the appeal for abolition of capture of commerce by the argument that the abandonment of that practice would deprive this country of an important element of power in naval war, he had expressly intimated to the German Government his readiness to make the concession provided that it were made the basis of an agreement for the restriction of naval armaments. It was with that knowledge that, at the Inter-Parliamentary Conference held in the Reichstag at Berlin in 1909, I read a paper pleading for the joint adoption by Britain and Germany of the proposed policy. Never had the project seemed more hopeful. The official German hospitality given to the conference was of the most gracious kind; and a number of German publicists expressed their sympathy with the British views. Yet it all came to nothing by reason of the negative attitude of the German Government.

When, in the year 1911, there was published here an English translation of Dr. Wehberg's very able treatise on "Capture in War on Land and Sea," I not only contributed a preface but sought by correspondence to enlist German non-official support for the appeal to the German Government to come to an agreement on the basis of abandonment of capture of commerce. The response showed the complete lack of foundation for Professor Brentano's optimistic forecast of 1914. Sir Edward Grey had openly put forward in the House of Commons his avowal of readiness to give up capture of commerce on condition of a joint restriction of armaments. Yet not only did the German Government steadfastly refuse to consider the proposal, but my principal correspondent declared that it would be worse than useless for non-official Germans, however distinguished, to advocate such a course. It would only, he declared, strengthen the official resistance. Of this resistance I presume Professor Brentano was unaware when he made his declaration of last year. Great Britain had "agreed" to do what he asked, provided only that the further "change" were agreed to. And it had been persistently refused.

If Professor Brentano should still maintain that, without securing any German consent to a restriction of naval armaments, Britain ought to have separately decreed the abolition of capture of commerce so far as Britain was concerned, I need but point out (1) that all the evidence goes to show that we should certainly not have "seen a change" in German policy, and (2) that for the chief naval Power thus to denude itself of an element of naval force while the chief rival Power stood uncommitted to any change of policy whatever, would have been a piece of empty Quixotism. Even if Germany had ratified a treaty for the simple abolition of capture of commerce she would avowedly have carried on her program of naval construction. And to what end? On Professor Brentano's own showing, naval expansion must either be justified by defensive needs or be attributable to aggressive designs. If German commerce were freed from fear of British aggression, what other defensive need was predicable? Had Germany represented that she had still occasion to protect her commerce from France, the matter would promptly have been carried to the stage of an agreement with France. In that quarter there would have been no trouble. But no such suggestion was ever made. Germany simply refused to consider the question of naval restriction at all.

It may be left to judicial minds in all the neutral countries to pronounce as to which Power gave evidence of hostile designs. The British proposals would have left the two States relatively as strong at sea as before, both being simply relieved of the burden of continued expansion. Of a British invasion of Germany, no German ever pretended to have any apprehension. On the other hand the feasibility of a German invasion of Britain, so often asserted by Germans, was the standing justification, together with the old risk of capture of commerce, for British naval expenditure. Yet the British Government took the initiative in proposing a restriction which would obviously have limited even our defensive power, since an invasion could be a matter of a multiplicity of transports not classed as ships of war. The complete and persistent refusal to negotiate tells plainly and solely of German determination to prepare for naval war.

It is hardly necessary to point out that if a simple agreement to abandon capture of commerce had been come to, there is not the slightest reason now for believing that it would have been respected by Germany in any war into which she entered with the expectation of fighting Britain. Of course, she desired and hoped for our neutrality in the present struggle. But if we had remained neutral and the war had gone in her favor, who will pretend to believe that she would have faced a future war against Britain with any intention of respecting our sea-borne food supplies?

The negotiations over the Declaration of London revealed once more the determination of her Government to guard against any genuine naval settlement. One of the proposals of that Declaration was that food supplies not destined for military bases should not be treated as contraband of war. And the main reason, I understand, for the ultimate abandonment of the scheme was that the German Government would come to no agreement as to which ports should be recognized as non-military. That Government, of course, might very well argue that supplies to any British port could be turned to any military account. But such an argument carried with it the corollary that the only security for permanent peace relations between the two countries would have been the joint policy of restriction of armaments which Britain proposed and which Germany refused to entertain.

More recent German deliverances plainly go to establish the conviction that in the German military mind there was a fixed purpose of an ultimate naval war with Britain. The favorite protest of academic Germans, who so constantly express the ruling ideal, has been that Germany cannot endure the "intolerable yoke" of Britain in world-politics. That "yoke" can in no imagination represent anything but British power at sea; and German militarism, on its own showing, can thus have contemplated nothing short of a naval equality which should place British food supplies at the mercy of Germany, while no amount of naval power could put Britain at any equivalent advantage. For six months past we have had from the German press alternate curses of our "wicked starvation war" and boasts that Germany cannot be starved by any blockade. No such boast could be made in Britain save in terms of naval predominance. The destruction of that predominance, therefore, was the ultimate German objective. The problem had been put to the test before 1914.

PERILS OF EXCURSION BOATS

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a passenger on the Grand Republic yesterday, at the time of the panic on board, I desire to set forth a few points that seem to me worth consideration in connection with any possible repetition of such a situation on this or other excursion boats.

Witnesses appear to agree that the cause of the panic was substantially as follows: A man, apparently a deck hand, became involved in a fight, women nearby becoming frightened and raising cries which quickly stampeded the crowd. The point to lay emphasis upon is that the fight which started the panic was not the first in which this man was involved on this trip. After a fracas just a few minutes earlier, when he had been subdued by boat officers, he was confined in the crews' quarters forward and ordered to remain below. The mistake made was that, though the man was very evidently beside himself and in an ugly and dangerous mood, no one in authority appeared to be watching or guarding him, and he was soon at liberty to start the new trouble which resulted in the panic. My first point, therefore, is that masters and officers of excursion boats, especially when crowded with women and children, have a peculiar responsibility upon them to watch suspicious or dangerous characters, especially if they are members of their own crews.

It is not in the interests of prohibition, but in the interest of the public safety and comfort that I suggest in the second place that beer or liquor should not be sold on excursion boats, and that, more particularly, members of the crew should not be allowed to drink on board. These boats are never out more than a few hours and it would certainly cause no great hardship even for a drinking man to wait for his drinks until he had reached the journey's end.

Such a sudden and complete panic as occurred is, of course, almost impossible to control. The difficulty was, at least on the lower deck, which was the only one that came under my own direct observation, that no officer or other person could make himself heard effectively above the general pandemonium. Would it not help if the chief boat's officer on each deck could have a megaphone handy so that he could more effectively make himself heard?

There are always some persons who insist that the boat is overcrowded. These persons do not realize, apparently, that the number of people which any boat may carry is determined in advance by Government inspectors, and that inspectors are always on hand to count the number boarding any particular boat and to see that the limit is not exceeded. As a further check, the company, I am informed, has its own counters always on hand on days when any crowd is likely. Would it not, however, serve to quiet timid persons, or persons inclined to criticise, if large placards were posted conspicuously on board stating officially the number of persons the boat is permitted to carry, and bearing the further assurance that absolutely no trip of the boat is made without careful count by one or more inspectors? Perhaps it could be arranged to announce the number on each trip, and people then would always stop to look at it. R. C. EDLUND.

APHRODITE STAMPED AS GENUINE ANTIQUE

Appraiser's Expert Ignores Disagreements of Artists Over Its Authenticity.

Ignoring the disagreements of art critics regarding the authenticity of the famous statue of Aphrodite when the creation was exhibited at the National Arts Club here in the Spring of 1905, the United States Customs authorities at this port, yesterday gave John D. Rockefeller, the purchaser of the statue, an unqualified certificate of antiquity for the work, which is to adorn a pedestal in the centre of Mr. Rockefeller's Temple of Love on his estate at Pocantico Hills.

Aphrodite arrived from London early yesterday morning, and no time was lost by Frank G. Montag, of Montag & Cassidy, Custom House brokers, in making formal entry at the Custom House. Mr. Montag then had the statue carried by truck to the Appraiser's Stores, where it was turned over to Daniel Robinson, the Government's expert examiner of sculptures. The examiner was at once impressed with the undoubted age of the statue. During the examination it was discovered that the tips of some of the fingers were missing, and that there were also some other blemishes.

The invoice showed that Mr. Rockefeller paid $60,000 for the art treasure. There also were many affidavits attesting the age of the work, all apparently tending to prove that it is in fact the production of Praxiteles, chiseled, approximately in the fourth century B. C. At any rate, Mr. Rockefeller's foreign representatives proved their knowledge of the tariff law's requirements by having a mass of documents to support their contention as to the age of the piece. Mr. Robinson made the formal return prescribed by the law that the piece is "more than 100 years old," an "artistic antiquity," and a "work of art" within the meaning of the free list of the Tariff act of 1913.

There was a possibility that the customs men might hold Aphrodite for duty at 15 per cent. as a sculptured work of art, but not of sufficient age to warrant free entry. In that case Mr. Rockefeller would have been under the necessity of contesting the customs return before the Board of General Appraisers and the Federal Court of Customs Appeals.

Deputy Appraiser George W. Wolf said that all of the regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury for the admittance duty free of art treasures had been complied with by Mr. Rockefeller's representatives, and that so far as the United States customs are concerned the statue is an antique.

As the officials at the Appraiser's Stores did not care to assume responsibility for the safe-keeping of the statue over night, a permit of delivery was granted Mr. Montag, who at once started Aphrodite in a carefully protected case on its journey to Pocantico Hills, where it will be mounted within a few days.

About two weeks ago, Mr. Rockefeller figured in a Customs controversy over the admittance of a large marble fountain, a reproduction of the Oceanus fountain in the Royal Boboli Gardens in Florence. The reproduction was done by R. Romanelli and E. Orlandini, from the original by Gianbologna in the sixteenth century. In that case, Mr. Rockefeller claimed free entry as a replica or reproduction of a work of art, but the board held that the fountain, while a work of art, must be regarded as a "copy" and stand duty at 15 per cent. ad valorem. While the Customs authorities have released the fountain, it is understood that Mr. Rockefeller will contest the board's finding before the Customs Court of Appeals, as tariff experts regard the paragraphs of the law as very close and possibly conflicting.

THE LITTLE THIMBLE BEGINS FREE SHOWS

Crowd So Large That Tickets Must Be Asked For Hereafter at Box Office.

YOUNG ARTISTS INTRODUCED

A large audience gathered yesterday afternoon for the formal opening of Edison's Little Thimble Theatre, at 10 Fifth Avenue. The word had gone out that Charles Edison's institution, founded to spread music in Greenwich Village among people who want it and can't pay for it, and to give a hearing to young American poets and composers, was to give free performances.

The auditorium, which seats 250 persons, was so crowded that Mr. Edison and Guido Bruno, manager of the theatre, announced after the program was over there would be no more invitations with R. S. V. P.'s sent out, as has been done, but hereafter admission while still free would be only by application for tickets to the office of the Thimble Theatre.

The chief attractions were John W. Draper, the poet of New York University, who on the heights overlooking the picturesque reaches of the Harlem River indites poems "artfully luring and lush as sin," to quote one of his own lines; and music by Dwight Lewis Fiske. The feature was three songs of Robert Louis Stevenson, which Mr. Fiske set to music when Stevenson was in his last illness and played once for the writer as he lay dying. These songs, "Shadow March," "My Bed is a Boat," and "Looking Glass River," were sung by Helen Dutton, a soprano, with Mr. Fiske accompanying her at the piano. Later Miss Dutton sang three songs by Mr. Fiske, "Little Boy Blue," "Coming, Coming," and "The Bird."

One of the principal purposes of the Little Thimble Theatre is to furnish a hearing to young American composers who have been handicapped by the difficulty of getting a start in their own country without a foreign reputation, and the recital of Mr. Fiske's songs is the first move in that direction.

Mr. Draper, who was heartened by the presence of the greater part of the membership of the Andiron Club of New York University, an organization which seeks to co-ordinate the artistic spirit of that institution, read five poems from "Exotics," a work which, according to the author's preface, "aims to place printed words on white paper." The poems from this volume were "Nocturne," "Venetian Song," "April Wind," "The Yellow Orchid," and "The Goblet." From his other poems Mr. Draper read "The Will o' the Wisp," "The Glass of Absinthe," and "What Wouldst Thou Be?" He also spoke on "Symphony in Sounds and Symbols."

Other features of the musical program were the overture from "Galatea," the "Glow Worm Intermezzo," the "Evening Star" from "Tannhaeuser," Massenet's "Elegie," Verdi's "O Tu Palermo," Mendelsohn's "Auf Fluegeln des Gesanges," Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsodie No. 2, Puccini's "Un Bel di Vedremo," Penn's "Ta-tao," Wieniawski's "Le Ménétrier," and Paull's "Ben Hur Chariot Race" March.

Among those present were Mme. Apel, an Anglo-Polish sculptress; N. Gouthier, a Parisian composer, Professor Racca of the University of Naples, several members of the New York University Faculty, and a considerable number of Summer visitors to New York.

The program was decorated with a sketch of a dancing girl in crinoline and pantalettes, which occasioned some mild shocks among several of the guests. Next time, it is promised by the management, the stage will be draped with curtains designed by Clara Tice, in which the village artist will depart from here favorite motives and will rely on black butterflies and green peacocks.

DANCING AT THE PALACE.

Lopokova and Vadie in the Bill This Week.

Among the various arts that serve to entertain the patron of the two-a-day, dancing has rather the best of it in this week's bill at the Palace, what with Lydia Lopkova, the tiny Russian danseuse, playing a return engagement, and Mlle. Maryon Vadie making her appearance there. Mlle. Vadie is a graceful and spirited dancer, and her attendant coryphees deserve the applause that rewards their share of the attractively arranged program.

The bill runs distinctly short of laughter before the evening is over, for nothing precisely uproarious has been written for the ample Stella Mayhew to say or sing, but, of course, Ben Welch is funny. Joseph E. Howard, abetted by Mabel McCane, who has a most talented wardrobe, sings some of his old successes. He has written more than one man's share of hits in his day, andh e waves these old laurels to good effect. And then there is Houdini, the most thoroughly extricable man in vaudeville. He emerged from the local tank last evening after he had been submerged in a stout packing case, all carefully roped, nailed, and weighted to the apparent satisfaction of an apparently critical and observent committee which had volunteered from the audience.

Three New Plays Produced.

Three plays that will have New York hearings shortly were presented in out-of-town theatres last night. In the Broadway Theatre, Long Branch, David Belasco made his first production of the new season when he presented the new Smith-Mapes comedy, "The Boomerang," with a cast that included Arthur Byron, Wallace Eddinger, Martha Hedman, and Ruth Shepley. "Some Baby," a farce that will reopen the Fulton Theatre next week, was acted in the Savoy Theatre, Asbury Park. In it appeared Frank Lalor, Jessie Ralph, Ernest Stallard, Sam Edwards, and Francine Larrimore. "Common Clay," the Harvard prize play by Cleves Kinkead, which A. H. Woods will present in the Republic Theatre, with Jane Cowl and John Mason in the principal rôles, was presented in the Apollo Theatre in Atlantic City.

Weber and Fields in Vaudeville.

Weber and Fields are reunited again, this time for a vaudeville engagement. The comedians of music hall memory will appear in the Palace Theatre next week in some of the most popular of their old scenes. It is said they are to receive the highest salary ever paid a team in the varieties. Since their reunion for the Weberfields jubilee several years ago Mr. Fields has been appearing without his partner, who has been producing plays.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

H. H. Frazee has set Aug. 16 as the date for the first performance of the new farce, "Brother Masons," in which Frank McIntyre, Grace Carlyle, Maude Eburne and George Parsons will eventually be seen here. The opening will be in Atlantic City.

When "Chin-Chin" is renewed in the Globe Theatre, Aug. 16, it will stay for three weeks. The seat sale will begin next Monday.

A theatre party of 200 Philadelphians will come here tomorrow for the specific purpose of seeing Ziegfeld's "Follies" in the New Amsterdam tomorrow night.

W. F. Connor, who will direct Sarah Bernhardt's forthcoming American tour, is in receipt of a letter from the French actress in which she says she is yearning to set both her old and new foot in this country. She writes that the rehearsals of her artificial leg are progressing admirably and that her health and spirits ore excellent.

Marie Tempest, Graham Browne, Francis Wilson and Ann Murdock, who are to appear in a revival of "The Duke of Killicrankie" in the Lyceum, beginning Sept. 6, met yesterday for their first conference. With this piece will be given a new Barrie sketch to last fifty minutes.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Baldwin, John Clark Wilson, the Misses Ada and Virginia Brown, and D. P. Cameron of Washington, D. C., are at Sugar Hill for the Summer.

FRANK C. PAGE TO WED.

Ambassador's Son Engaged to Miss Sefton of Auburn, N. Y.

Friends in this city learned by cable messages yesterday of the engagement of Frank C. Page, the youngest son of the American Ambassador to the Court of St. James's, to Miss Katharine Sefton, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Sefton of Auburn, N. Y. Mr. Page is a Harvard graduate, class of 1910. His brothers are Ralph W. Page, who married Miss Leila Tuckerman of Boston, and who lives at Pinehurst, and Arthur W. Page, who married Miss Mollie Hall of Milton, Mass.

Miss Sefton is now in London, and so is Mr. Page. They will be attendants tomorrow at the wedding of Mr. Page's sister, Miss Katharine A. Page, to Charles Greely Loring, a son of the late General Charles G. Loring of Boston. The wedding will take place in the Chapel Royal of St. James's Palace, and Bishop Boyd-Carpenter will officiate. No word has been received as to when Miss Sefton and Mr. Page will be married.

Richard Lorenz Stricken.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 2.—Richard Lorenz, an artist, who has won many international prizes as a painter of Western subjects, was stricken with apoplexy here today. His condition is precarious. Mr. Lorenz is 55 years old.

THE WEEK IN THE THEATRES.

The Summer attractions are beginning to give way before the advance of the new season. This will be the last week of the farce, "Twin Beds," at the Harris Theatre, while the Behman show will quit the Columbia in two weeks, after the longest engagement a burlesque entertainment has ever enjoyed in New York. The "Follies" will remain in the New Amsterdam till late in September. No closing time has yet been announced for "It Pays to Advertise," which is nearing its 400th performance in Cohan's Theatre.

The new Palace program includes the names of some of vaudeville's favorites. Stella Mayhew is back with some new songs, with Billy Taylor to play her accompaniments. Lydia Lopokova, the delightful little Russian dancer, offers a program of dances, and Marie Nordstrom gives her specialty, "Bits of Acting." Then there are Houdini in some mystifying tricks, Ben Welch, in one of his familiar Hebrew characterizations, and Joseph E. Howard and Mabel McCane, in a new singing specialty.

Harry Fox and Yansci Dolly are again in the varieties. They are to be seen this week in the New Brighton Theatre in a skit combining song, dance, and patter. Belle Baker has some new songs written for her use by Irving Berlin. "On the School Playground" is the title of a miniature musical comedy in which Ed Brendel and Muriel Morgan appear. Ralph Riggs and Katherine Witchie do clever dancing.

Bert Fitzgibbon and his hat are adding to the gaiety of nations in Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre this week. The De Pace Opera Company is a band of Neapolitan singers and instrumentalists who give a program of classical and popular numbers. A musical skit entitled "The Firefly" is presented by Harry Hayward and company.

"Hearts Ablaze" is the title of the new picture offering in the Vitagraph Theatre. The picture tells a story of court and cloister life, and is by Eugene Mullin. "The Goddess" is in its thirteenth chapter, and there are several shorter pictures on the program.

"The Puppet Crown," for which Ina Claire acted the principal role, is being shown in the Broadway Theatre. Just around the corner, in the "Follies" in the New Amsterdam, Miss Claire is appearing in person.

"The Sealed Valley," with Dorothy Donnelly in the principal role, is the feature offering in the Eighty-first Street Theatre.

"The Birth of a Nation" will reach its three hundredth and seventy-sixth showing in the Liberty Theatre this week.

Ocean Travelers.

PROMINENT WOMEN FORM DEFENSE BAND

COMPILES VOLUNTEER LIST

The Special Relief Society, of which Mrs. William Alexander is the President, announced yesterday the beginning of a campaign "to arouse women of America to a full realization of the importance of immediate preparedness." Among the members of the society are Mrs. George J. Gould, Mrs. John Jacob Astor, Mrs. Peter Cooper Hewitt, Miss Louise Iselin, Mrs. Charles M. Oelrichs, Mrs. Edwin Gould, Mrs. Paul Morton, Mrs. Frederic Neilson, Mrs. I. Townsend Burden, Mrs. William Rockefeller, Mrs. M. Orme Wilson, and Mrs. Stowe Phelps.

The movement was started, the Executive Committee of the society said, as a result of the inadequacy of the national defenses "to which attention has been called by Secretary of War Garrison, Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, Admiral Dewey, and many others."

Several of the members declared at a recent meeting that in the event of trouble their Summer homes would be offered to the Government for hospital purposes and that "the society is desirous of adding to this list" of homes that could be used in a national crisis. Likewise the society has prepared suitable specimen kits for the regular army and also for volunteer armies, kits for hospitals and for convalescents, and is now compiling a list of sewing clubs which may be called upon at any time for the preparation of garments that may be needed in the field.

The society has undertaken to keep a register of those who would volunteer their services in connection with war relief work in this country, a register of nurses who would be available for field and hospital work, and of possible contributors of funds and materials for the work of relief.

"Events of the past year," the statement reads, "have made it plain just how easily solemn peace treaties are violated, just how suddenly war may come, and also what heavy penalties are paid for unpreparedness, and while war is a thing greatly to be deplored, and should be, if possible, avoided, still it seems the greater part of wisdom that we should face conditions as they exist today, both here and abroad. Non-resistance and lack of strength, it appears, are sometimes an invitation to aggression, and this, we believe, is something of which we should take note at once. Not that war is a thing of the immediate future. Let us rather hope it is never to be again. And yet, if war is ever to come, the mere instinct of self-preservation directs that women, too, should be prepared to defend American ideals of liberty, peace, and honor.

"Preparation, as we have come to see it, means preparation today, and at this moment, when the men are doing their part to insure us protection from war, there are many things with which women should be concerned. One thing American women can do today is to urge immediate action by Congress. Another big opportunity lies in aiding the special preparedness already begun by the Special Relief Society. This society has undertaken to complete at once a nation-wide organization of women for the purpose of not only considering questions of preparedness, but acting on them as well, in these times of peace."

The Vice President of the society is Mrs. William C. Potter; the Treasurer, Mrs. T. J. Oakley Rhinelander, and Mrs. John A. Logan is the Secretary. On the advisory board are Dr. Charles A. Dana, Samuel R. Bertron, Frederic R. Coudert, the Rev. Dr. W. R. Jelliffe, Frank B. Keech, Robert Olyphant, and Howard Taylor. The office of the society is 597 Fifth Avenue.

PLAINFIELD FACES STRIKE.

Machinists' Leaders and Employers Fail to Reach Agreement.

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Aug. 2.—Although they conferred with factory Superintendents today relative to the machinists' demand for an eight-hour day, J. J. Keppler, Vice President of the International Machinists' Union; Thomas E. Carroll, who has been detailed to represent that organization in Plainfield, and Hugh Riley, Business Agent of the New Jersey Unions, intimated that the meeting had been unsatisfactory.

"Our investigations have resulted in a decision to strike for higher pay as well as shorter hours in the three Plainfield printing press plants," Mr. Keppler said. "The men are not being paid as much as men employed by similar plants in other cities. The statement given out by the management of the Sauerer plant of the International Motor Company has served to arouse a spirit of animosity because the men believe that it is not binding in its nature. They were granted an eight-hour day and a bonus on all war orders, but the men want a more definite statement.

"Detailed report of the conferences will be made to the machinists at a mass meeting to be held in the Plainfield Theatre Thursday night, and whether the reports are satisfactory will indicate the possibility of a strike during the latter part of the week. The men are determined to get their demands and will stick together at any cost."

Mr. Keppler went to Brooklyn tonight to attend a mass meeting of die sinkers and drop forgers, and will return to Plainfield tomorrow morning to continue negotiations with factory managers.

GARVIN PLANT SHUTS DOWN.

More Than 200 Machinists Obey Union's Call for Strike.

More than 200 of the men employed by the Garvin Machine Company, at Spring and Varick Streets, responded to the strike call of the International Association of Machinists by refusing to return to work yesterday morning. Officers of the firm said that 600 of their employes had returned to work, but at noon the factory was closed down.

H. C. Hunter of the National Metal Trades Association, at 30 Church Street, which represents the Garvin Machine Company, said:

"The company has not decided what steps to take. The union officials have demanded 15 per cent. increase of pay and an eight-hour day instead of nine hours. Last week Mr. Garvin offered 10 per cent. increase of pay, but would not consider the demand for shorter hours. The output in this industry, excepting munitions of war, is from 40 to 50 per cent. below normal. There are thousands of machinists out of work in this city. Many of the shops are running at a loss. A worse time from the standpoint of the workmen could not be picked out for a strike."

Howard C. Seaman, Vice President of the E. W. Bliss Company, said there had not been the slightest disorder at the plant, and that no men had quit work. Yesterday the eight-hour day went into effect. Mr. Seaman said that no demands had been received from employes or their representatives.

Ex-Senator John J. Linson.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Ex-State Senator John J. Linson died at his home at Kingston today in his sixty-fifth year. He was born at Mongaup Valley, Sullivan County, on Nov. 29, 1850; was educated at Monticello Academy and the Albany Normal School; studied law with the late Judge Nevin of Monticello and was admitted to the bar in 1872. He removed to Kingston in 1876; was Corporation Counsel of Kingston from 1883 to 1887, and State Senator from 1888 to 1891. Later for several years he was a law partner of Jacob A. Cantor and Eugene Van Schaick of New York. He was President of the Ulster County Bar Association and a member of the American, New York State, and New York City Bar Associations, Kingston Club and Reform Club of the City of New York.

RISE AT ROOSEVELT WORKS.

Increased Pay Averts Strike Where Fatal Riots Occurred.

Special to The New York Times.

METUCHEN, N. J., Aug. 2.—Following rumors of a strike among the employes of the American Agricultural Chemical Company, officials announced at its Roosevelt plant today that the workers would receive 20 cents an hour instead of 18, beginning yesterday.

The rising of the wages was the outcome of a conference held by the company and union men in New York yesterday. Last January the men went on strike because they were receiving but 16 cents an hour. They had asked for 20 cents, and following a riot in which two men were killed and many injured 18 cents an hour was granted.

Twenty-five Deputies were convicted of manslaughter as a result of the riot, and it is said the company granted the rise today in order to forestall any further trouble.

MILITIA CONTROLS MASSENA.

Fifteen Arrests Made for Rioting—Trouble Seems Near End.

Special to The New York Times.

MASSENA, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Following the arrest of fifteen men accused of rioting, the strikers from the plant of the Aluminum Comany of America settled down to a sullen quiet this afternoon. In the yard of the plant three companies of State infantry are lying on their arms, while patrols are on the alert to prevent any gatherings and to keep strikers from getting near the plant. In addition, sixty Deputies are on duty with loaded rifles, and the company's regular police are doing patrol duty.

Although Charles H. Moritz, General Manager of the plants of the company here, at Pittsburgh, and at Niagara Falls, who came here today, expressed the opinion that there was little likelihood of further trouble, and that the strikers would return to work within a day or so, he was loath to allow the troops or deputies to leave.

"The men have made no demands and refuse to see or talk with us," said Mr. Moritz. "We do not know what they want. They seem to have no leaders. We believe the trouble was started by a herd of malcontents. We have transferred orders to other plants of the company, so production will not stop. We do not manufacture war munitions of any kind, but the demand for copper for war munitions has caused an increase in the demand for aluminum as a substitute for copper."

Sheriff Thaddeus P. Day said tonight that he did not anticipate any further serious trouble, and that the troops might be withdrawn within a day or two.

The plant reopened at the usual hour this morning. When the employes who had refused to strike and who numbered more than 2,000 started for the plant, they found a formidable force of strikers waiting for them. The troops dispersed the strikers at the point of the bayonet. Later some of the strikers apparently decided to try to rescue their comrades from the jail. A mob of 100 started for the jail, but was quickly routed by the troops. Still later the strikers tried to prevent a shifting engine from drawing a long string of coal cars into the factory yard, but were prevented by the militia.

The fifteen men accused of rioting were arraigned in police court. They waived examination and each was held in $500 bail for the September Grand Jury. Later the prisoners were taken to the County Jail at Canton under a heavy guard of militiamen. Occasional arrests were still being made at a late hour tonight; in all about twenty-five men had been taken into custody since the rioting started.

Joseph Solunski, a striker who was shot in the abdomen in the first clash with the company's guards on Saturday, died tonight in an Ogdensburg hospital. Coroner C. C. Bartholomew took charge of the body and will confer with the District Attorney tomorrow as to the course of action to be followed.

1,100 MEN WALK OUT AT ILION.

Special to The New York Times.

UTICA, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Notices were posted in the Remington arms plant at Ilion two weeks ago that on Aug. 1 there would be an advance of 25 per cent. in the wages of the employes. On Saturday last notices were posted to the effect that day workers would receive the 25 per cent. increase, but that piece workers would receive only 15 per cent. advance.

This morning at 9:30 o'clock about 350 piece workers quit. By noon others had walked out in different rooms, and it was estimated that about 1,100 were absent from their benches. None of those employed by the day quit work, nor did the piece workers endeavor to persuade them to do so.

The men were informed that nothing could be done until General Manager C. C. Tyler of Bridgeport could be consulted, and later in the day it was reported that Mr. Tyler was on his way to Ilion. The piece workers held a meeting late this afternoon and there was some talk of forming a union. This was discouraged, however, by most of those present, and it was decided to wait until consultation could be had with Mr. Tyler.

WILLIAM J. BOARDMAN DEAD.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—William Jarvis Boardman, philanthropist and retired lawyer, died today at his Washington home, 1,801 P Street, after an illness of five months, contracted at Ormond, Fla. Mr. Boardman leaves a widow and four children, Miss Mabel Boardman, whose activities in Red Cross work have given her a world-wide reputation; Mrs. Winthrop Murray Crane of Dalton, Mass., wife of the former Governor and former Senator; Mrs. Frederick Keep of Washington, and William Boardman of Cleveland, Ohio, who succeded to his father's law practice. Funeral services will take place Wednesday and the burial will be at Rock Creek Cemetery here.

Mr. Boardman was born in Boardman, Ohio, April 15, 1832. He was graduated from Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., and Harvard Law School. He practiced law in Cleveland for many years, and in 1888 came to Washington, where he built the residence in which he died. He had been active in charitable and philanthropic work and showed great interest in the development of the Red Cross. His private charities were many. He was Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Emergency Hospital, and Chairman of the Orphanage Board of St. John's Episcopal Church.

Mr. Boardman and his family were old friends of ex-President Taft and Mrs. Taft. When they came to Washington shortly before the Taft inauguration Mr. and Mrs. Taft were house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Boardman.

I. M. MARINE PLAN HALVES ITS CAPITAL

Steamship Company's Stock, Bonds, and Accrued Interest to be Cut $86,000,000.

TO ASSESS SHARES $2.50

Fixed Charges, It Is Figured, Will Be Within the Average Net Earnings of Last Six Years.

A proposed reorganization plan for the International Mercantile Marine Company, which was announced yesterday by W. W. Miller of counsel for the Reorganization Committee, calls for a reduction in the total capitalization of the company of approximately $86,000,000. The present total of stock, bonds, and accrued interest is $175,591,245, and it is proposed to start the new company with a capitalization of only $89,371,393. It is believed that after reorganization on these terms the capitalization will be no greater than the intrinsic value of the properties involved, without regard to the items of good-will, trade names, trade connections and trade routes, and that the fixed charges will be well within the average net earnings of the properties for the last six years.

The early appearance of a reorganization plan is due to the improvement in earnings, which smoothed the way by making it possible greatly to reduce the original estimate of the amount of cash which would have to be raised by assessment on the stock. The assessment called for by the plan is but $2.50 per share for both common and preferred stock, which is counted on to bring in $2,540,000. For this money the stockholders are to receive new first mortgage and collateral trust 5 per cent. convertible bonds at par.

If the plan succeeds, the capitalization of the new company will be divided as follows:

Bonds	$39,536,240
Preferred stock	31,464,233
Common stock	18,370,920
Total	$89,371,393

After new securities are apportioned to the 4½ per cent. bonds of the International Mercantile Marine Company and the 5 per cent. bonds of the International Navigation Company, of a par value equal to their principal amount and accrued interest, the balance of the common stock, $12,838,000, is apportioned between the old preferred and the common stock on the basis of approximately four-fifths to the preferred stock and one-fifth to the common.

The relative rights and position of the bonds of the International Mercantile Marine Company and of the International Navigation Company were adjusted and settled by committees representing those respective issues of bonds after examination and consideration of the values of the properties involved and their respective earnings as part of the operations of the company. Under the plan the principal and accrued interest to July 1, 1915, of both issues of bonds, amounting to approximately $74,000,000, is funded into new securities. The accumulated earnings of the properties to July 1, not being required for interest, become available as working capital and the nucleus of a fund for building or acquiring additional ships, which, together with the subscriptions to be made by stockholders, will furnish a substantial sum and all that is required now for these purposes.

The total authorized amount of the new 6 per cent. preferred stock will be $81,500,000, of which $50,000,000 will be reserved to be used solely for the conversion of the new first mortgage bonds. The preferred stock is non-cumulative, but in addition to being entitled to 6 per cent. dividends in preference to dividends on the common stock, is entitled to receive additional dividends at the same rate as the common stock after payment of dividends on the common stock at the rate of 6 per cent.

The bondholders' committees, which represent more than a majority of each issue of bonds, have unanimously approved the plan. Information, from both England and Holland, where substantial amounts of securities are held, indicate that the terms of the plan have been favorably received abroad.

MAY ABSORB PACIFIC MAIL.

International Mercantile Marine a Bidder, Says Rumor.

Publication of the terms proposed for reorganizing the International Mercantile Marine yesterday was accompanied by a rumor that the company or interests allied with it were negotiating for the purchase of part of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company's fleet of vessels. The Pacific Mail has stated that it cannot operate its steamships on the Pacific under the terms of the seaman's law without suffering loss, and that sailings will be discontinued on Nov. 4.

Officials of the International Company declined to comment on the rumor, but no denial was made. The Pacific Mail vessels are thirteen in number, sailing under the American flag. It is believed that if several of them are taken over by the International they will be added to the American Line, which will mean that they still will be operated under American registry.

TO FINANCE CROP MOVEMENT

Federal Reserve Board Points Out How Banks Can Aid Farmers.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Preliminary plans designed to make available the resources of the Federal Reserve system in the annual Fall movement of crops have been worked out by the Federal Reserve Board. Writing to the twelve regional banks, the board pointed out in a letter made public today how members of the system may help to finance the crop movement.

Usually the crop movement has been taken care of by Government deposits in banks or the issue of emergency currency under the Aldrich-Vreeland act, which expired last month. In place of these agencies, the board states, there is ample authority in the Federal Reserve act to meet the situation this Fall.

"In view of the large surplus reserves now held by the Federal Reserve banks, by member banks, and by other banks throughout the country," says the board's letter, "there should be no difficulty in affording the producers the assistance necessary to enable them to market their products in volume corresponding to the power of the trade to absorb them. In order to accomplish this end it is suggested that Federal Reserve banks adopt a definite policy with reference to rediscounting paper secured by documents in satisfactory form evidencing the ownership of stored agricultural products.

"Through such a policy, together with proper methods of warehousing, Federal Reserve banks can be a potent factor in assisting the normal movement of staple agricultural products from the field to the factory or to the consumer."

The board calls special attention to the marketing of the cotton crop, because it is "clearly to the common interest that credits based upon this crop be protected as far as possible from the danger of demoralization."

"Sudden and violent fluctuations," it continues, "are clearly to the advantage of neither the loaning banks, the producer, the manufacturer, nor the consumer. They offer, on the contrary, an inviting field for the speculator, and should the Federal Reserve system, in making possible the more normal movement of the crop, be a contributing factor in reducing these fluctuations, it would have accomplished a great public good."

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The disturbance over Northern Florida Sunday night has moved to Southern Georgia, attended by heavy local rains and also by moderate gales on the Georgia and Northeast Florida Coasts. The depression over the lower Ohio Valley has also assumed more definite formation, and with the high area to the northwar and northeastward has caused general showers over the north and central districts east of the Rocky Mountains.

There were also local showers in the Gulf States, while in the Southwest and extreme West the weather was fair.

It is considerably cooler in the Missouri and Upper Mississippi Valleys and the upper Lake region and generally warmer in the Northwest, especially over Western Idaho and eastern portions of Oregon and Washington, where the maximum temperature ranged from 94 to 100 degrees.

Unsettled, showery weather will continue Tuesday from the upper lake region and the Ohio Valley eastward, and also in the South Atlantic States and probably on Wednesday in the Middle Atlantic States and New England.

It will be cooler Tuesday in the Ohio Valley, the lower lake region, and the Middle Atlantic States, and continue cool in the upper lake region, followed by rising temperature Wednesday.

Winds for Tuesday and Wednesday along the North and Middle Atlantic Coasts will be moderate north and northeast; South Atlantic Coast, fresh to strong, mostly south Tuesday, diminishing Wednesday and becoming variable.

FORECASTS—TODAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Unsettled Tuesday and Wednesday, occasional showers.

New England—Showers Tuesday and probably Wednesday.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

DISPLAY MEN HEAR PERCY S. STRAUS

CONTROLLER GREETS THEM

Demonstrations and Lectures Take Up Afternoon Session—Delegates Here Until Thursday.

More than 350 members of the International Association of Display Men, from all parts of the country, attended the opening session at the Waldorf-Astoria of the eighteenth annual convention yesterday. The hall was well filled when C. J. Potter, President of the association, called the meeting to order and introduced Controller William A. Prendergast, who, in the absence of Mayor Mitchel from the city, welcomed the delegates.

The Controller said he hoped the display men would take advantage of their stay in New York to interest themselves in the problems of the municipality and see what the local Government is doing to solve them. William A. Marble, Vice President of the R & G Corset Company and former President of the Merchants' Association, extended a greeting in behalf of the city's wholesale trade. Mr. Marble recalled that forty years ago when he commenced his business career the retail trade was at or below Howard Street.

"There was not as much space occupied in those days," said Mr. Marble, "as the area now covered by R. H. Macy & Co. alone."

Mr. Marble paid a tribute to the work of the display men, but gave it as his opinion that the display experts did not give the wholesalers' products enough space. Responding to the addresses of welcome, John H. Hobelman of St. Louis told his hearers that about the only time the average display man talked was when he was endeavoring to get his employer to spend $500 for display fixtures.

"The window trimmer was looked upon as a man with a hobby in the days gone by," said Mr. Hobelman. "It was not long ago that a man had to fight to get a bolt of cheesecloth to make display. Now he can get a bolt of velvet if he wants it, and the display man today has his office, just as the advertising man has. The position of men in many of the stores is not a bed of roses by any means. I venture to say that there are men who came here at their own expense, instead of the stores sending them, as they do the buyers."

Percy S. Straus of R. H. Macy & Co. was presented to the convention by President Potter as "a young man who is strictly with you and one who has done much for display men and their work." Mr. Straus began by saying that his firm had studied the display situation in New York. He said:

"It may be because there are many specialty stores, but it is certain that we do it scientifically. I believe also that there is no better place than the Metropolitan Museum of Art to get ideas for display purposes. The work of the display men is now regarded as a profession. The change of the name from 'window dresser' to 'display man' is indicative of the growing importance of the work. Too often an artistic temperament makes it difficult for a display men to adhere to the rules of the store with which he is connected. There must be co-operation."

The morning session closed with the appointment of judges for the various classes of exhibits shown by seventy-five exhibitors in the Fourth Trade Convention held in connection with the association's annual meeting.

The afternoon session was given up to lectures and demonstrations by display managers of some of the largest stores in this city and the East. The demonstrations were held under the auspices of the Display Managers' Club of America. Those participating in the afternoon session included L. Hahn of Women's Wear, who described the work of the Managers' Club; W. F. Allert of R. H. Macy & Co., whose subject was "Our Profession;" E. Munn of Franklin Simon & Co., on "Equestrian Equipment;" Herman Frankenthal of B. Altman & Co., on "Fabric Draping;" William Tishman of James McCreery & Co., on "Fabric Dressing;" Harry Bird of John Wanamaker, on "Artistic Displays;" J. J. Richter of Saks & Co., on "Handling Furnishings," and several other well-known display men.

President Potter predicted that the attendance at the convention will reach 1,000 at least. The convention will be continued this morning, sessions being held every day until the final meeting on Thursday.

EDUCATION NOTES.

The Committee on Special Schools has requested that in the departmental estimate for 1916 there be included $36,000 for forty new attendance officers for permanent appointment, at $900 each; $45,000 for 200 attendance officers, temporary, at $75 a month each for three months, and $2,770.47 for revised schedule for attendance officers.

The Committee on Athletics, in addition to the usual items for increased register for 1916, asks that $78,000 be allowed for after school athletics instead of $57,000 granted this year.

The Inspector of Ungraded Classes has asked that for 1916 the following be included in the estimate: One hundred and twenty new teachers, $103,600; supplies for above, $5,400; equipment for above, $30,250; clerical help, $2,100; ten visiting teachers, $10,000; four additional physicians, $7,200; five additional assistant inspectors, $9,000; farm school, $1,800.

In addition to the usual items for parental and truant school, the following are asked: Increase for principal, $500; increase for matron superintendent, $500; increase for other help, seven persons, $700; chauffeur for auto truck, $1,000. A decrease of $2,040 is shown in other positions.

CROPSEY OPPOSES SCUDDER

Objects to His Hearing Grout's Motion for Doubt Certificate.

When an order to show cause why a certificate of reasonable doubt should not issue to ex-Controller Edward M. Grout, convicted of perjury in connection with the affairs of the Union Bank, of which he was President, was returned before Supreme Court Justice Townsend Scudder in Brooklyn, yesterday, District Attorney ropsey objected to Justice Scudder sitting in judgment on the matter, and the Justice refused to hear the motion. Justice Scudder will decide today to which Supreme Court Justice he will refer the application.

The complication was due to the controversy between the District Attorney and certain members of the bench who heard preliminary motions in the Grout case. In a public speech Mr. Cropsey referred to these Judges as "handpicked," and as "bosom friends" of Grout. Justice Scudder was one of those criticised by the District Attorney.

Justice Scudder then adjourned court, saying he would endeavor to find a Justice who would hear the motion. He spent all the afternoon telegraphing and telephoning to members of the bench in the Second Department, nearly all of whom are out of town for the Summer.

Mr. Grout is in the City Prison in Brooklyn under a stay of execution of the sentence of one year's imprisonment in Sing Sing. The term of this stay expires on Friday.

SMALL FIRE IN CITY HALL.

Blaze Threatened New Decorations of McAneny's Office.

Two thousand loungers driven to City Hall Park by the hot weather witnessed last evening the arrival of firemen to put out a fire in the City Hall, which threatened the newly renovated and decorated offices occupied by President McAneny of the Board of Aldermen. The suite was formerly the City Clerk's office. Below it in the basement and connected with it by a stairway is a room once used for storing the City Clerk's records. This room has been occupied as a store room by the painters and decorators at work in the City Hall.

Shortly after 8 o'clock Thomas McNamara, a watchman, opened the door of the basement room and found the waste and papers there on fire. He told Lieutenant Kelly, on desk duty in Traffic A, across the hall. An alarm of fire was turned in. The coming of the engines brought a great crowd, which overflowed into Park Row. The eitemenxt was short lived. McNamara and the policemen extinguished the blaze before the firemen came. The damage was slight.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

In Town.

REEDCRAFT WARES, INC.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Reedcraft Wares, Inc., manufacturer of reed wares, at 80 West Houston Street. Judge Hand appointed John L. Lyttle receiver. Liabilities, $12,000, and probable assets, $500.

WEISEL BROTHERS.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Hugo and Morris Weisel, who composed the firm of Weisel Brothers, manufacturers of kimonos, at 122-130 West Twenty-seventh Street. Liabilities are reported to be $12,000.

CASINO BROTHERS.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Louis and Anthony Casino, who composed the firm of Casino Brothers, truckmen and forwarders, at 524 Broome Street and 155 Watt Street. Liabilities are said to be more than $1,500 and assets more than $500.

CHARLES MILLER, foreman, of 68 West 118th Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $2,495 and no assets.

BENJAMIN J. TRAUBMAN.—Judge A. N. Hand has dismissed the petition in bankruptcy filed on July 13 against Benjamin J. Traubman, dealer in men's furnishing goods, at 83 and 88 Wall Street and 861 Broadway. He made a settlement at 20 cents on the dollar in cash.

PROSPECT LEASING COMPANY.—Judge A. N. Hand extended the time to answer the bankruptcy proceeding filed against the Prospect Leasing Company, proprietor of the Hotel St. Andrew, at Broadway, corner of Seventy-second Street, through Aug. 13. The company was not yet able to make arrangements for the dismissal of the petition and asked for more time.

ABRAHAM ZUCKER, dealer in men's and women's furnishing goods, at 787 Sixth Avenue, made an assignment to Samuel Cohn.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 2.—The New England Dinsmore Power Process Company, 141 Milk St., which was petitioned into involuntary bankruptcy, April 6, filed schedules in the U. S. District Court today admitting debts of $40,058.90. The petition states that the assets are uncertain. The principal creditor is George F. Dinsmore of Boston, who holds notes to the value of $33,357.96.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 2.—The failure of the Zulu Knitting Co. of Two Rivers is now followed by the filing of a bankruptcy petition of William G. Ahearn, whose business affairs are related to the concern, and who lists debts of $75,849.10, only $1,000 being secured. The bulk of the liabilities are represented by many promissory notes. In his assets he says his 147 shares of stock in the Zulu company are worth nothing, and all assets of $465 are declared exempt.

Dress Goods Demand Slackens.

The possibility of a strike in the coat and suit trade is having a disturbing influence on the dress goods market. Buyers are taking in only those goods that may be difficult to get later on. Serges have suffered for this reason. On the other hand, poplins, whipcords, and gabardines are being ordered in by the manufacturers. In poplins there is understood to be some scarcity of goods that sell between $1.12½ and $1.30 a yard. This would serve to indicate that buyers have been buying liberally and have faith in this fabric.

Supply Good Ribbon Orders.

The retail trade buying ribbons for immediate and holiday needs are supplying a better business to the importers and manufacturers than that which the jobbers gave. The goods desired principally are designed for use as hairbows. Warp prints are being taken, and moires in 60 to 70 lignes. The colors that are popular just now are dark shades of navy, purple, green and brown in the order named. While the demand is not as active as the manufacturers would like to see it, there is a feeling that conditions are improving.

Gray Goods Quiet.

Very little of note took place in the gray goods market yesterday. The mills held back last week, hoping that a strong Government report on the condition of the cotton crop would enable them to get better prices. The report, however, was about what was expected, and did not add material strength to the market. Offerings were a little freer, but what transactions took place were at previous prices. Staple print-cloth prices, which were more or less nominal, follow:

39-inch, 68-72s	4¾c	38½-inch, 60-48s	3¼c
38½-inch, 64-64s	*4c	27-inch, 64-60s	2¾c
38½-inch, 64-60s	3⅝c	27-inch, 56-52s	2⅜c

*Asked.

Pencil Stripes Again.

After a dormant period of four or five months the demand for pencil stripes has set in again in the men's wear division of the piece goods market. These goods are being taken up for late Fall business, and are said just now to be rather hard to obtain. There is nothing extremely new in the designs being shown, but the most desirable goods of this kind are made with the stripes running in groups of two or three. Backgrounds of black and blue prevail, and the clothiers are taking rather kindly to pencil stripes on a gray background. Plaid designs are by no means "dead," and in glens a tendency is noted toward smaller checks.

Packing Ribbons for Export.

A ribbon trade with South America has developed since the war, and the sort of packing required is not a detail to be neglected. So far the business has been of a more or less spasmodic nature, but it is expected to become more regular as the houses in South America and the exporters here grow more familiar with each other's methods. In packing ribbons the goods are taken from their wooden spools and put up in ten-yard lengths. The flat lengths are then packed in paper and wrapped up in oilcloth specially designed for the purpose. Another layer of paper is added and the package is ready for shipment. In discarding the customary wooden spool the purpose is to save on the duty, as the tax is levied on the basis of weight.

Gem Imports Well Maintained.

Appraiser Sague's report of precious stone importations for July, made public yesterday, reveals that gem imports, in view of the conditions brought about by the European war, were not as low last month in comparison with the same period of 1914, as might have been expected. July entries of precious stones, including pearls, appraised by Examiner Treadwell totaled $1,605,769, against $1,875,889 in the same month a year ago. In July, 1913, when the entries were abnormal on account of the imminence of tariff revision upward on gems, the importations reached $5,670,727. Last month's cut stones imported here had a value of $1,063,572, while uncut gems totaled $512,094. Miners' and glaziers' diamonds, duty free, were returned at $29,808.

Barbed Wire Fencing Loses Ground.

Barbed wire is gradually losing ground in favor as a fence, and largely as a matter of sentiment. It is the cheapest and most effective fence ever made, and will hold or "contain" any large animal. But it is an ugly affair, entirely unapproachable, equally hard to climb or get through, and occasionally, though not often, doing damage to live stock. Most animals have learned to avoid it, except hogs, who learn anything very slowly. So the woven wire fence in several forms seems to be the coming fence. The square mesh is the one most in use, and both the square and diamond mesh pattern are so made as to hold and contain animals as small as rabbits.

Expect More War Orders.

While the army contract business, as far as the cloth markets are concerned, cannot be described as generally active at the present time, it is fairly certain that the foreign Governments will be in the market shortly after supplies for next Winter. England is understood to have on hand quantities of cloth for equipping her armies, but the other nations are not as fortunate. The tendency of some of the mills to get in most of their Spring business on staples before the opening is regarded as a sign that they wish to be in a position to take on army work when it arrives. This is one of the explanations offered at least for the comparatively low prices at which buyers were able to fill their needs before the openings. Prices were made attractive, it is said, so that the business could be completed in as short a space of time as possible.

Government Trade Book on India.

E. C. Porter, agent in charge of the local branch office of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce in the Custom House, announced yesterday that the office has received copies of the new Department of Commerce book on India. This volume, which is the result of investigations conducted by Government agents in India, contains nearly 500 pages of valuable information for all manufacturers and exporters doing business with India, or who on account of the changed conditions brought about by the war, are contemplating trade relations with that Empire. The book contains a wealth of information on every conceivable subject calculated to interest the American shipper. While copies may be studied at the local office, the volume may be had at a low price on application to the Superintendent of Documents, Washington.

Protest Against British Embargo.

In pursuance of the plan of the Hotel Biltmore Executive Committee of Importers interested in getting merchandise out of Germany and Austria-Hungary, meetings of protest against the British embargo are being arranged for in leading commercial centres. The first formal meeting of the kind to be held outside of New York will take place today in St. Louis, when merchants will voice their complaint against the inconvenience and loss confronting the importing interests by Great Britain's policy. The Washington authorities will be asked to make vigorous representations to Great Britain regarding the burdensome application of that country's Orders-in-Council, to American-owned and neutral merchandise. Arthur P. Meagher, head of the firm of Charles H. Wyman & Co., St. Louis, who has just been elected Vice President of the American Importers' Association, with headquarters in this city, will preside at today's meeting in St. Louis.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Difference of 7-10 of a Cent Cannot Be Neglected in Valuation.

Several importers submitted claims to the Board of General Appraisers without introducing any testimony in support of their contentions. Judge Fischer said that from an examination of the Custom House papers in the cases it was apparent that no reason existed for disturbing the Collector's assessment on the merchandise.

Thomas Nevin was sustained in claims relating to the classification of viscose caps imported under the tariff acts of 1909 and 1913, duty being taken by similitude as bottle caps of metal. The board decided that the goods fell within the unenumerated manufactured article provisions of the law, and should accordingly be given lower duty.

The Illinois Central Railroad Company failed in a protest owing to lack of evidence in support of its contention that the capacity of bottles in shipments of case whisky was wrongly gauged by the Customs officials at New Orleans.

Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago, were sustained in a protest that white baking dishes imported under the tariff are properly dutiable under Paragraph 80 at 50 per cent. ad valorem as plain white goods, not decorated.

John & James Dobson, Inc., Philadelphia, manufacturers of carpets and rugs, won in a customs controversy with the Government regarding the legality of the official weigher's return.

In overruling a protest by Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne, the board ruled that the slightest excess in value controls the dutiable classification of merchandise imported under the tariff. The firm imported pocket knives, which in their packed condition are valued at $1.007 per dozen, or seven-tenths of a cent above the minimum valuation of such articles specified in Paragraph 128 of the Act of 1913. The goods were accordingly assessed at 55 per cent. ad valorem. It was claimed by the importers that the knives are properly dutiable at but 35 per cent. ad valorem as being valued at less than $1 per dozen, on the theory that seven-tenths of one cent should be treated as negligible and immaterial under the doctrine that the law does not take account of little things.

Judge Fischer said the board knew of no principle of law to support the claim made by the protestants. He held that the line of demarkation has been clearly fixed by Congress and must be adhered to. "The rule applicable here," said the General Appraiser, "is similar to that which governs cases where articles are dutiable according to component material of chief value. In such cases the value of the chief component material may exceed another component by a small fraction of 1 per cent., but the slightest excess in value would definitely determine and control the dutiable classification of the article."

NOT A SEWING MACHINE.

Appraisers' Board Overrules Protest on Power Transmission Tables.

The Board of General Appraisers set a precedent under the present tariff law yesterday when it overruled a protest by the Singer Manufacturing Company, and held that power transmitting tables composed in chief value of metal and capable of operating at the same time from five to twenty sewing machines, are properly dutiable at 20 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 167, as manufactures of metal.

It was shown at the trial of the case that all of the component parts are composed wholly of metal; that, in addition to the parts which compose the metal frame work that supports the tables, there are incorporated as an integral part of each table certain connecting shaftings and power transmitting devices by which the power generated by the electric motor may be transmitted, simultaneously if desired, to all of the machines on the table. This, it was shown, necessitates not only a transmitting device between each sewing machine head and the shaft, but also a connecting device which transmits the power from one machine to another. Judge Fischer, overruling the importer's contention, says in part:

"It is perfectly clear to us that, for tariff purposes at least, the articles should be treated as entireties imported in the form of single and double power transmitting tables or benches employed in the operation of sewing machines. In our view of the case, these tables more nearly approximate the ordinary factory appliances and power-transmitting apparatus than they do a combination of sewing machine parts."

"SALTS" FUR-TEX REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

To the Pile Fabric Coat Buyer

"SALTS" ESQUIMETTE PLUSH REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

Of our all-comprehensive Fall showing, we shall not endeavor to present a word picture here. We merely urge that you do your department and your firm full justice by inspecting our line.

Our styles for Fall, 1915, are not the work of one man, or the work of one day. Without thought of either time or expense we have employed the most expert talent procurable in the preparation of our superb Coats for Fall; and the line attests the fact—conclusively.

Materials? We have followed one rule—namely, to secure the BEST. Our garments are all made of SALT'S FUR FABRICS—rich as the fur they so closely resemble, soft and pliable as silk, and every coat selling above $10.00 lined with SKINNER'S SATIN—the satin lining of world-known durability.

We have planned our variety of models and our range of prices so that every requirement is met to your entire satisfaction. Beginning at $6.00, our prices range to $35.00; yet, whether $6.00 or $35.00, or any in-between price, you have the same wonder-value, with the "M-L" guarantee behind every garment.

From our own knowledge of our present line, we are sure of a supremely successful season. We have planned and stocked accordingly. Mr. Buyer, with great demands, we can take care of you. You need not speculate as to the size of your order or as to the re-orders which you are sure to have. We are already working twenty-four hours every day, employing three shifts, thus insuring unusually Quick, Dependable Deliveries. Our position in this matter is unique.

Mr. Coat Buyer, as we have said, at best mere words are futile. Come! We take this means of extending to you a very cordial invitation to our home at the address below. It will be a "trade-visit" you will number among the most profitable you have ever made.

Yours, for success,

No. 956—A "Sure Seller" is this very artistic creation—in Salt's Fur-Tex, lined with Skinner's Satin, with a stylish hint of the Russian officer's uniform, one of a number of very snappy military effects.

No. 971—This rich looking coat—made of Salt's Esquimette Plush and lined with Skinner's Satin—is further enhanced by the new loose "Chin" collar, seen on most of the imported models.

The Satin Lining in this garment is Skinner's Satin AND IS GUARANTEED TO WEAR TWO SEASONS MANUFACTURED BY William Skinner & Sons. "Look for the Name in the Selvage"

What the Male Can Sell, The Mail Can Sell.

A certain house in New York, representing a number of mills, for years sold broad silks to manufacturers of dresses, waists, etc. They were anxious to do business with department stores. The matter was put up to us last January. Here are the results: Opened 417 accounts, sold $37,000 worth of goods at a cost of $742, or less than 2½%.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks resumed their advance yesterday after the two days' reaction which followed the upset in several of the war stocks last Thursday, but the market was quieter and much more orderly than a week ago when excesses of speculation led to the later violent breaks in a few of the stocks and to reaction in the list as a whole. Traders had apparently recognized the danger of continuing unabated the upbidding tactics which exposed the market to the sort of violent reaction which occurred last week. On the other hand the display of strength yesterday, which was more pronouced in the afternoon than in the morning, showed clearly what is the prevailing drift of stock market sentiment.

Renewed strength in some of the railroad stocks was particularly welcome to the large element in the financial community which has disliked the undue prominence attained by some of the war stocks as a result of the feverish speculation in those issues. Those stocks have been the favorites of professional traders whose dealings have contributed not a little to the abnormally large totals recorded in those stocks. The rapidity of movement in them and the volume of the dealings have attracted the traders who have not been manifesting much interest in the railroads because they have furnished fewer opportunities for trading profits.

For some time, however, the market has given signs of a broadening of the interest in the railroad list. The ease with which these stocks rose on the rumor that an increase in freight rates would be granted to the Western roads indicated that relatively little stock was pressing for sale. The reappearence of strength in these issues again yesterday, although in many issues the gains were not very large, showed that more attention is being directed to this important department of the market. The fact that an increase in Western freight rates is still looked for, though last week's rumor that a decision granting an increase was on the eve of being handed down proved unfounded, has no doubt a good deal to do with the greater interest which is being taken in the fortunes of the railroads. Statements for June show in several directions changes for the better, and if the factors in favor of the railroads should be strengthened by the grant of higher freight rates to the Western roads further proof will have been given of the change in the attitude of public authority toward the railroads of the country. Sufficient proof of that change has already appeared to make it seem a reality but it is felt in the financial district that the railroads need still further practical expression of that more friendly attitude.

A grant of higher rates to the Western roads would be accepted not only as a help to them but as further proof of recognition on the part of the Government of the need of supporting the railroads as a whole, or, more strictly speaking, of allowing a margin of profit sufficient to fortify their credits. In the long run the public at large suffers through inadequate railroad dividends. The loss is by no means confined to the stockholders in the railroads. The truth of that seems now to be better understood among regulators than it was prior to the last appeal of the Eastern roads for higher rates.

FEWER FAILURES IN JULY.

Total Was 1,739, with Liabilities of $18,934,903.

Though some increase in the country's business mortality is usual during July, owing to the strain involved by the semi-annual settlements, commercial failures last month were slightly less numerous than in June and the aggregate liabilities were only moderately in excess of the total for that period. Thus, insolvencies, as reported to R. G. Dun & Co., numbered 1,739, and supplied an indebtedness of $18,934,903, against 1,754 in June for $18,313,118, and 1,707 for $21,043,212 in May, the low point of the year in number of defaults. Hence, with this exception, there were fewer suspensions than in any previous month and the decrease as compared with January was no less than 1,109, or almost 40 per cent. Considerable expansion is shown in comparison with July, 1914, when 1,411 firms failed, but the margin of increase is steadily narrowing and it is significant that the latest figures show a smaller debt than the $20,377,148 owed a year ago.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Keeping Stockholders Posted.

The Public Service Corporation of New Jersey has anticipated perhaps a development of the near future by deciding to make monthly financial reports. Heretofore the company has made such statements only once in each year, preceding the stockholders' annual meeting. The Directors voted recently to abandon this plan in favor of monthly statements. The first report issued in accordance with the new policy covers the first six months of the year. Subsequent statements will cover monthly operations as well as giving figures for the portion of the year up to the date of the report.

Even with the unsettled conditions that have obtained in the last six months, the Public Service Corporation shows a gain in gross earnings over the first half of 1914 amounting to $631,836, or 3.6 per cent., in its first monthly report. The balance available after the payment of operating expenses, fixed charges and sinking fund requirements for an amortization, dividends and surplus, amounted to $1,507,441, which means that the increase in surplus available for dividends over the corresponding period of 1914 was $149,595.

Losing at Both Ends.

The annual report of the Southern Railway, when it appears, will show that the loss in net operating revenues was due in no small measure to the determination of the management to spend an adequate sum for maintenance, even if gross earnings did not come up to expectations. It takes courage to continue a program calling for heavy expenditures when the monthly revenues are steadily falling behind, but the Southern pursued the policy apparently that would have been followed had the last year brought a normal increase in traffic.

During the year ended June 30 the Southern Railway spent for improvements to its roadway and structures $8,970,000, as against $2,970,000 for the previous year, an increase of $6,000,000, notwithstanding the fact that in the same period the operating revenue showed a decrease of $8,551,000, or 12 per cent. The operating income decreased $2,910,000, or nearly 18 per cent. In June alone gross earnings decreased 9.34 per cent., while the net earnings, owing to the more liberal appropriations for improvements and to other increases in operating expenses, decreased more than 47 per cent.

A Hopeful Railroad Man.

W. J. Harahan, long with the Erie, but now President of the Seaboard Air Line, said yesterday that he had been gratified by the enthusiasm and co-operative spirit shown by the men under him.

"I am much pleased with the crop outlook throughout our territory," said Mr. Harahan. "All of the crops generally are in fine condition. Indications point to a material increase in the gross earnings of the Seaboard for the current fiscal year."

In Retrospect.

In its August letter the National Bank of the Republic of Chicago credits the business in war goods with the recovery made by the United States from the depression wrought by the European war.

"Just a year ago this country was facing what seemed to be the greatest calamity in its history," says the bank. "Strangely enough, although the business of this country suffered greater tangible damage from the war than that of almost any other neutral nation, to that very same cause can be ascribed the influences which made the recovery from that depression possible. There is no denying the fact that the tremendous war demand for our goods, which began to make itself felt during the latter months of 1914, has been the backbone of the general advance in business activity since the low point of last Fall. Conservative estimates have it that a total of $1,500,000,000 of goods has been contracted for in this country by the belligerents in the last twelve months. It is more than likely that the actual figures would far exceed this estimate, since it is urged that greater secrecy has attended the placing of later orders, due to the agitation concerning the propriety of accepting such business."

The All-Important Crops.

Reports from the Middle West say that crops have progressed in a fairly satisfactory manner, notwithstanding an excess of rains in the last two months. The winter wheat output is now estimated at 668,000,000 bushels. Weather conditions have been fairly favorable for Spring wheat, which is said to be doing exceptionally well. Expectations are for a final harvest of nearly 300,000,000 bushels. The total crop of wheat for 1915 is placed by the Department of Agriculture at 963,000,000 bushels. All told, the crop prospects are favorable, with another bumper yield of corn promised and a good cotton crop in sight.

Vacation Money.

There was at least one man in the financial district yesterday who gave no thought to the oppressive heat. Wearing a silk pongee coat, with a big cigar in his mouth, he walked around with a smile that nothing could drive away. He was a broker who had finally closed out a speculative account in Bethlehem with a profit of $40,000, and he was surveying the scene of his triumph for the last time before departing on a vacation.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

At the Sub-Treasury on Saturday $1,750,000 was received and yesterday $210,000 in gold bars from Canada.

Albert A. Tilney, retiring member of Harvey Fisk & Co., has taken a place as assistant to the President of the Bankers' Trust Company.

Frank C. Wadsworth has been admitted as a partner to the firm of William S. Muller & Co., dealers in unlisted securities.

Frederick T. Martin, cashier of the Corn Exchange Bank, has been promoted to be a Vice President, and Edward S. Malmar, who has been assistant cashier, will become cashier.

The plan of reorganization for the Cincinnati, Indianapolis & Western Railway has been declared operative, a larger amount than is required by the bondholders' agreement of each class of bonds having assented to the terms. Holders of certificates of deposit for the first and refunding 4 per cent. bonds and other securities must pay to the Equitable Trust Company by Sept. 1 $300 for each bond deposited.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

It early became evident on the Consolidated Stock Exchange that the movement in the "war stocks" was proceeding under more orderly auspices than of late. It appeared that a portion of the market interest was turning toward the railroads and the coppers. The copper group became prominent at advancing prices. Helping to stimulate it were reports that very heavy inquiries for the metal were reaching the producing interests. The railroad shares generally reflected firmness from the opening.

COTTON CROP LESS BY ABOUT A FOURTH

CONDITION BELOW AVERAGE

It Was 75.3 of a Normal on July 25, Government Reports, Against a Ten-Year Mean of 78.5.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—This year's cotton crop will be approximately 11,970,037 equivalent 500-pound bales, compared with 16,134,930 last year, a decrease of 4,164,893 bales. That estimate, unofficially calculated, is based on the Government's condition report, issued today, and official figures of acreage and normal yield. Whether the crop will be greater or less depends upon growing conditions from now until picking time.

The condition of the growing cotton crop on July 25 was 75.3 per cent. of a normal, the Department of Agriculture's Crop Reporting Board announced at noon in its third condition report of the season. That condition compares with 80.3 per cent. on June 25 this year, 76.4 per cent. on July 25 last year, 79.6 per cent. in 1913, and 78.5 per cent., the average condition on July 25 for the last ten years.

The area planted to cotton and under cultivation on June 25 this year, as previously reported, was 31,535,000 acres, a decrease of 5,871,000 acres, or 15.7 per cent., from that under cultivation on June 25 last year. A condition of 100 per cent. of a normal on July 25 would be equivalent to a yield of 241.3 pounds of cotton to the acre, the Bureau of Crop Estimates has announced.

Weather conditions generally have been favorable to the crop throughout the month except in Texas, where for a time there was a lack of rain. Georgia's first bale was marketed July 22.

Comparisons of conditions, by States, follow:

The next report will show the condition of cotton on Aug. 25, and will be issued on Aug. 31.

PRICES OFF DESPITE REPORT.

The Agricultural Department furnished the cotton market with something of a surprise yesterday when it issued a report making the condition of the crop up to July 25 75.3. This showed a deterioration of five points for the month, and was about three points lower than was expected.

Liverpool was closed again yesterday, it being a bank holiday in England, and without any cables it was a dull and sagging market until the report was received at noon. Just before the announcement of the figures October was selling at 9.17, and the first sale of October after the report was at 9.33. During the early afternoon the market held steady, and even worked up a few points higher than the first prices quoted upon the reception of the Government figures.

Later in the afternoon there was free selling and an easier tendency, closing prices being two to three points lower than those of Saturday. The failure of the market to do any better upon the report was because of the fact that many well-posted cotton men hold to the opinion that the crop is not in as poor a condition as shown by the department's figures. It must also be remembered that there is still a great deal of old cotton in the South and that cotton is being offered to the Northern mills on the lowest basis, as compared with New York prices, that has been known for many years. There seems to be little chance of any advance in prices until there is a better demand for spot cotton. At this time exporters are showing little or no interest in the market.

The market was steady at the close, but made such a poor response to the Government figures that it is very probable that Liverpool will open lower this morning than it closed last Friday.

LEHIGH VALLEY'S REPORT.

Passenger Business Declined, but Revenue Exceeded 1914.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad Company reports gross operating income of $42,525,962 in the year ended June 30, a gain of $335,315 over the preceding fiscal period. Operating expenses were reduced to the extent of $140,517, and the net operating revenue of $12,578,574 was $495,032 greater than in 1914.

In drawing comparisons, the company's annual report calls attention to the fact that $685,000 received in 1914 in dividends from the Temple Iron was not available in the past year. Income from equipment rented to other roads, which amounted to $325,000 in 1914, was wiped out by the depression which followed the war, and the company furthermore reported a debit balance of nearly $70,000 for this department.

Passenger business suffered a decline, owing largely to the falling off of immigrant traffic from the seaboard to the Pennsylvania coal fields. Earnings from this department amounted to $4,043,799, a decrease of $751,348. Fewer persons by 522,000 were carried than in the preceding year. In the handling of merchandise the railroad earned $463,605 more than a year before, and $667,509 more in the transportation of coal and coke.

The company paid 10 per cent. in dividends on both the preferred and common stock in the year. Before dividends were paid net revenue from all sources amounted to $6,322,444, a decline of $734,214. A balance of $262,000 was carried to the surplus account, bringing the company's total surplus up to $23,692,716 at the end of the year.

The annual report of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company shows net earnings of $1,022,814, an increase of $457,955 over 1914. Production amounted to 8,088,901 tons of anthracite, a gain of 211,511 tons, and 258,205 tons of bituminous, an increase over the preceding year of 5,474 tons.

MORRIS & ESSEX DIRECTORS

New Members Did Not Expect Fees —Knew Lease Provided None.

In reference to a story printed recently under the caption "Lackawanna Makes a Cut in Expenses," Henry V. Poor, one of the Directors of the Morris & Essex, recently elected to represent the stockholders of this road, which is leased to the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, has sent THE TIMES this letter:

In this morning's TIMES there is an article entitled "Lackawanna Makes a Cut in Expenses—Abolishes $20 Director Fees of Morris & Essex Board That Charged Extravagance."

This article sets forth a conversation purporting to have taken place at the meeting of the Board of Directors of the Morris & Essex Railroad Company on July 6, 1915, in regard to Directors' fees.

I was present at that meeting, and beg to advise you that your report of what took place there is untrue. Neither Mr. Loomis nor any other official of the Lackawanna was present at the meeting, and no conversation such as that printed by you occurred.

It has been known to the Stockholders' Committee and its counsel since the inception of the movement for the election of independent Directors of the Morris & Essex that the lease of the property to the Lackawanna contained no provision for the payment of any money for the maintenance of a separate corporate organization of the Morris & Essex.

The new Directors of the Morris & Essex knew this fact at the time of their election, and none of them expected to receive fees for their attendance at Directors' meetings or accepted the office with that object in view.

HENRY V. POOR.

New York, July 23.

The incident referred to was related by a member of the Lackawanna group as an amusing episode of the passage of control of the Morris & Essex Company from the Lackawanna to the stockholders of that company, and was published without any intention that it should suggest to any one that the Directors chosen to represent the stockholders had accepted places on the board for the sake of the fees usually paid to Directors. As Mr. Poor makes plain, the newly elected Directors knew from the beginning that no fees would be received, for the lease to the Lackawanna made no provision for corporate expenses of the Morris & Essex Company.

It was explained yesterday that the conversation referred to took place in substance at the stockholders' meeting instead of at the Directors' meeting. It was, of course, informal, and was regarded as a pleasantry.

Maine Central Regains Surplus.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 2.—In the face of a decrease of $483,566 in operating revenues the Maine Central Railroad in the last year transformed an income balance deficit of $143,700 into a surplus of $20,384, according to the company's annual report made public today. Operating expenses were reduced $541,642.

The United States Government, in compliance with Judge William H. Hunt's orders made in April and June, filed in the Federal District Court yesterday the bill of particulars asked for by the officers and directors and counsel of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad to enable them to answer the Sherman law indictment charging them with engaging in a conspiracy to monopolize interstate trade and commerce between the New England and other States. The officers, directors and counsel named are William Rockefeller, George MacCullough Miller, Charles F. Brooker, D. Newton Barney, Robert W. Taft, James S. Hemingway, Lewis Cass Ledyard, Charles M. Pratt, A. Heaton Robertson, Frederick F. Brewster, Henry K. McHarg, Alexander Cochrane and Edward D. Robbins.

The Government alleges that in each of the matters specified in the 188 paragraphs of the bill of particulars it was with the purpose and intent of aiding, abetting and carrying out the conspiracy that the defendants adopted the plans and became responsible for them.

The bill of particulars, after explaining in detail the acquisition of the various railroads, electric, traction and steamboat lines, states that it was the purpose of the alleged conspirators in making the combination to control each of the common carriers absorbed and to induce and compel them to engage in the combination.

As an instance of improper action, the bill charges the New Haven and the Providence, Fall River & Newport Steamship Company, by agreement, refused to lease the commercial wharf at Newport to the Joy Steamship Company, also that the New Haven's subsidiary would not ship freight by the Joy line, and that it increased the number of its sailings from Boston and made its freight rate 2 cents per 100 pounds so as to injure the Joy line; that by an agreement dated July 24, 1901, between the defendant Rockefeller, the Standard Oil Company, H. M. Flagler and the Florida East Coast Railroad Company, it was decided that the latter railroad company should not renew its charters for the steamships Cocoa and Martinique of the Joy Steamship Company, and that by an agreement entered into on July 18, 1902, between the New Haven and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, it was decided that the latter company should prevent the Joy Steamship Company and the Philadelphia and New York Transportation Company from running their vessels through the Delaware and Raritan canal.

The bill alleges that each of the defendants aided, abetted and gave encouragement to other directors of the company, the officers and employes in maintaining combinations in restraint of interstate trade and commerce, and that each of the defendants agreed with his co-conspirators to control the operations and actions of the New Haven.

> That no officer of the New Haven make any address or response to toast or otherwise that shall in any way refer to the business of the company, its policies or prospects unless the same shall have been first submitted to and approved by the Executive Committee. That no officer give any information regarding the business of the company, its policies, or prospects, except through the authorized publicity department of the company provided for such purposes, direct interviews between officials of the company and representatives of the press being prohibited.

The bill gives an account of the involved deal by which the competition of the Metropolitan Steamship Company was controlled and its vessels, the Yale and the Harvard sent to the Pacific. A note for $1,900,000 given in 1913 is supposed to have figured in the deal.

The bill alleges that Lewis Cass Ledyard for three years before the return of the indictment "took steps to prevent the ascertainment of the facts concerning the activities and actions of the conspirators in carrying out the conspiracy and made statements intending to and having such effect and having the effect of concealing the purposes of the conspirators and preventing action to enjoin the illegal acts or to punish the offenders, and that the other defendants knew of these activities of Ledyard and acquiesced in and approved of them."

It is also charged that Mr. Ledyard procured Charles S. Mellen to write a letter on Dec. 2, 1912, to the United States District Attorney, Henry A. Wise, which was designed and intended to conceal the relationship of themselves and other conspirators and their acts.

The bill also states that Mr. Robbins before the return of the Sherman law indictment, co-operating with other conspirators and in furtherance of the conspiracy aided in procuring the removal to the Dominion of Canada of the assets, books, papers and records of the Billard Company and of the papers regarding the formation of the St. Lawrence Securities Company, Limited.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

The wheat trade is apparently not disposed to press the selling side of the market as long as there is a possibility of damage to the Spring wheat crop or until there is more accumulation of supplies, and during yesterday's session the market was generally firm, closing at the highest point of the day, with net gains of 1¾@2 cents. The visible supply in the United States increased 1,249,000 bushels, compared with an increase of 5,559,000 last year. In the local cash market No. 2 red Winter wheat was quoted at 1.14, and No. 2 hard at 1.20, cost, insurance, and freight, New York; No. 1 Northern Duluth, 1.11⅜, cost, insurance, and freight, Buffalo.

CORN.

The corn market was moderately active and prices were steadier, closing with net gains of ½@¾c. The visible supply decreased 449,000 bushels, compared with a decrease of 321,000 last year. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at 90½c, prompt shipment, and Argentine corn was offered at 78c, cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

OATS.

Oats were firmer on the unsettled weather and continued light offerings from the country, closing at ½@⅝c net advance. The visible supply decreased 724,000 bushels, compared with an increase of 1,029 last year. The local cash market was steady; standard quoted at 64½c; No. 2 white, 65c; No. 3 white, 64c; No. 4 white, 63½c; fancy clipped white, 67@68c; ordinary clipped white, 65½@66½c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

Trading in the market for hog products was inactive and price changes were narrow, although the undertone was a little firmer on covering, prompted by reports of some improvement in the cash demand and in sympathy with grain. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 30,000; estimated for Tuesday, 16,000; Kansas City received 3,500 and Omaha, 3,300.

SUGAR.

It was a dull day in sugar futures, with the opening 2 to 7 points lower and no sales on the call. Operators took a waiting attitude, and no business was done, the market closing 2 to 5 points net lower. The local market for refined sugar was unchanged, and while there were moderate withdrawals on old contract, new business was light and unimportant. Fine granulated is now listed on the basis of 5.76 to 5.80. The range of prices follows:

COTTONSEED OIL.

A firmer tone to the lard market and the Government report on cotton, which received a bullish construction, caused an active covering movement in the cottonseed oil market and prices during the day developed firmness, closing at 9 to 18 points net advance.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 11,335 packages. Posted receipts are heavy, local trading is very quiet, and there is very little out-of-town inquiry. The market has a weaker tone, though in the absence of important business prompt selling values are rather uncertain. Some little export inquiry for creamery and a few sales have been made for prompt shipment around 23@24c. Creamery, extras, (92 score,) 26c; higher scoring, 26½@27c; firsts, 24@25½c; seconds, 22@23½c; thirds, 21@21½c; State dairy, finest, 25½c; good to prime, 23½@25c; common to fair, 20@23c; renovated, extras, 23½@24c; firsts, 22@23c; lower grades, 20@21c; imitation creamery, firsts, 22@22½c; ladles, current make, firsts, 20½@21c; seconds, 19½c; lower grades, 18@19c; packing stock, June make, finest, 20c; current make, No. 2, 19c; lower grades, 17@18½c.

EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 15,456 cases. The market is in a very unsatisfactory condition. Receipts are liberal, trade dull and selective, and liberal accumulations are pressing for sale. Really fancy goods are steady, there being few such. Average prime and lower qualities urgently offered and values uncertain and irregular. Fanciest near-by whites in light supply and firmer; ordinary qualities without material change. Fresh gathered, extras, per dozen, 23@25c; extra firsts, 21@22½c; firsts, 18½@20c; seconds, 16@18c; thirds and poorer, 14@15½c; dirties, No. 1, 15@15½c; No. 2 and poorer, 10@14½c; checks, choice, dry, 14@14½c; fair to good, 13@13½c; culls and inferior, 8@12½c; State, Pennsylvania, and near by, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 28@30c; ordinary to good, 25@27c; gathered whites, as to size and quality, 22@28c; Western, gathered whites, 22@25c; State, Pennsylvania, and near by, hennery browns, 24@26c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 18@22½c; duck eggs, State and near by, Indian Runner, 24@26c.

ASSIGNEE SALES.

AT A SPECIAL TERM, PART II., OF THE Supreme Court, held in and for the County of New York, at the Court House thereof, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 31st day of July 1915.—Present: HON. LEONARD A. GIEGERICH, Justice.—In the matter of the general assignment of the BREMNER TALKING MACHINE COMPANY to MARIE A. O'CONNELL, for the benefit of creditors.

Upon the petition of Marie A. O'Connell, verified July 28th, 1915, and the affidavit of Frederick W. Park, verified July 31st, 1915, and upon all proceedings heretofore had herein. Now on motion of Frederick W. Park, attorney for the assignee, it is Ordered that all the parties interested in the estate as creditors or otherwise show cause before a Justice of the Supreme Court, at a Special Term, Part I., thereof, to be held in the County of New York on the 13th day of August, 1915, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, why the prayer of the petitioning assignee herein should not be granted and the sale of the assets enumerated in the catalogue attached to said petition, notice of which is hereinafter directed to be given should not be had on the 17th day of August, 1915, and why said other, further and different relief should not be granted as to the Court may seem fit, and it is further

Ordered that the notice prescribed by the Debtor and Creditor Law and Court Rules that Marie A. O'Connell, assignee, will sell at public auction through J. H. Mayers, auctioneer, the assets of the above named assignor, consisting of Victor records, instruments and musical supplies, office furniture, fixtures, etc., on Tuesday, August 17th, 1915, at No. 187 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, at 10:30 o'clock A. M., unless otherwise ordered by the Court upon the return of this order to show cause herein, and it is further Ordered that this order, which includes notices of such sale, be published in The New York Law Journal and The New York Times on the 3d day of August, 1915, and copies thereof sent by mail as provided by Section 12 of the Debtor and Creditor Law.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD.

Fifth Avenue Lease Near Forty-second Street—Thomas Street Loft in Bronx Trade—$314,175 for Belle Harbor Lots —Edgemere Sale Closed with $219,674.

An important business lease in Fifth Avenue, close to Forty-second Street; another lease of an entire building in Sixth Avenue, between Thirtieth and Thirty-first Streets; two or three good Bronx deals, and the successful conclusion of the Belle Harbor auction by Joseph P. Day furnished the chief elements of interest in the realty market yesterday.

The Fifth Avenue lease involved the northerly store in the Bristol Building, on the northwest corner of Forty-second Street, to the Gotham Silk Hosiery Company of 27 West Thirty-fourth Street. The firm has taken the Fifth Avenue store for a term of years at an annual rental of about $12,000. The Thirty-fourth Street store will also be maintained. The lease was made for Walter J. Salomon, who holds the building under a long lease, through the brokerage firm of Rice & Hill.

Thomas Street Loft in Bronx Trade.

A Bronx deal of a new apartment house, involving a downtown business building, was closed by the Eberhardt Realty Company, Charles A. Eberhardt, President, which sold to an investor the five-story structure at 969 Aldus Street, southwest corner of Hoe Avenue, 50 by 100 feet. The new owner gave in part payment the six-story loft at 60 Thomas Street, on lot 25 by 100 feet, between Church Street and West Broadway, and directly opposite the Claflin stores. Title to the property is held by Frank L. Froment.

Harlem-Bronx Deal.

The five-story flat at 232 West 120th Street, near St. Nicholas Avenue, on plot 25 by 100 feet, has been sold for David Nevins by the F. R. Wood-W. H. Dolson Company and Clement H. Smith. The buyer gave Bronx property in part payment, being a plot 43 by 100 feet on the west side of Bathgate Avenue, 175 feet south of Tremont Avenue.

Bronx Sales.

Alexander Selkin and David Mintz have sold for the Mack Construction Company, 646 Fox Street, a five-story apartment, on plot 40 by 100. The buyer, Sophie V. Chalmers, gave in part payment the plot on the south side of 169th Street, 143 feet west of Fox Street, 60 by 72 and irregular, and also a plot on the west side of Kelly Street 87 feet north of 167th Street, 27 by 70 and irregular. The deal aggregated about $60,000.

The plot 84.7 by 94.8 and irregular on the southeast corner of Davidson Avenue and 181st Street has been sold by John J. Bell to the Atia Realty Company. Mr. Bell acquired the property at foreclosure sale last April.

The four-story flat at 2,478 Tiebout Avenue, on plot 31 by 100, has been sold to an investor by J. Felsing.

The five-story apartment, 58 by 115, on the west side of University Avenue, 225 feet south of Boscobel Place, reported sold last week by the Avoca Realty Company, was sold by the Boyne Bridge Realty Company, Henry Rhoers, President. The contract was closed about a month ago.

Buyer of 150th Street Plot.

The 114th Street and Seventh Avenue Construction Company, of which Max Weinstein is President, is the buyer from the Surety Realty Company of the plot, 150 by 99.11, on the north side of 150th Street, 150 feet west of Broadway. The property will be improved with a six-story apartment house. The selling company, which is composed of Benjamin Mordecai, Samuel H. Stone, and Heilner & Wolf, will furnish a building loan of $120,000.

$314,175 for Belle Harbor Lots.

The two days' auction session of Belle Harbor lots on the Rockaway Peninsula was closed yesterday afternoon by Joseph P. Day on the premises. When the sale began there were about 200 lots remaining to be sold, and so lively was the bidding that in the first hour 100 were disposed of, which Mr. Day states is a record for the sale of building plots at public auction. In two hours all were sold, averaging about $567, which was slightly higher than the average of $430 on Saturday.

For the entire batch of 679 lots a total of $314,175 was obtained, the average being about $463. The prices for many of the choice lots were regarded as low, and Mr. Day congratulated the buyers for the bargains which many have evidently obtained. The largest buyer at the sale was William Sherr, whose purchases totaled $24,710. Other large buyers were ex-State Controller William Sohmer, Commodore J. W. Masters of the Belle Harbor Yacht Club, Alderman Eichorn, E. H. Fickiner, and Alfred E. Jennings.

On Saturday Robert M. Murphy, formerly proprietor of the Rudolf Hotel at Atlantic City, purchased sixteen lots on Ocean (Newport) Avenue, with riparian rights, for $15,440, paying $1,100 each for ocean front lots and $740 each for street lots. Mr. Murphy, it was said, plans to build a concrete hotel and bathing pavilion.

The range of prices extended from $125 for lots under water along Beach Channel Drive to $725, including corners, and the ocean front lots sold from $800 to $1,100 each, also including corners.

$219,674 for Edgemere Lots.

The Edgemere auction sale conducted by the M. Morgenthau, Jr., Company, with Fitzjames E. Browne as auctioneer, was closed Saturday night. A total of 376 lots and five houses were sold during five sessions for $219,674, averaging about $502 a lot. The owning company withdrew twenty-four lots and five houses, for which offers at private sale were received.

The company will be in a position to liquidate as soon as the titles have been closed, at which time the mortgages and installment contracts will be apportioned among the stockholders of the Edgemere Crest Company or sold for their account.

The sale was regarded as very successful for the buyers. The level of prices was low even for these times, and this was reflected in the resale of a number of contracts.

In speaking of the sale M. Morgenthau, Jr., said:

"We are delighted at the response we have received at this, our first big New York City lot sale. It was natural to expect that 400 lots and seven houses could not be found at sale in the present market without causing a low level of prices—the surprise to us was that buyers were so very discriminating; in other words, the best property brought the best prices. Of course, there were a few cases where choice plots were sold for a mere song. In one case a buyer sold his contract in the auction tent for a cash profit of $200."

Sixth Avenue Store Lease.

The Sixth Avenue store lease was made through Tannenbaum, Strauss & Co., who rented for a long term the four-story building at 508 Sixth Avenue, between Thirty and Thirty-first Streets, adjoining the new Bijou Building now under construction. The new tenant is the First American Natural Fern Company, manufacturers and importers of artificial flowers and plants. The same brokers a short time ago leased the store, basement, and first floor of the Bijou Building, which runs through from Broadway to Sixth Avenue, to the New York Millinery Supply Company.

Commercial Leases.

The Charles F. Noyes Company has leased a portion of the ninth floor of the Hilliard Building at 55 John Street to the London Guarantee and Accident Company, which occupies the tenth floor of the same building.

Lewis L. Rosenthal in conjunction with Morris Rose has leased for the Robard Realty Company the store at 956 Broadway, adjoining the corner of Twenty-third Street, to the B. & L. Novelty Company.

M. & L. Hess, Incorporated, have leased to the Lion Waist Company, in addition to the space they now occupy, the eighth loft at 16 and 18 West Twenty-second Street, running through to 15 and 17 West Twenty-first Street.

Private Dwelling Leases.

Pease & Elliman have leased for Mrs. L. A. Paddock to the Misses Delia G. White and Mary G. Lamb the four-story house at 147 West Seventy-second Street.

Rice & Hill have leased to Mrs. Pauline Elliott-Thacker the house at 53 West Fifty-fourth Street.

The F. R. Wood, W. H. Dolson Company have leased 61 West Eighty-third Street, a four-story dwelling, to John Everhard.

Shaw & Co. have leased for Carl Fisher the four-story dwelling at 202 Lenox Avenue to Lena Weinstein and Rose Sapiro.

Pepe & Brother have leased for Justice Wauhope Lynn the three-story house at 14 St. Luke's Place to Ludowig Sabbatino.

Brooklyn.

The three-story dwelling at 143 Hancock Street, near Nostrand Avenue, has been sold by Mrs. S. S. Whitehouse to H. B. Haverstock for occupancy. John E. Henry, Jr., was the broker, and he has also sold for the Arnold estate the three-story house at 1,142 Dean Street, near Bedford Avenue, to Dr. E. R. Bedford.

The Mathews Building Company has sold the apartment houses at 337 Twelfth Avenue to Mrs. Susie Hency for $11,500 and 389 Eleventh Avenue to Frank Bartel for $8,500.

Buys Estate Near Piping Rock Club.

Cocks & Willets in conjunction with Joseph P. Day have sold to Henry Sanderson, President of C. D. Barney & Co., bankers, the Walter T. Rosen estate at Mill Neck, L. I., near the Piping Rock Club.

Westchester County.

A plot at Tanglewylde and Summit Avenues, Lawrence Park, Bronxville, has been sold by Fish & Marvin for the Lawrence Park Realty Company to George Percy for improvement with a residence.

Newark Houses in Trade.

Louis Schlesinger has sold for Duncan MacKinnon, the two two-family houses at 163 and 167 Woodside Avenue, Newark, each on lot 28 by 125. The purchaser of 163 was Mrs. Alice B. Welshman, who gave in payment the dwelling at 205 Mount Prospect Avenue, which will be altered for business. The dwelling at 167 was purchased by Lena and Catherine Keller, who gave in payment the frame dwelling at 123 North Sixteenth Street.

Staten Island Sale.

Realty Notes.

The Surrogate's Court has appointed the Wagner Realty Company, Bernard Wagner, President, agent for the Trustees of the estate of Henry Pasinsky involving thirteen buildings in different parts of the east side.

William A. Faiella, architect, is preparing plans for a five-story apartment on the west side of Grant Avenue 109.42 feet north of 165th Street, 100 by 100. The Arthur Avenue Realty and Construction Company is the owner. The cost is placed at $100,000.

REAL ESTATE AT AUCTION.

—Special Announcement—

At the request of several buyers at our Edgemere auction, who bought at our advice "for a turn" and wish their property handled by our "live wire" methods, we have opened an office right on the property at Edgemere.

Those who were timid or unable to attend the sale will still be able to pick up some choice bargains. Building and permanent loans can be arranged for builders and home seekers. This property was sold at ridiculously low prices. You can afford to pay a reasonable profit AND STILL MAKE BIG MONEY.

United States.

The commission announces for Aug. 17 a competitive examination for senior land appraiser, for men only, to fill vacancies as they may occur in the Interstate Commerce Commission, under the act of March 1, 1913, providing for the valuation of the property of common carriers. As a result of this examination two grades of eligibles will be established, the salaries in the first grade ranging from $2,700 to $3,600 per annum, with a reasonable allowance for expenses when absent from headquarters in the discharge of official duties; and in the second grade from $1,800 to $2,400 per annum and such expenses. Entrance salaries are usually fixed at the minimum amount provided for each grade. Appointments to these positions will be principally for duty in the field, but some appointments will be made for duty in the headquarters offices of the several valuation districts. It should be understood, however, that applicants will be subject to assignment wherever the exigencies of the service may require. Competitors will not be assembled for examination, but will be rated upon the evidence adduced as to their general and technical education and training and their practical experience and fitness. For positions under Grade 1 applicants must have reached their thirtieth, but not their sixty-fifth, birthday on the date of the examination, under the conditions that each applicant over 60 years of age shall furnish a medical certificate provided in application Form 1312, and that any applicant, though otherwise eligible, who may be found to be physically disqualified will be rejected; for Grade 2 they must have reached their twenty-fifth, but not their forty-fifth, birthday on the date of the examination. Further information may be obtained from the commission, Washington, D. C.

FUNERAL OF BECKER MARKED BY TURMOIL

Morbid Crowds Struggle to See Coffin at Home and Church and in Cemetery.

NEITHER SERMON NOR MUSIC

"Sacrificed for Politics" and "To Martyr," in Flowers, Barred—Police as Pallbearers.

The curtain fell on the Becker tragedy yesterday with the interment of the ex-Police Lieutenant's body in Woodlawn Cemetery. At the door of the Becker apartment house at 2,291 University Avenue, the Bronx, a crowd of 3,000 swarmed and fought for places whence the coffin might be seen for half an hour before it was taken down the steps.

Meanwhile another mob was fighting to get into the little Church of St. Nicholas of Tolentine around the corner, and the church was packed with persons who bore Mrs. Becker's heavily bordered mourning cards. Among these were many members of the police force in citizens' clothes.

When the body of the man who was put to death last Friday in the electric chair for the murder of Herman Rosenthal reached the church, there was nearly a riot outside and at the doorway as the morbidly curious crushed forward to catch a glimpse of the coffin and the name plate it bore. But the plate announcing that Charles Becker had been "murdered by Governor Whitman" had been removed twelve hours before by Police Inspector Faurot, and in its place was a simple silver plate bearing Becker's name, the date of his birth, and the date of his death.

The pall bearers were five members of the Police Department—Lieutenant James Brady, Captain John Bourke, Lieutenant Patrick Shea, and Patrolmen John O'Connor and William Ferrick—and a former patrolman, Joseph Shepard. In carriages in the funeral procession, besides the relatives, were ex-Police Inspector A. S. Williams, ex-Police Captain Dennis Brennan, and Alderman Peter Sheikert.

Police Reserves Summoned.

When the body was carried into the church, the crowd outside the church grew so unruly that the few uniformed patrolmen on duty sent a call to the High Bridge Station for reserves to assist them. It was intensely hot, and one aged woman fainted in the crush at the door of the packed church. That a passage to the door might be kept open for members of the family, a mounted policeman rode up on the pavement directly to the steps of the church, and thence back and forth along the path he had formed until the crowd had withdrawn a few feet.

The plate that was removed from the coffin on the ground that it libeled Governor Whitman was gone, but the spirit from which the incident grew remained. A wagon containing floral tributes was driven up to the church to await the procession to the cemetery, and the most noticeable design in it was a large cross of lilies, asters, and bay leaves. Across this, in large purple letters, was this inscription:

"Sacrificed for Politics."

To the cross was attached an envelope on which was written, "From a Friend." There was no card in the envelope at this time. Another floral design bore the words:

"To the Martyr; with sincere sympathy."

The card attached to this bore the names of Dr. Lipsit, the family physician; Dr. Alofsis, a friend, and Miss Flauser.

The names of ex-Inspector Williams and his wife were appended to another design on which were the words, "In sympathy and respect to Charley."

Floral Tributes Censored.

The first two of these floral tributes, however, met the same fate as the libelous silver plate. When they reached the gates of Woodlawn Cemetery some time later, at the head of the funeral cortège, the procession was held up while an agent of the cemetery corporation inspected the floral designs. The undertaker was ordered to pluck enough of the letters from the designs to make them meaningless. The letters "S—F—O" were the only ones of "Sacrificed for Politics" that remained when the procession resumed its way to the grave, flanked on either side by large crowds on foot.

The services at the church lasted only twenty-five minutes, and consisted of low mass, celebrated by one of the young assistant priests of the church, Father George Dermody. He intoned the mass in a low voice which could not be heard distinctly beyond the middle of the church. No special references to Becker's life or the manner of his death were made, as there was no sermon. There was no music, either.

Just as the service began a large man in citizen's clothes who was standing near one of the windows, for the aisles were packed as well as the pews, saw an older man in citizen's clothes entering the church, and, uttering a short, low whistle, vaulted out of the window to the ground, a few feet below.

"They even grab you in church," laughed a stout man to whom the one that vanished had been speaking.

The stout man explained to a bystander that the man who took his hasty exit by way of the window was a policeman who had got excused for "sickness," and that the man entering the church was his superior officer. During the service scuffling, occasional shouts, and laughter could be heard outside among the crowd that waited there.

Crowd Follows Hearse.

Attendants at the cemetery gate made an effort to keep moving-picture men and photographers out of the cemetery during the funeral, and even declined information to persons without photographic apparatus as to the location of the spot in which the body was to be buried. The hearse, which was drawn by two black horses and followed by five carriages, in the first of which were Mrs. Becker and her brother, arrived soon after 11 o'clock, accompanied by men, women, and children on foot. These hurried to keep up with the procession on the way to the grave, making short cuts across the grass to save time, and children had to run to keep up.

At the grave a canvas shelter had been erected for Mrs. Becker and the other members of the family, but it was with difficulty that they forced their way through the thickly packed crowd to their seats. The crowd trampled on all of the graves in the immediate vicinity in seeking places from which a view of the proceedings could be had, and the vantage points of nearby tombstones were contended for in lively fashion. Upon these persons stood or sat, able to see over the heads of the rest of the spectators. Curiosity seemed to be the principal reason for the presence of the crowd, for few of the persons in it knew Mrs. Becker, and others kept asking their neighbors to point her out.

After the burial Mrs. Becker returned to her apartment. She was quoted a few days ago as saying that there were some statements she wanted to make as soon as her husband's body had been buried, but when seen in the afternoon she said she had no comment to make.

TO HEAR WIRELESS SUIT.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 2.—The war in Europe is not to affect litigation involving ownership of the wireless station at Tuckerton. The Court of Chancery of this State will hear the suit brought by corporations of France to compel corporations of Germany to comply with an alleged contract entered into for the sale of the wireless station, an opinion to this effect having been filed in the court by Vice Chancellor Stevens. He holds that if a suit could be heard in time of peace there is no reason why it should not be in time of war.

The German company has filed an application that no action be taken by the court because of the existing circumstances; that Germany is at war with France, and that to enforce the contract at this time would cut off the only means of communication between Germany and the United States.

The bill for specific performance was filed by the Compagnie Universelle de Telegraphie et de Telephonie Sans Fil against the United States Service Corporation and the Hoch Frequenz-Malhininen Aktiengesellschaft fur Drahtlose Telegraphe of Berlin, Germany.

The contract between the French and German corporations was entered into on Sept. 30, 1912. It provided that certain patents of invention for the production of high frequency currents especially intended for wireless telegraphy should be transferred to the French corporation and also the Tuckerton station. The consideration was to be 2,500,000 francs and 50,000 founder's shares of stock in the French company.

It is the claim of the French concern that the time has come to carry out this contract, and that because of the present war the German company refuses to fulfill the agreement.

The present controversy concerns land title in New Jersey and is a subject over which New Jersey courts have exclusive control, says the Vice Chancellor.

NO TRACE OF CORNELIUS.

Special to The New York Times.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., Aug. 2.—No tidings have been received of either Abraham Cornelius, Jr., for nineteen years teller and cashier of the Citizens National Bank in Englewood, or Miss Loretta N. Adelgais of Rochelle Park, who for five years was his stenographer and secretary, who disappeared on last Wednesday.

Mrs. Mary Adelgais, the girl's widowed mother, was made ill today by worry over her daughter.

"Of course, Loretta was my only support and I'll miss her $18 a week, but that isn't worrying me," said Mrs. Adelgais, with tears streaming down her face. "It's the fact that this man has finally prevailed upon this good girl of mine to run away with him and do this awful thing."

It was said that not even the Englewood police had been notified officially by the bank officials of the theft, but it was asserted that the bonding company had sent their men out on the trail of the missing cashier.

The statement of Mrs. Adelgais that the cashier complained of his unhappy home life surprised the missing man's friends here, many of whom said they could hardly credit that phase of the case. They insisted that Mr. Cornelius was always attentive to his family, even though he did oppose the marriage of his elder daughter to John Meehan, a steamship clerk of New York.

SCOLDED GIRL ENDS LIFE.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 2.—Last Friday night fourteen-year-old Elizabeth Garrity, a high school student, who lives with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Grey, at 225 Park Avenue, received a visit from her widowed mother, who lives in another part of town. The girl has not lived with her mother since she was 14 months old, but her mother made her frequent visits and exercised considerable supervision over her. On Friday Mrs. Garrity found tucked under her daughter's mattress a postal card signed "Eugene," which told that the writer was going away for a vacation and could be addressed at Box 64, Lake Hopatcong. Mrs. Garrity upbraided her daughter severely for having anything to do with boys at her age, and the girl was morose after her mother left.

The next morning she was still gloomy, and her aunt ordered her sharply to sweep out the dining room. Mrs. Grey then went into another part of the house and when she came back the girl was gone. The police were notified that she was missing, and at 8 o'clock this morning Detectives William Lord and Otto Keppler found her body in the Passaic Fiver.

SENATORS TAKE UP CITY'S DUAL SYSTEM

Ask McCall Why He Doesn't Stop Third-Tracking in Fulton Street.

MATTER IS BEFORE COURT

Thompson Committee Sits in Shirt Sleeves and Questions Public Service Commissioners.

Senator George F. Thompson and the members of his legislative committee from up State sat in their shirt sleeves on the bench usually occupied by the Public Service Commissioners yesterday and Chairman Edward E. McCall and his fellow-Commissioners occupied seats in the body of the hearing room, refusing the invitation to doff their coats. Mr. McCall was very indignant at the suggestion made by Senator Thompson last Friday that city officials "passed the buck" and enjoyed too many week-end vacations.

Merton E. Lewis, counsel to the committee, mollified Mr. McCall, and Senator Burr said it was all the fault of the newspapers. This seemed to satisfy everybody, and the committee plunged into the grievances of the Brooklyn property owners who had told the legislators how the third-tracking of the Fulton Street elevated was depreciating property in that borough.

"I am satisfied that the third-tracking work is being carried on satisfactorily under the commission's authority," said Chairman McCall, "and I feel confident also that the Brooklyn Rapid Transit is building under the terms of the contract."

In answer to a question he said the use of heavy steel girders instead of light lattice work was now before the courts, and he would deem it highly improper to comment on it. He said the company intended to run twenty-two-ton cars over the structure, which for the safety of the public must needs be strong.

Calls Elevated "Gingerbread."

"Why, the old structure on Fulton Street is gingerbread," said Chairman McCall. "You can ask our engineers if the heavier girders are necessary. This commission is in sympathy with the persons who complain that the third-tracking construction spoils their property, but we cannot, of course, go over the head of the courts."

Later Mr. McCall took a fling at the Committee of One Hundred of Brooklyn, which complained to the committee last week that the work darkened the roadway on Nostrand Avenue and Fulton Street.

"I'll tell you what the Committee of One Hundred is," said he with some heat. "It is an organization of men with personal, political axes to grind." Mr. McCall amended by saying he would not include Mr. Cranford in this category, and of the Rev. Father Belford, who appeared before the Thompson Committee last week, he said: "Father Belford uses very good judgment but intemperance of speech."

"We are not down here to get anybody. We are here to aid the city and not to criticise any commission, corporation, or citizen."

Also, in the course of the proceedings, Chairman McCall announced:

"This commission does not stand for any terrorism. You sit here about a month and you'll see what we have to contend with."

Getting back to the Fulton Street elevated, Mr. McCall said he was sorry for the property owners, and that personally he objected to elevated structures.

"But," he added, "how can the city afford to spend between $4,000,000 and $8,000,000 on additional subways? I have been protesting all along against erecting new stations and other things that eat up money that the city can ill afford and I am opposed to any action that seeks to delay the completion of the Dual System."

McCall Won't Stop Work.

"I don't expect to see the city at a standstill," he added, referring to the suits to stop the Fulton Street third-tracking, "but the matter will be left to the adjudication of the courts as long as I am at the head of the commission. I don't believe the courts will decree the third-tracking a nuisance."

Chairman McCall surprised the legislators by telling them that the Public Service Commission had not the power to overrule the decision of the engineer of the commission.

"The Fulton Street work calls for an expenditure of $300,000 a mile, while as a fact, the actual cost is $500,000 a mile. Is it your purpose to approve the most expensive kind of plans?" was asked.

"Speaking for myself, I don't care what kind of plan it is so long as it meets the heavy traffic," said Mr. McCall.

Senator Thompson declared that the Public Service Commission had the power to interrupt the work on the Fulton Street elevated pending the action of the courts, while Mr. McCall said the commission had no power to do so and would not interfere with the courts.

"I tell you," insisted the Senator, "that you can stop that work so unpopular among Brooklynites now if you wish. Your powers enable you to do so."

"Then, who would take the responsibility if the courts said the work is legal and must go on?" asked Chairman McCall. "Who would bear the responsibility of throwing all those men out of work?"

Thompson Sides With Owners.

"It would be no more an injustice to cease the work to those employed on it than to continue it against the wishes of the property owners," said Senator Thompson.

Herbert L. Carpenter of the Fulton Street Association said that the commission had ignored the requests of his organization to stop the work. He said lattice work could have been used on the cross beams instead of solid girders now being used which shut out the light from the street. Mr. Carpenter had photographs with him to show this.

"Millions of dollars could have been saved in property losses," said Mr. Carpenter, "if the other style of construction had been employed, and it would have left a way open to disassemble the elevated lines in the future when the city has enough money to do it. We believe that if the commission had made inquiry into the charter rights of the B. R. T. on April 14 last when we made complaint to the commission, they would have stopped the present work and made the company build an adequate but not permanent structure which would have saved Brooklyn an inestimable loss. It is not too late yet for the Public Service Commission to take action."

A stenographer's bill for $750 for work done during the Spring investigation of the commission is in dispute. Secretary Whitney said that as the Senators had an appropriation from the State they should pay it. Senator Lawson of Brooklyn said the commision should be made to pay for the folio work in the present case. Secretary Whitney said he would have one of the commission's own stenographers do that work now.

The hearing was adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

LEFT A "TITANIC" WILL.

J. M. Greenfield Provided for Trust Fund in Case of Disaster.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Aug. 2.—When he executed his will on March 16, 1914, Joseph M. Greenfield, well-to-do candy manufacturer and horseman, inserted what is known as a "Titanic" clause, which provided for the possibility of the testator and his wife meeting death together in a catastrophe. The will was offered for probate today. After providing for several specific bequests, in which he remembered relatives and employes, the testator left the residue of his estate to his wife.

Mrs. Marjorie P. Metcalf of Orange is given $1,000 and an additional $100 with which to purchase a token of remembrance of Mr. Greenfield. Miss Erna Linington, a grandniece, is bequeathed $500. Mr. Greenfield left $500 each to Mrs. John Fort, who formerly was his servant, and Daniel Hildebrandt, his gardener. To Miss Bella Henderson, a trained nurse, is bequeathed $1,000. To each of the following the testator directed that $100 be given to provide for the purchase of tokens in his memory: Mrs. H. G. Shepherd, his sister; Mrs. Erna G. Delano, Franklin A. Chappell, Samuel V. Bogert, Louis E. Brown, Frederick I. Gisburne, Frederick H. Linington, Edward Neuhous, William Keish, John H. O'Meara, and Nicholas Wolff.

The inoperative "Titanic" clause of the will provided for the creation of a trust fund of $30,000 for Mrs. Elizabeth C. Chisholm, a $10,000 trust fund for Miss Linington, and a $10,000 trust fund for Mr. Hildebrandt. The residue of the estate would have been shared by Mrs. Shepherd, Mrs. Metcalf, Kenneth C. Chisholm, a nephew; Mrs. Erna G. Delano, a niece, and Mrs. Alva Linington, a niece.

CLOSE PART OF ERASMUS.

1,200 Children Who Were in Old Building Will Be Housed Elsewhere.

The end of the old frame buildings of Erasmus Hall High School was decreed yesterday, when President Thomas W. Churchill of the Board of Education sent directions to the Board of Superintendents to find such accommodation this Fall for the 1,200 children who were housed last term in the frame buildings as they could, and if such accommodations could not be found to deny them admission.

This order followed the letter to Mr. Churchill sent by Fire Commissioner Robert Adamson on Friday, in which he detailed the results of inspections made during the past week by Fire Chief John Kenlon, Deputy Chief Thomas Lally, and Deputy Chief of the Bureau of Fire Prevention William H. Swartwout, who had all condemned the buildings as unsafe and constituting a serious fire hazard. This was not an order, but merely a letter calling the attention of the President of the Board of Education to the danger. President Churchill took prompt action and ended the various compromises by which the use of the old buildings had been prolonged since they were first pronounced unsafe a year ago last Spring.

Prison for Girl's Annoyer.

A man who told the Magistrate that he was "John Doe" was arraigned yesterday in the Harlem Court charged with annoying Miss Lena Goldfield, 18 years old, of 183 West 100th Street. The man was middle-aged and said he had no home. Miss Goldfield said that he followed her for a considerable distance while she was walking along 104th Street and repeatedly spoke to her in spite of the fact that she ignored him, until finally she called a policeman. The prisoner was sentenced to thirty days in the Workhouse.

Crushed to Death by Elevator.

Caught yesterday between the floor of an elevator he was running and the first floor ceiling in the factory plant of Tiffany & Co. in the Forest Hill section of Newark, Peter S. Transue, 50 years old, of 144 Sylvan Avenue, that city, died before he could be extricated. To release him the floor of the car was sawed away.

IN NEW JERSEY.

HOBOKEN.—Walter Ermeyer, 9 years old, of 336 New York Avenue, was run over by a Paterson plank road trolley car yesterday and his left leg crushed. Lawrence Goltra, 8 years old, of 110 Garden Street, was run over by a wagon of the New Jersey Model Baking Company, suffering a broken ankle.

NEWARK.—Out of work and estranged from his only son, Fred G. Ortland, 66 years old, of 94½ Bleecker Street, committed suicide yesterday by hanging himself in his rooms.

NEWARK.—Peter Trausue, 62 years old, of 144 Sylvan Avenue, died in the City Hospital yesterday, after being caught in the shafting in Tiffany's factory at Forest Hill.

LINDEN.—An unidentified man with his skull crushed evidently from being struck by an engine was found yesterday morning beside the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad near here.

ELIZABETH.—Burglars last night stole jewelry worth $2,000 and bank certificates worth $3,000 from the residence of Mrs. Rose Brodesser, at 680 Grove Street, and jewelry worth $1,000 from the residence of the Rev. C. C. Woodruff, pastor of St. James's M. E. Church.

NEWTON.—Mrs. Frank Hiram Snell of Washington, D. C., has been engaged by the Newton League to speak in favor of votes for women in the county before the special election on Oct. 17.

JAMESBURG.—The Board of Managers of the State Home for Boys here is expected today to name a successor to John C. Kalleen, the Superintendent who resigned recently.

OLD-FASHIONED WIFE SEEKS A SEPARATION

Mrs. Coyne, Who Has Had Eleven Children, Finds Sorrow in Wake of Prosperity.

'FORCED TO DO HOUSEWORK'

Husband Complained She Had Not Advanced Socially, She Says—He Denies Allegations.

Written into the formal language of the law in a separation suit started by Mrs. Margaret Coyne against Edward Coyne, a retired hotel man, is the story of a tired woman whose husband has told her that she is "old-fashioned and out of date." The quoted characterization was made part of the record of the case which was placed before Justice Ford in the Supreme Court yesterday.

Across the record was written the woman's added grievance that her husband complained she had "not progressed as rapidly socially as he."

Mrs. Coyne recited that she and the hotel man were married in England in 1878. She bore eleven children, sewed for them, did all the housework, and economized against a rainy day. The children grew up and went to school. The husband became more able at his business, and his possessions accumulated.

With prosperity shadows entered the home. Five of the children died at different times. The husband began to return home at two or three o'clock in the morning, intoxicated, according to the wife's complaint, and in place of his fond greetings of earlier days there were grumbling and at times downright harshness.

All the unhappiness cropped up after the family arrived in this country. Mr. Coyne had prospered still further, but, according to his wife, he "forced the plaintiff to do housework and washing and to make careful provision for his comfort."

Mrs. Coyne related a long list of alleged cruelties, asserting that her husband once threw the contents of a bottle of beer in her face at Bergen Beach in the Summer of 1909, when their little daughter Virginia was at the table, and that several times he spoiled her plans to have a Thanksgiving or Christmas Day reunion of the family.

Mr. Coyne in 1910 sold a hotel in New York City for $450,000 and his equity was $50,000, which he received in cash, his wife declared. She said also that he had refused an offer of $10,000 in cash for his house at Miami, and owned thirty-five acres of tomato-growing land in Florida and an island in Jamaica Bay which nets him yearly $400. He has deposits in eight different banks in New York City.

Mrs. Coyne alleges that her husband failed to live up to a separation agreement entered into since December, when she threatened to start a separation suit. He has sent her only $35 with which to pay the June rental for her apartment, she says, and although she has flinched from bringing the suit necessity has driven her to the courts. Her slender income is insufficient to maintain herself and daughter Virginia, and to educate her at a private school for girls which she has attended for several years.

Justice Ford awarded Mrs. Coyne alimony of $20 weekly and counsel fees of $150, pending trial. She was represented by Thomas E. Brownlee of 27 Cedar Street. The husband's attorney is John Delahunty of 32 Nassau Street, who has set up a complete denial as a defense.

Raid Tenement Poolroom.

In the presence of a crowd of spectators, a squad of detectives under Lieutenants McNeil and O'Connor of Inspector Morris's staff, raided an alleged poolroom on the second floor of a tenement house in Third Avenue yesterday. Thirty-two men were arrested and carried away from the premises in three automobile patrols. According to the police, the men were engaged in placing bets on the races at Saratoga. Racing charts and betting sheets were found on the tables. Temporary telephone connections had also been established with Saratoga. The prisoners were all discharged in the Night Court.

Find a Skeleton on Palisades.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Aug. 2.—The skeleton of a man supposed to be about 50 years old was found wedged between two rocks about 100 yards below the top of the Palisades at Alpine by several boy campers this morning. The body was fully dressed in duck trousers and belt, a black coat, and black soft hat. There was nothing in the pockets that would tend to identify him—only a package of tobacco and a comb.
